LIFE FOR DAVIT FOR MURDER; KIDNAP TRIAL TOMORROW

Convicted of Killing Grocer Paul Flueck in Attempted Holdup of Store in Maplewood on Feb. 20, 1932.

JURY REJECTS ALIBI DEFENSE

Prosecution Announces It Will Try Defendant on Scheduled Date, on Charge of Abducting Dr. Kelley.

Bart Davit, found guilty yesterday of the murder of Paul Flueck, Maplewood grocer, in a holdup more than three years ago, by a jury which fixed his punishment at life imprisonment, will go on trial at Clayton tomorrow on a charge of kidnaping Dr. I. D. Kelley for ransom.

Associate Prosecuting Attorney John Wolfe, after the jury had returned its verdict, announced that the State would proceed with the kidnaping trial as scheduled. The maximum penalty for kidnaping for ransom is death.

The jury returned its verdict in the murder case in Circuit Judge Robert McElhinney's court at Clayton at 1:40 p. m., after deliberating for seven and a half hours. Wesley B. Loveless, a street-car operator, 7236 Anna avenue, Maplewood, who was foreman of the jury, said its members had agreed not to discuss their deliberations.

Formal Sentence Deferred.

Formal sentencing of Davit was deferred to give his attorney, Verne Lacy, who was not in court when the verdict was returned, an opportunity to file the motion for a new trial which usually follows a verdict of guilty.

Both Mrs. Paul Flueck, the widow, and her daughter, Mrs. Fred E. Davidson, identified Davit as the nervous young robber with "batty" eyes, who shot and killed Flueck on the night of Feb. 20, 1932, 10 months to the day after the kidnaping of Dr. Kelley. It was the publication of Davit's picture in newspapers after his arrest in the kidnaping case, in February, 1934, that led to their identification of him as the murderer.

Davit took the stand in his own defense and offered an alibi. He said that at the time of the murder he was in Kansas City on an alcohol selling trip. A sheet from a loose leaf hotel register purporting to show that he was registered at a Kansas City hotel on that day was introduced in support of the alibi.

Previously Named by Dr. Kelley.

The kidnaping case is set for trial before Circuit Judge Julius A. Nolte. Dr. Kelley, at the previous kidnaping trials, has identified Bart Davit as one of his abductors. He said he saw Davit playing the radio in one of the houses on the East Side where he was held.

Adolph Fiedler, former St. Louis County Justice of the Peace, whose statement of his knowledge of the crime led to the kidnaping charges against Davit and five others, has testified that Davit was one of those who plotted the kidnaping in his recreation establishment on Olive Street road.

Davit and Felix McDonald, Fiedler has testified, were the actual abductors of the physician. His testimony was that these two set out from the recreation establishment on the night of April 20, 1931, to abduct Dr. Kelley whom they had lured from his home by means of a fake sick call.

Fiedler's Testimony in Kidnaping.

It was McDonald who got into Dr. Kelley's automobile when the physician, seeking the home on Oleta drive in Davis place, to which he had been sent by the faked call to treat a small child, stopped in front of a house there. It was Davit, according to the testimony, who followed Dr. Kelley's automobile in another car.

McDonald has been convicted and sentenced to 60 years in the penitentiary for his part in the kidnaping. Another defendant, Angelo Rosegrant, has been sentenced to 20 years. Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench, named by Fiedler as the woman who devised the lure which took Dr. Kelley from his home, was acquitted recently by a jury at Mexico, Mo., where the case was transferred because Mrs. Muench alleged the people of St. Louis

FARMER KILLED BY ROBBER WHO SEIZED HIS AUTO

Lewis Limes Shot Near Trenton, Mo., by Roy Branam, Who Previously Abducted Family of Five.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Oct. 26.—Lewis Limes, a farmer, 50 years old, was shot to death in an automobile, near Trenton, Mo., today by a robber who was forcing him to drive.

Roy Branam, 25 years old, of Kansas City, arrested soon afterward, confessed the killing, according to the authorities, saying he shot Limes "because he tried to get away." Before shooting Limes, Branam had abducted Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Boone and their three children but released them uninjured, after their automobile stalled.

A crowd gathered about Trenton jail after Branam's arrest and he was removed for safekeeping to Chillicothe and later to this city.

Killer's Story.

Branam told officers he started from Kansas City on Wednesday morning, and reached Slater, Mo., where he kidnaped H. E. Martin, taxicab driver. He forced Martin to drive within three miles of Trenton, Mo., where he robbed him of his clothing and $9 in cash. Last night Branam stayed at Sturgess, Mo.

Shortly after noon he appeared at the Boone farm house, near Chula, representing himself as a light plant salesman. Then, drawing a pistol, he fired once at Boone but missed. He ordered the family into the Boone automobile, an old model, which became overheated and stalled after three hours of driving along side roads.

After the car stalled, Branam forced Boone and two of his three children to accompany him to Limes' farm home, where he asked for help.

Woman Gave Alarm.

While they were gone Mrs. Boone hailed a passing automobile and asked the occupants to call the sheriff at Trenton. Two deputy sheriffs and two State highway patrolmen went to investigate.

Limes was forced to take his automobile and drive Branam. They came upon Ray Axtell, who had stopped along the road to repair a tire. Limes apparently saw a chance to escape and opened the door of the car. Branam shot him in the back, the bullet lodging near the heart. Limes died almost instantly. Branam shoved the body out of the car and drove on. The killing was witnessed by the Boones also.

Later Branam's car skidded into a ditch, where he left the machine, and walked to a railroad track.

State patrolman Frank Nall and Deputy Sheriff James Young of Chillicothe were told Branam had abandoned Limes' automobile and started down the railway tracks. They took a railway motor car from a section gang and overtook Branam. He surrendered without resistance.

Branam said his father, D. W. Branam, a Kansas City shoe clerk,

FIRE RATE FRAUD CHARGE CAUSES ROW AT HEARING

Policyholders' Attorney Says in Federal Court He Means 'Legal' Type — Statement Challenged.

O'MALLEY'S COUNSEL ASKS FOR PROOF

J. T. Barker Calls Compromise 'Eminently Fair' — Filing of Briefs Set for Next Saturday.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 26.—A heated challenge of charges of fraud in the proposed compromise settlement of Missouri's long-drawn-out fire insurance rate litigations was made today before a three-Judge Federal Court by attorneys for the State Insurance Department and the insurance companies.

R. M. Sheppard, attorney representing a group of policy holders seeking to intervene, retorted that he did not charge dishonesty or corruption, but he did charge "legal fraud."

The hearing before United States Circuit Judge Kimbrough Stone and District Judges Albert L. Reeves and Merrill E. Otis was primarily to set dates for filing of briefs and other formalities, but suddenly developed heat.

John T. Barker, chief counsel for the State Insurance Department, defended the compromise plan under which 80 per cent of impounded funds would go to insurance concerns, pay costs of litigation and attorneys' fees and approximately 20 per cent would be distributed to policy holders. Barker told the Court that after 13 years of litigation, R. E. O'Malley, State Insurance Superintendent, and his assistants had drawn a settlement plan which the lawyer described as "eminently fair."

"Clean, Fine and Decent."

Barker asserted that if settlement were made 137 insurance companies would lose to the extent of $3,000,000 and there would be a further saving under the new rate schedule of $2,500,000 to policy holders.

Noting that Sheppard, in behalf of the intervenors, had set up charges of fraud, Barker asked the Court to have a hearing to "disclose whether fraud allegations were true or untrue, in order that the attorneys and Mr. O'Malley either be punished or vindicated."

"I want the court to put us on the witness stand," said Barker, "and let it be determined whether the settlement plan is not clean, fine and decent."

John F. Rhodes, attorney for Joseph B. Thompson, former Superintendent of Insurance, told the court he was "tired of innuendoes of fraud."

"We want an investigation to convict or clean us of fraud," Rhodes said with feeling.

Requests Facts at Once.

R. J. Felonie of Chicago, attorney for the insurance companies, then asked Sheppard "to state here and now such alleged facts as he might produce in court later to substantiate his allegations of fraud."

Sheppard cited his contentions questioning the authority to make the proposed settlement and said he would not answer the questions unless instructed to do so by the Court. Thereupon Judge Otis instructed Sheppard to answer and Sheppard said his contention was only that O'Malley was "committing legal fraud."

The Court set next Saturday for the insurance companies and the Insurance Department to file reply briefs and Nov. 9 for the intervenors to file their reply.

The Court also set Nov. 9 to hear arguments on whether the insurance companies should continue to make deposits in Federal Court of impounded funds collected under the 16¾ per cent increase, which now totals about $11,000,000. The Court previously had called attention to the fact that the monthly payment due Sept. 15 had not been made.

Recently the State Supreme Court threw out the compromise agreement arranged by O'Malley. However, the Federal Court action is independent of it and more insurance companies are involved.

M. J. MEEHAN IS ACCUSED OF RIGGING MARKET

FEDERAL BOARD HEARING, NOV. 12

Securities Commission to Inquire Into Alleged Manipulation of Bellanca Stock.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—The Securities Commission today ordered Michael J. Meehan, stock market operator, to show why he should not be expelled or suspended from the New York Curb and other exchanges on charges of manipulating stock of Bellanca Aircraft Corporation.

The 1933 Senate stock market investigation disclosed that Meehan was active in many big pools in pre-depression days. He was ordered to appear Nov. 12 to explain what the commission said it had "reason to believe" were illegal activities designed to increase the price of the stock. The alleged manipulation, the commission said, began on the New York Curb Exchange April 5, 1935, and continued to the present time.

New Stock Issue Barred.

At the same time, the commission halted the flotation by the company of 197,500 new shares of the same class as those being traded in on the Curb in which the alleged manipulation has been occurring.

Most of the new issue was to be bought from the company by Meehan and Hamons & Co., underwriters, at $4, and sold to the public at $5.

The old stock has ranged from $1.75 to $5.50 a share in price so far this year. Two days ago it sold around $5, closing yesterday at $3.75, and today at $2.75, the latter quotation appearing on the tape shortly after the commission's announcement.

Method of Alleged Manipulation.

Without giving details, the commission said it "has reason to believe" Meehan used the mails and other instruments of interstate commerce to create "a false and misleading appearance of active trading" which had the effect of "raising its (the corporation's stock) price for the purpose of inducing its purchase by others."

This was done, the commission said, by Meehan's issuing orders to sell or buy with the knowledge that other orders were outstanding to buy or sell at substantially the same price. This was called a violation of the Exchange Act under a section which forbids transactions involving no change in the actual ownership of the stock.

This process is described in stock market parlance as matching orders, whereby, in the simplest sort of case, the same trader would enter an order to buy and an order to sell the same number of shares of a stock at the same price at the same time.

There would be no change in ownership. The same result might be obtained by several individuals who agreed among themselves to buy and sell without actually changing ownership, thus creating unreal activity in a stock and raising or lowering its market price as they desired.

Objection to New Stock.

The registration statement for the new stock would have become effective tomorrow, and the stock might have been offered to the public Monday. The commission said it found "reasonable grounds for believing" that the statement contained "untrue statements" or omitted to state "required material facts."

The parts of the statement objected to dealt with the stockholders of officials, and with the agreement between the corporation and Meehan and Hamons & Co. for selling the stock.

The other exchanges from which Meehan may be expelled are the New York Stock Exchange and Chicago Board of Trade.

Meehan Denies Violation of Securities Act.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—To the commission's complaint, Michael J. Meehan gave this answer tonight: "I have been informed that the SEC claims to have found some basis for complaint against me in connection with Bellanca Aircraft Corporation. I am prepared to prove at any time

MUSSOLINI CALLS SANCTIONS 'MOST ODIOUS INJUSTICE'

Italy Will Fight League Program, Premier Says on Anniversary of March on Rome.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Oct. 26.—Premier Mussolini lashed out at sanctions in a militant appeal to his Fascist followers today and warned that Italy would fight against this "most odious of injustices."

His warlike words were in his annual message to the Blackshirts as a salute to the fourteenth year of Fascism, opening Monday on the anniversary of the march on Rome.

"Those who are ready to consummate against us the most odious of injustices will perceive that the Italian people is capable of heroisms like those of the soldiers who avenged Aduwa with glory and carried civilization to the soil of Africa," he said, referring to sanctions.

"Pride of Fighting."

"This is an epoch in which one must feel the pride of living and of fighting. This is an epoch in which a people measures upon a base of hostile forces its capacity of resistance and victory.

"Before an economic siege which history will brand as an absurd crime, destined to augment disorder and distress among the nations, all Italians worthy of that name will fight to organize the most intense defense, will distinguish between friends and enemies and will long remember and transmit the memory and the lessons of the fathers to the sons and the nephews."

Mussolini gave his Blackshirts "duty and sacrifice" as the watchword for the fourteenth year of Fascism. There are 14,000,000 members of the party among Italy's 44,000,000 population.

Referring to the coming year, he said: "We salute it in warlike style, with flags flying, with all the glory of our faith and with all our will already tested by innumerable hardships."

The 13 years of Fascism, he said, "have not passed in vain—the world of plutocratic and recationary egoisms is obliged to recognize that."

Government Decrees.

A Government decree tonight authorized 441,000,000 lire (about $35,721,000) for "new construction and transformation of naval craft."

Another decree established a "high naval command" in Italy's Dodecanese Islands in the Aegean Sea.

The orders were interpreted as Mussolini's reply to the continued presence of the British fleet in the Mediterranean.

The money will be spent as follows: 285,000,000 lire during the current fiscal year, 103,000,000 in the next fiscal year, and 26,000,000 in the year ending in 1938.

The naval budget for this year totaled 1,304,881,000 lire, about 80,000,000 more than that of last year.

Well-informed sources said the decree indicated that work on two 35,000-ton battleships and on cruisers and other units which Italy is authorized to build under the limits of the Washington naval treaty, would be hastened.

Pro-Italian Chieftain Is Held Prisoner by King Haile Selassie

Ethiopians Say Mussolini's Men Tried Several Times to Abduct Once-Prominent Nobleman and Make Him Puppet Ruler.

By the Associated Press.

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 26.—An Ethiopian chieftain whom Italians are reported to have once planned to abduct and set up as a puppet ruler in part of Ethiopia, is a virtual prisoner in a mountain monastery by order of Emperor Haile Selassie.

The chieftain, Ras Hailu, former Governor of Gojjam Province and once one of the most powerful men in Ethiopia, has been taken to the monastery at Debra Libanos, in Selale Province.

Ethiopians assert that Italians have tried on several occasions to size Ras Hailu, with the object of giving him the position recently given to Ras Gugsa, chieftain who was made ruler of Tigre Province in Northern Ethiopia, which the Italians now control.

The Ethiopians say that it was one of these attempts which ended in the crash of an Italian airplane in Egypt last August, when seven persons, including Minister of Public Works Luigi Razza and the explorer, Raimondo Franchetti, were killed. They declare Premier Mussolini of Italy had dispatched Franchetti to take Ras Hailu from Ethiopia.

Ras Hailu is the second prominent Ethiopian known to have been made captive by Haile Selassie. Former Emperor Lij Yasu is also held, it is said, in a luxurious prison the site of which has not been disclosed. There have been reports that Italians have tried also to seize him, with a similar plan for setting him up as an Ethiopian ruler under Italian supervision.

Ras Hailu was deposed as Governor of Gojjam in 1932 when he attempted to put Lij Yasu, grandson of Emperor Menelik II, back on the throne he once had held, removing Haile Selassie. He had first been held in Arusi Province, but was moved recently to Debra Libanos. In his lonely retreat far from Mussolini's bombs and airplanes, the pro-Italian Ras enjoys every privilege except his liberty. He wears a golden chain around his neck and a silver chain around his wrist. He is guarded, however, by monks in Haile Selassie's service.

Debra Libanos, 60 miles north of Addis Ababa, is the site of many noted churches and ecclesiastical libraries. There Ethiopia's sacred manuscripts have been kept from the time of the Queen of Sheba, from whom Haile Selassie claims descent.

ROOSEVELT FORMALLY OPENS NEW MARYLAND BRIDGE

Crowds at Cambridge, See President Pass Through Draw on Yacht Sequoia.

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Md., Oct. 26.—The $1,400,000 Choptank River span, 7000 feet long, the longest in the State, was named the "Emerson C. Harrington Bridge" by Gov. Harry W. Nice, who dedicated it today.

The dedicatory address, made before cheering spectators, was delivered just before President Roosevelt passed through the draw in the yacht Sequoia formally opening the bridge.

After passing through the draw, the Sequoia docked at Long wharf, where the President spoke briefly.

Harrington, a native of Cambridge and war-time Governor of Maryland, accepted the dedicatory honor.

The President will cruise to the Potomac River during the night and return to the White House tomorrow afternoon.

CALIFORNIA BRUSH FIRE UNDER CONTROL AFTER FIVE DAYS

Parts of 100-Square Mile Area Still Smouldering Near Malibu Hills.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 26.—The Malibu Hills brush fire was checked apparently on all sides tonight after it had threatened movie colony summer homes.

Although parts of an area of nearly 100 square miles still smouldered, fire fighters expressed confidence they had the fire under control. The Malibu fire started five days ago. Twice, it threatened to wipe out the Malibu Beach colony and the Malibu Lake resort area 35 miles northwest of here.

Federal forestry fire fighters and CCC workers said their only fear of the fire getting out of hand again was that a high wind might suddenly blow up.

ITALIAN STORY OF 'BATTLE OF THE MOUNTAIN MONKEYS'

100 Men Scaled Sheer Cliff and Surprised Ethiopians by Attack From Rear.

WITH THE ITALIAN SOUTHERN ARMY IN ETHIOPIA, Oct. 26.—The story of how the wily old Sultan Olol Dinle, who deserted to the Italian side, duped and defeated his countrymen in the "Battle of the Mountain Monkeys," was disclosed in dispatches today.

The Ethiopian defenders had fortified themselves in what they considered an impregnable position on Monkeys' Mountain, which has a sheer drop which, it was thought, only monkeys could scale.

Sultan Olol left 100 of his most agile men facing the rock wall and attacked with the bulk of his force in the rear of the Ethiopian position. When the main force feinted a retreat, the defenders dashed down, heedless of the bombs which a squadron of Italian planes dropped on them.

Meanwhile, however, Olol's agile hundred men climbed the rock wall, carrying two machine-guns, with which they raked the Ethiopians from behind. The defenders were finally forced to surrender.

U. S. AVOIDS PLEDGING AID ON SANCTIONS TO LEAGUE

'SYMPATHETIC' TO EFFORT OF OTHERS

Secretary of State Again Asserts America Intends to Remain Uninvolved in Italian-Ethiopian Conflict.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—The United States, through Secretary of State Hull, tonight reaffirmed its stand of independent neutrality toward the Italian-Ethiopian war, but expressed "sympathetic interest" in efforts by others to bring a halt to armed conflict.

In a formal communication to the League of Nations, Hull gave this reply to an invitation to comment on the program of sanctions against Italy and to outline steps taken by this Government.

Hull carefully refrained from making any direct commitments on the League's efforts to halt the African conflict through economic pressure. In fact, the "interest" expressed in halting war was so drafted as to apply to any or all wars. In substance, the reply to the League's communication was a summarization of steps taken by this Government under the neutrality law. To this was added a reiteration of the United States' intention to remain uninvolved, and of its desire for an early halting of hostilities.

Consequences of War.

In the lengthy note, delivered through Hugh R. Wilson, United States Minister to Switzerland, to Dr. Augusto de Vasconcellos, president of the League's Committee of Co-ordination, Hull said:

"Realizing that war adversely affects every country, that it may seriously endanger the economic welfare of each, causes untold human misery, and even threatens the existence of civilization, the United States, in keeping with the letter and spirit of the pact of Paris and other peace obligations, undertakes at all times to not only exercise its moral influence in favor of peace throughout the world, but to contribute in every practicable way within the limitations of our foreign policy to that end.

"It views with sympathetic interest the individual or concerted efforts of other nations to preserve peace or to localize and shorten the duration of war."

Reviews Neutrality Act.

In recapitulating the moves made by this Government under the neutrality act, embracing an embargo on arms and war materials to both belligerents, a presidential admonition against American business transactions with either country and a warning to American travelers not to use ships of the combatants, Hull said:

"These steps have been taken for the purpose of dealing with this specific controversy and the special circumstances presented.

"The cvourse thus pursued in advance of action by other governments represents the independent and affirmative policy of the Government of the United States and indicates its purpose not to be drawn into the war and its desire not to contribute to a prolongation of the war."

At the outset, Hull referred directly to the communication from Dr. De Vasconcellos, who on Oct. 21 addressed a note to this country as well as other nonmembers.

Advocates Pacific Means.

"In regard to your statement that the Government's represented on the co-ordination committee would welcome any communication which any nonmember state may deem it proper to make to you, or notifications of any action which it may be taking in the circumstances," Hull said, "it is, of course, well known that the Government and people of the United States are deeply interested in the prevention of war, and hence in the sanctity of treaties and promotion of peace in every part of the world; that as a corollary to their abhorrence of

GOVERNMENT PUTS ITS PLATFORM UP TO BRITISH VOTERS

Manifesto Asks for Mandate to Continue Present Course in Italian-Ethiopian Dispute.

'LEAGUE KEYSTONE OF FOREIGN POLICY'

Declares for Peace and Disarmament, 'But Gaps in National Defense Must Be Repaired.'

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—The National Government issued a manifesto tonight, outlining seven points as the basis of its campaign for the general election Nov. 14. Its platform follows:

1. The League of Nations will remain as heretofore the keystone of British foreign policy.
2. In the present "unhappy dispute between Italy and Ethiopia, there will be no wavering in the policy we have hitherto pursued."
3. Peace is the first interest of the British people, but gaps in national defense must be repaired.
4. There will be no relaxation of efforts to attain, by international agreement, a general limitation of armaments by every possible means—whether by restriction of numbers or by prohibition of weapons and methods of warfare.
5. The policy of reducing tariff barriers by means of bilateral commercial treaties will continue.
6. The agricultural policy will remain one of expansion of the home market.
7. Industrial expansion will be stimulated by a regime of cheap money and protection of the home market.

Under Three Signatures.

The manifesto was signed by Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin for the Conservative Party, Lord President of the Council J. Ramsey MacDonald for the National Labor Party (distinct from the Labor Party), and by Home Secretary Sir John Simon for the National Liberals.

Calling for a new mandate for leadership, they declared that Great Britain, during the past four years, had "emerged from the depths of depression to a steadily returning prosperity, with the name of Britain high in the councils of the world."

Although the National Government appeared likely to be shorn of its top-heavy majority in the House of Commons, political observers expect the Baldwin Government to be returned with a strong working majority of 150 to 200 seats.

Liberal and Laborite Views.

Liberal and Laborite manifestoes also were issued. The Laborite statement called the period of the present Government's power "four barren years," while the Liberal platform did not "recognize the present administration as a national Government," because, it said, it was not supported by any party except the Conservative.

David Lloyd George, war time Prime Minister, charged yesterday that the Baldwin government had done "the meanest electoral trick ever played by an administration," in calling what he termed a "snap" election. Today he joined Baldwin, MacDonald and Simon in signing protest against the action of the Laborites in running a candidate against the Speaker of the House of Commons, whose election is traditionally not opposed.

Capt. Eden Unopposed.

Sir Anthony Eden, Minister for League of Nations Affairs, will not be opposed by the Liberals because of his work for peace and for the League, which the Liberals have praised.

MacDonald faces a hard fight in his Seaham constituency where the coal miners are against him.

Sir Richard Stafford Cripps, considered to be one of Labor's potential Prime Ministers, in a bitter campaign speech at Edinburgh, compared capitalism to a scenic railway. "Each time we rise on a boom period of capitalism," he said, "we do not go quite as high as we went before. The cycle of booms is reaching the stage where there won't be any rise."

that I have not, wittingly or unwittingly, violated any of the provisions of the Securities and Exchange Act, or the rules of any exchange of which I am a member."

Meehan, founder and senior partner of M. J. Meehan & Co., brokers, was reputed to have made millions in the common stock of Radio Corporation of America, which rose from a price of about $40 to $50 a share, before the crash.

Meehan's firm holds five Stock Exchange seats. The fifth was acquired this week, when Meehan paid $130,000 for a membership and presented it to his son William, on the youth's twenty-first birthday.

M. J. Meehan started his Wall street career as a messenger. He was successively a cigar store clerk and salesman in a theater ticket agency in the Wall street district. By 1918 he had saved enough to buy a membership in the old curb market.

Text of Hull's Note to League

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.

FOLLOWING is the text of the reply which Secretary of State Hull tonight instructed Hugh R. Wilson, Ambassador to Switzerland, to deliver to the President of the Committee of Co-ordination of the League of Nations:

His Excellency,
Dr. Augusto de Vasconcellos,
President of the Committee of Co-ordination, League of Nations.

Excellency:

I have received your communication of Oct. 21, transmitting certain documents in the Italo-Ethiopian dispute, including the minutes of the Council of Oct. 7, the minutes of the Assembly from Oct. 9 to 11, and the recommendations of the Coordination Committee, for which I desire to express appreciation.

In regard to your statement that the governments represented on the Co-ordination Committee would welcome any communication which any non-member state may deem it proper to make to you, or notifications of any action which it may be taking in the circumstances, it is, of course, well known that the Government and people of the United States are deeply interested in the prevention of war, and hence in the sanctity of treaties and promotion of peace in every part of the world; that as a corollary to their abhorrence of war, with the human sufferings, the impoverishment of states and peoples, business dislocation and embittered feelings engendered by warfare, we are by tradition strong proponents of the principle that all differences between members of the family of nations should be settled by pacific means.

I need only call attention to Hague convention of 1907 for the pacific settlement of international disputes, the Pact of Paris, in the negotiation of which the Government of the United States played an important part, the anti-war pact sponsored by the Argentine Government and signed at Rio de Janeiro on Oct. 12, 1933, and the various conventions of conciliation and arbitration to which the United States is a party. These instruments of peace impose upon all nations parties thereto most solemn responsibilities, and no nation can look with complacency upon their non-observance.

What U. S. Has Done.

As regards the situation now unhappily existing between Ethiopia and Italy, I may point out that the Government of the United States put forth every practicale effort to aid in the preservation of peace, through conferences, official acts, diplomatic communications and public statements, and emphasized particularly the principles of the Pact of Paris and the high legal and moral obligations of the signatories thereto. This Government repeatedly expressed its anxiety and the hope that the controversy would be resolved without resort to armed conflict and the conviction of the entire nation that failure to arrive at a peaceful settlement of the dispute and the subsequent outbreak of hostilities would be a world calamity.

When, however, it was found that hostilities actually existed between Ethiopia and Italy, this Government, acting on its own initiative, promptly announced a number of basic measures primarily to avoid being drawn into the war, and which also would not be without effect in discouraging war.

The President of the United States, on Oct. 5, 1935, issued a proclamation bringing into operation under an act of Congress an embargo on the exportation of arms, ammunition and implements of war to both belligerents.

The issuance of this proclamation automatically brought into operation another provision of the act of Congress making it unlawful for any American vessel to carry arms, ammunition or implements of war to any port of the belligerent countries or to any neutral port for transshipment to or for the use of either of the belligerents.

Travel at Own Risk.

On the same day the President issued a further proclamation warning American nationals against travel on belligerent vessels and stating that such travel would be at their own risk.

In addition to the three measures just mentioned, the President took a fourth and most important step by issuing a public statement definitely warning citizens against transactions of any character with either of the belligerent nations, except at their own risk.

This latter statement was later emphasized when I publicly pointed out that the warning given by the President "certainly was not intended to encourage transactions with the belligerents" and that "our people might well realize that the universal state of business uncertainty and suspense on account of the war is seriously handicapping business between all countries, and that the sooner the war is terminated the sooner the restoration and stabilization of business in all parts of the world, which is infinitely more important than trade with the belligerents, will be brought about," and that "this speedy restoration of more full and stable trade conditions and relationships among the nations is by far the most profitable objective for our people to visualize, in contrast with such risky and temporary trade as they might maintain with belligerent nations.' This policy with respect to transactions with the belligerents I now reiterate and reaffirm.

These steps have been taken for the purpose of dealing with this specific controversy and the special circumstances presented.

Aim of This Policy.

The course thus pursued in advance of action by other Governments, most of which are parties to one or more of the peace pacts to which I have referred, represents the independent and affirmative policy of the Government of the United States and indicates its purpose not to be drawn into the war and its desire not to contribute to a prolongation of the war.

Realizing that war adversely affects every country, that it may seriously endanger the economic welfare of each, causes untold human misery, and even threatens the existence of civilization, the United States, in keeping with the letter and spirit of the Pact of Paris and other peace obligations, undertakes at all times to not only exercise its moral influence in favor of peace throughout the world. but to contribute in every practicable way within the limitations of our foreign policy, to that end. It views with sympathetic interest the individual or concerted efforts of other nations to preserve peace or to localize and shorten the duration of war.

Accept, Excellency, the assurances of my highest consideration, CORDELL HULL.

U. S. IN NOTE AVOIDS PLEDGE ON SANCTIONS war with the human sufferings, the impoverishment of states and peoples, business dislocation and embittered feeling ingendered by war, we are by tradition strong proponents of the principal that all difference between the family of nations should be settled by pacific means."

Against Trade With Belligerents.

Calling attention to The Hague convention of 1907 for the pacific settlement of national disputes, the Pact of Paris, in the negotiation of which the Government of the United States played an important part, the anti-war pact signed at Rio de Janeiro and other conciliation and arbitration pacts to which this Government is a party, Hull observed:

"These instruments of peace impose upon all nations parties thereto most solemn responsibilities, and no nation can look with complacency upon their non-observance."

He emphasized that the United States Government had "put forth every practicable effort to aid in the preservation of peace" between Italy and Ethiopia.

"When, however, it was found that hostilities existed between Ethiopia and Italy," he added, "this Government, acting on its own initiative, promptly announced a number of basic measures primarily to avoid being drawn into the war, and which also would not be without effect in discouraging war."

Calling attention to his recent statement supplementing President Roosevelt's warning to American business men that any transactions they have with the belligerent countries will be at their own risk, Hull quoted his own observation that the President's statement "certainly was not intended to encourage transactions with the belligerents," and added:

"This policy with respect to transactions with the belligerents I now reliterate and reaffirm."

Italy Gratified at U. S. Neutrality as Expressed by Hull.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Oct. 27 (Sunday).—A Government spokesman said today that Italy "cannot help but be gratified" at Secretary Hull's reaffirmation of United States neutrality in the Italian-Ethiopian conflict.

Well-informed circles held the reference to America's willingness to aid efforts for peace within limitations under the Kellogg pact could not be interpreted as directed against Italy.

Government officials welcomed the American communication as "an influence which nullifies the importance of world solidarity" against Italy in regard to sanctions.

These sources pointed out that "the great American market is still open to Italy," particularly in regard to gasoline and oil.

BRITISH FINANCIAL SANCTIONS TAKE EFFECT TUESDAY

Treasury Will Begin Action Against Italy on That Day—Arms Embargo Established Friday.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 26.—The Treasury Department today ordered that financial sanctions against Italy be made effective next Tuesday. It was announced the arms embargo became operative yesterday, and that economic sanctions would be begun when the League Council ordered them, probably early in November.

The Government announced everything was now prepared for the effective operation of sanctions.

Definitely declaring inacceptable Mussolini's peace proposals, advanced in diplomatic channels through Premier Pierre Laval of France, Britain expects no temporizing, no delays, no weakening when the League Council meets Oct. 31, to put the sanctions machinery into full operation.

The Treasury said financial penalties would be applied under Article 3 of the League of Nations Covenant. It would apply to the Government and residents of Italy and Italian territory, and to corporations incorporated under the laws of Italy or Italian territory. Thus, even nationals of Great Britain who reside in Italian territory are affected. Business with these persons or corporations affected was prohibited if it involved use of credit facilities.

Informed observers think the League will listen to peace plans only if Mussolini withdraws his troops from Ethiopia and announces his willingness to work out a settlement definitely within the framework of the proposals of the committee of five, which he rejected at Geneva several weeks ago. No major Italian territorial annexation in Ethiopia was envisaged in this plan, and it was understood the British Government adheres to the view none should be permitted.

While Mussolini's proposals to Laval were not announced, broad hints of his demands were given. It was thought his insistence of acquisition of outer Ethiopian provinces caused the major British objection.

13 Nations Now Applying Financial Sanctions.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Oct. 26.—Great Britain informed the League of Nations today it had taken the necessary measures to halt all Italian imports as well as to lay an embargo on certain exports to Italy as soon as a League committee, meeting Oct. 31, fixed a date for international enforcement of the sanctions. The number of countries enforcing an arms embargo against Italy reached 33 when Argentina, Sweden and New Zealand reported they have taken this step. Thirteen countries are applying financial sanctions and four have approved the economic boycott.

French Acceptance of Early Application of Sanctions Indicated.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 26.—French acceptance of the early application of sanctions against Italy as unavoidable was indicated tonight in official circles. An official announcement branded as "unfounded" reports that Premier Laval intended to ask for a postponement of the application of sanctions by the League of Nations to enable him to continue his efforts to effect a conciliation of the Italian-Ethiopian dispute.

Spain, by Decree, Establishes Financial Sanctions.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Oct. 26. — President Niceto Alcala Zamora signed a decree tonight establishing economic and financial sanctions against Italy in accordance with the plan of the League of Nations. The decree forbids paniards to participate in loans to Italy either directly or indirectly. It forbids banking credits of any kind to Italy, or loans to Italian organizations or companies, and prohibits subscription to stock of Italian companies.

ITALIAN TROOPS ADVANCE; MORE BOMBING IN SOUTH

Three Columns From Somaliland Push Rapidly Forward—Sharp Engagements With Ethiopians.

By the Associated Press.

MOGADISCIO, Italian Somaliland, Oct. 26.—Three columns of Italian troops were pushing rapidly forward tonight from Italian Somaliland toward the heart of Ethiopia, where they plan eventually to join forces with the army of Gen. Emilio de Bono, moving southward from Eritrea.

The advance today was preceded by active airplane reconnaissance. It was reported there were several bombardments and a number of sharp battles.

Half the troops moving in from Somaliland are native Somaliland fighters and the other half regular Italian soldiers.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Oct. 26.—Eritrean troops, natives under Italian command, are advancing to occupy the Faras Mai River region in Northern Ethiopia, the Government announced today. The movement was said to be a preliminary to the major advance on Makale, 60 miles southeast of Aduwa. Makale is the next goal of the Northern Army. An almost impassable region of high mountains and ravines, however, has slowed up Italian operations.

There were unconfirmed reports in Rome tonight that the advance on Makale was under way.

The troops from Edaga Hamus marched 10 miles southward toward their goal. Others from the vicinity of Aksum cut across country eastward for 15 miles. As a result, the two Eritrean columns were 35 and 60 miles from Makale, respectively.

Dispatches said the Eritrean troops had occupied Debra Sion and Tecla-Aimanot (not shown on maps). The advance began from Edaga Hamus, about 50 miles north of Makale. The troops filtered into enemy territory along mule trails leading to Makale.

The troops were reported to have been received as "liberators" by the Ethiopians, and the correspondents said not a shot was fired during the advance.

Italian flyers discovered no massed enemy forces in reconnaissance flights over the Aussa region.

Forces under Gen. Rudolfo Graziani in the south are driving forward to Mogalo, half way to Addis Ababa, and to Sasa Baneh, half way to Harar. Harar has been designated as the meeting point of the northern and southern armies. Success in this objective would link Italy's colonies of Eritrea and Somaliland.

The communique said "Chiefs and important residents" in the region of the Faras Mai River have "submitted and affirm that the population awaits our occupation with anxiety."

Northern Advance Said to Wait on Developments in Europe.

ITALIAN NORTHERN ARMY FIELD HEADQUARTERS, Ethiopia, Friday, Oct. 25, (Delayed in Transmission)—The Italian southern army of Somaliland natives under Gen. Rudolfo Graziani may soon threaten Harar, important center and capital of Eastern Ehiopia, it was learned today.

The troops have advanced 100 miles recently, it was stated, and their progress may be speeded up with the end of the rainy season, expected soon in the southern area, where it continues much later than in the north.

Much more progress by the Italian army on the Somaliland front has been made in the past week than by Gen. Emilio de Bono's forces in the north.

An announcement at Aduwa yesterday said that 10,000 slaves had been freed in Tigre Province.

The troops in the northern zone are anxious to move forward. Officers and men insist that if they meet a large concentration of Haile Selassie's warriors, they hope for a major victory that may decide the outcome of the invasion.

There appears to be no military obstacle to an advance by the northern army. Italian engineers assert the roads are now sufficiently well-built for a forward movement. However, political developments in Europe, including diplomatic conversations there, are understood to be the determining factor in the order for a new advance.

HUNDREDS REPORTED KILLED IN HURRICANE IN HAITI

Heavy Loss of Life Is Result of Torrential Rains — Southern Peninsula of Island Is Isolated.

By the Associated Press.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Oct. 26.—Belated reports said today that hundreds of persons were drowned in floods accompanying the torrential rains of the hurricane last week-end.

The latest report from Jacmel was that 200 bodies had been recovered. The first word of the heavy loss of life was received today frmo the Southern Peninsula, isolated since Monday.

An unofficial estimate is that there are 1500 dead in Jeremie, which apparently was hardest hit.

The disaster in both cities was caused by a flood Monday night, after several days of abnormal rains.

The hydro-electric plant at Jacmel was reported destroyed and the town was without light or water.

A bridge over the Grande Anse River was destroyed in the Jeremie district.

It will be several days before an accurate check of fatalities and damage can be made.

The Standard Fruit steamer Truxton from Tampa, arriving here tomorrow afternoon, will take relief materials to Jacmel and Jeremie.

Telegraphic communication with Cayes was re-established. Damage to the city was not extensive, but a famine was feared because of the destruction of food crops.

Thousands were reported to be homeless and hungry, with crops destroyed.

The hurricane presumably was the same one that passed through Eastern Cuba and Jamaica last Monday.

A dispatch from Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua, said winds of hurricane velocity which damaged crops around Cape Gracias yesterday had moderated today. Heavy seas, however, still endangered shipping.

Rising Flood Waters Following Storm Endanger Honduran City.

By the Associated Press.

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Oct. 26.—A telegram from the town of Progreso today said rising flood waters following the Caribbean hurricane were endangering the city and lives of the residents. The message reported waters had reached the telegraph office at the time, 11 a. m. Immediately afterward communication was interrupted. Other flood damage was reported in several sections and the banana crop suffered damage.

ARABS ON STRIKE IN PALESTINE

Walkout Called Because of Alleged Gun Smuggling by Jews.

JERUSALEM, Oct. 26 (Jewish Telegraph Agency).—The Palestine police wore protective helmets today and the British police carried guns as Arabs began a general strike against alleged smuggling of guns by Jews.

The strike was called when it was disclosed by customs officials that barrels labeled "cement" brought to Jaffa in a Belgian ship contained arms. The walkout, which was called for 900,000 Arabs, was only partly effective. Palestine was peaceful except at Nablus, where 400 Arab youths threw stones and smashed windows. No one was injured.

ITALY'S ENVOY LEAVES ETHIOPIA UNDER GUARD

Count Vinci-Gigliucci Locked in Separate Coach of Train Going to Border.

By the Associated Press.

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 26.—Count Luigi Vinci-Gigliucci, Italy's Minister to Ethiopia, after 16 days' defiance of Emperor Haile Selassie's order to leave, finally departed by train today.

Fearing hostile acts or demonstrations against the envoy, the Emperor sent along a large guard of soldiers armed with machine guns and rifles. They will accompany the Minister to the frontier of French Somaliland.

No diplomats were at the station to bid Vinci-Gigliucci farewell. The Emperor had requested them not to see the Minister off. He was accompanied by his military attache, Maj. Calderini, and was to be joined en route by two Consular agents from Mogalo.

When given his passports more than two weeks ago, Vinci-Gigliucci insisted he would wait on the Consular agents. Since that time he has been living almost as a prisoner in the home of Ras Desta Demtu, son-in-law of Haile Selassie, as a private citizen.

He was taken secretly from the residence today and locked in a separate coach, attached to the train, waiting outside the capital. The Minister was forbidden contact with his friends and all letters and telegrams, even those from Premier Mussolini, were withheld until he was on the train.

As a gesture of courtesy the Emperor sent one of his secretaries to the train to bid farewell to the Minister.

Ethiopia's ruler was greatly relieved when the Count departed, as he had feared his presence here might lead to an international incident.

DEMURRERS TAKEN IN ADVISEMENT IN MOVIE TRUST SUIT

ARGUMENTS CLOSE AFTER THREE DAYS

Special Assistant Attorney-General Pays $25 Contempt Fine for Muttering "It's a Lie."

The movie conspiracy trial in Federal Judge Moore's court will enter its fifth week tomorrow.

Judge Moore took under advisement yesterday, after unusually protracted arguments of counsel, defense demurrers to the Government's case and motions for a directed verdict of acquittal and dismissal of the indictment. It was thought likely the Judge would announce his rulings on these tomorrow.

The jury, which was excused when the Government rested Wednesday and which reported again Friday, only to be sent away again, will be back tomorrow. If the Judge rules against the defense, the trial doubtless will proceed at once with defense testimony. The defense would not be required to offer evidence, but could stand on its demurrers; however, indications were that witnesses would be called. If the Judge should rule in favor of the defense, the jury would return a directed verdict of acquittal at once.

Arguments Began Thursday.

Arguments began Thursday afternoon and consumed all day Friday and all morning yesterday. Eight corporations of Warner Bros., Paramount and R-K-O movie interests are on trial, charged with violation of the Sherman anti-trust law in withholding films from Fanchon & Marco's Ambassador, Missouri and Grand Central theaters. Whether or not the Government has made the necessary proof of a conspiracy in restraint of trade was the crux of the arguments.

Frederick H. Wood of New York, a Warner lawyer, spoke for two hours yesterday, in response to Government arguments against the demurrers and motions. Special Assistant Attorney-General Russell Hardy, in charge of the prosecution, asserted to the Court that Wood's statements were largely a repetition of his original three-hour speech in opening the arguments.

"Hardy told the Court," Wood said, "that he didn't represent an individual or group of individuals or a corporation, but that his client is the Government. hTat is correct, but Hardy comes here conscious of the monopoly maintained by Fanchon & Marco in the first-run field."

No Such Monopoly Exists.

"I object to that statement," Hardy cut in. "I am conscious of no such thing. There is nothing in the record concerning the existence of such a monopoly, and as a matter of fact, no such monopoly exists. These men acquired these theaters legitimately and have operated them without violating the law."

"Well, what if they did have a monopoly?" Judge Moore inquired.

"It would mean nothing," Hardy declared.

George C. Leisure of New York, of R-K-O counsel, concluding the arguments, spoke of the Fanchon & Marco agreement to let the Fox Theater receivers have R-K-O films. If that agreement was carried out, he said, it would be impossible for F. & M. to show the R-K-O pictures in the Ambassador, Missouri or Grand Central theaters. For that reason, if for no other, he insisted, the demurrers should be sustained as to the R-K-O Distributing Corporation and Ned E. Depinet, its president.

Offers to Pay Lawyer's Fine.

Special Assistant Attorney-General Harold Schilz yesterday paid the $25 fine for contempt of court imposed Friday when he muttered, "That's a damned lie," in comment on a defense attorney's statement. Deputy Clerk Joseph Walsh told a Post-Dispatch reporter that Harry M. Warner of New York, president of Warner Bros. and one of the defendants, offered through an intermediary to pay the fine for Schilz Friday. Walsh would not agree.

Removal of Judge Moore's court to the new Federal Building, which had been scheduled for tomorrow, has been postponed to the end of the week.

DAUGHTER HELPS IDENTIFY WOMAN KILLED ON BRIDGE

Mrs. Odessa Ravens Finds Mother Was Victim of Street Car Accident.

The identification of the woman who was killed by an Illinois Terminal Railroad System car Friday night was completed yesterday by her daughter. The woman was Mrs. Mary Harmon, 39 years old, 3500 North Wharf street. The daughter is Mrs. Odessa Ravens, 5619 Clemens avenue.

Mrs. Harmon was struck by the car on the high line trestle near Buchanan street and was thrown 30 feet to the ground. She died shortly after midnight at City Hospital. The operator of the car, William Wimberly, said she was sitting or lying on the rails and the accident was unavoidable.

EMURRERS TAKEN N ADVISEMENT IN MOVIE TRUST SUIT

Special Assistant Attorney-General Pays $25 Contempt Fine for Muttering "It's a Lie."

The movie conspiracy trial in Federal Judge Moore's court will enter its fifth week tomorrow.

Judge Moore took under advisement yesterday, after unusually protracted arguments of counsel, defense demurrers to the Government's case and motions for a directed verdict of acquittal and dismissal of the indictment. It was thought likely the Judge would announce his rulings on these tomorrow.

The jury, which was excused when the Government rested Wednesday and which reported again Friday, only to be sent away again, will be back tomorrow. If the Judge rules against the defense, the trial doubtless will proceed at once with defense testimony. The defense would not be required to offer evidence, but could stand on its demurrers; however, indications were that witnesses would be [illegible]. If the Judge should rule in favor of the defense, the jury would return a directed verdict of acquittal at once.

Arguments Began Thursday.

Arguments began Thursday afternoon and consumed all day Friday and all morning yesterday. Eight corporations of Warner Bros., Paramount and R-K-O movie interests are on trial, charged with violation of the Sherman anti-trust law in withholding films from Fanchon & Marco's Ambassador, Missouri and Grand Central theaters. Whether or not the Government has made the necessary proof of a conspiracy in restraint of trade was the crux of the arguments.

Frederick H. Wood of New York, a Warner lawyer, spoke for two hours yesterday, in response to Government arguments against the demurrers and motions. Special Assistant Attorney-General Russell Hardy, in charge of the prosecution, asserted to the Court that Wood's statements were largely a repetition of his original three-hour speech in opening the arguments.

"Hardy told the Court," Wood said, "that he didn't represent an individual or group of individuals or a corporation, but that his client was the Government. hTat is correct, but Hardy comes here conscious of the monopoly maintained by Fanchon & Marco in the first-run field."

No Such Monopoly Exists.

"I object to that statement," Hardy cut in. "I am conscious of no such thing. There is nothing in the record concerning the existence of such a monopoly, and as a matter of fact, no such monopoly exists. These men acquired these theaters legitimately and have operated them without violating the law."

"Well, what if they did have a monopoly?" Judge Moore inquired.

"It would mean nothing," Hardy declared.

George C. Leisure of New York, of R-K-O counsel, concluding the arguments, spoke of the Fanchon & Marco agreement to let the Fox Theater receivers have R-K-O films. If that agreement was carried out, he said, it would be impossible for F. & M. to show the R-K-O pictures in the Ambassador, Missouri or Grand Central theaters. For that reason, if for no other, he insisted, the demurrers should be sustained as to the R-K-O Distributing Corporation and Ned E. Depinet, its president.

Offers to Pay Lawyer's Fine.

Special Assistant Attorney-General Harold Schilz yesterday paid a $25 fine for contempt of court imposed Friday when he muttered, "That's a damned lie," in comment on a defense attorney's statement. Deputy Clerk Joseph Walsh told a Post-Dispatch reporter that Harry M. Warner of New York, president of Warner Bros. and one of the defendants, offered through an intermediary to pay the fine for Schilz Friday. Walsh would not agree.

Removal of Judge Moore's court to the new Federal Building, which had been scheduled for tomorrow, has been postponed to the end of the week.

One Gangster Still a Fugitive.

One of those indicted, Tommy Wilders, Shelton gangster, is a fugitive, and the sixth defendant was John C. Johnson, Negro farmer at whose home in St. Charles County Dr. Kelley was held for a time by his abductors. Johnson was killed by machine gunners May 12, 1934, after he had made a statement naming Rosegrant, McDonald and Davit as among the kidnapers.

Davit faces two other charges in the county in connection with the attempted abduction of Oscar Johnson, 38 Portland place, on Aug. 3, 1931, near St. Albans. The charges, kidnaping and assault to kill, have been continued to the January term. Davit was charged also with robbery in that case, but was acquitted. McDonald, charged jointly with him in each case, was convicted on the robbery charge and sentenced to 10 years in prison.

JUDGES AGREE TO MOVE DOMESTIC RELATIONS COURT

Suggest Enlarging Elevator Service in Civil Courts Building to Which It Will Be Transferred.

The Circuit Judges at a meeting yesterday agreed to the city's proposal to move the Court of Domestic Relations from the Municipal Courts Building to the Civil Courts Building. It was explained by Baxter Brown, president of the Board of Public Service, and City Counselor Hay that plans were in progress to finish the eighth floor of the new courts building, where space will be provided for the two divisions of the Court of Domestic Relations. The divorce courts have been in their present quarters 14 years.

Incidentally, more elevator service in the Civil Courts Building was asked for by the judges. There is space for four elevators in addition to the six now in service and the judges suggested that the service be augmented by at least two cars. The request was favorably received by the city officials.

It is estimated the cost of finishing the eighth floor will be about $150,000 and installing each elevator $20,000. There are three unfinished floors in the Civil Courts Building, which was occupied in 1930. A mezzanine floor also is unfinished. Judge Granville Hogan presided at the meeting.

$50,000 'PURELY A GIFT,' EX-SENATOR WATSON EXPLAINS

In Income Tax Inquiry He Denies Amount Received From Ex-Campaign Manager Was Fee.

FRIEND 'OFTEN' GAVE HIM MONEY

Only Connection With Radio Tube Factory Deal in 1929 Was to 'Bring People Together.'

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26. — Former Senator James E. Watson of Indiana disclosed today the Justice Department had been investigating his income tax returns for two years, but flatly denied he had evaded taxes.

The former Republican leader of the Senate said he had received part of a fee that his old friend and former campaign manager, Jacob R. Finkelstein, had received from B. J. Grigsby, a radio manufacturer, in a business transaction, but that it was purely a gift and had been reported as such.

Finkelstein, Watson said, received the fee for negotiating the purchase of a radio tube factory for Grigsby. The former Senator denied the amount was $150,000. He said he thought he had received $50,000.

"I was Republican leader of the Senate," Watson said. "I would have been a great fool to engage in tax evasion. Even if I had no moral scruples, I would have had too much political sense for that."

Friend Under Indictment.

The Government's investigation into Watson's income tax returns was disclosed following indictment of Finkelstein in Chicago on tax evasion charges. Federal officials refused to discuss the status of the Watson case.

Watson denied reports that the fee was in connection with lobbying by Finkelstein.

"That is absolutely untrue," Watson said. "If Finkelstein ever lobbied, I never knew it. He got the fee in connection with the purchase of a tube factory. It had nothing to do with the Government or lobbying.

"There never was any talk of a fee between Finkelstein and me. When he got his fee, he said, 'you are entitled to half of this.' He had given me a lot of money, he was a great friend of mine, but there was no fee about it."

Brought "People Together."

Watson said his only connection with the purchase of the tube factory was a trip to New York during which he "brought some people together." He said he did nothing else, and did not even know how the deal came out.

Contending that he was and had been ready to pay whatever the department thought was right, Watson said he had suggested that the Justice Department make a full investigation of the case.

"As far as I am concerned, there is nothing to it," he said. "It's just like thousands of other cases. The Government says I haven't paid my full tax and I say I have. I'm ready to pay whenever they fix the amount, but I don't think I owe anything because there was no gift tax at that time."

"Abundance of Caution."

Watson said his income tax return was made out by the Internal Revenue Bureau expert assigned to aid Senators make out their returns. Afterward, he said, a representative of the bureau went over the return with him in detail and suggested that "out of an abundance of caution" he might pay $200 more, which he did.

Recently, he said, he had understood the case was dormant, and he did not think it would be raised again unless it was an attempt to "besmirch" him.

"I don't think the Democrats have it in for me," he added.

Samuel A. King, Watson's counsel, said today that "full and complete information" had been given to the Government and that he thought the Government was satisfied. If there is any question about the accuracy of the returns it cannot involve but a small amount and is a matter between the Senator and the Government. There is not a thing in the case that reflects on the character and integrity of the Senator. Governmental business was not involved and there was no lobbying as had been reported."

536 AMERICANS WIN SWEEPSTAKE PRIZES

First Round of Drawings at Dublin; 43 Pt. of Awards to U. S.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Oct. 26.—Americans were assured at least $1,000,000 from the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes in the first round of drawing today even before the horses go to the post at Newmarket next Wednesday.

Pretty Irish nurses, working in relays under a huge figure of Galips, symbolizing he Irish version of the Arabian Nights, picked 536 tickets with United States addresses out of the huge, gaily-decorated drum in Mansion House from a grand total of 1261 tickets, representing 97 horses, drawn in a day of high pressure work.

Thus more than 43 per cent of the prizes went to Americans. Each of them was assured of winning almost $2000 and a few probably will win much more, depending upon the success of the horses they drew for the Cambridgeshire race.

Thirteen tickets were drawn on each horse. The amount eventually going to the United States will be considerably boosted for Americans hold 20 tickets on four of the first five favorites in the betting callover in London last night. Americans hold seven tickets on Law Court, seven on Pegasus, four on British Quota and two on Finalist.

Americans who drew tickets on the favorite, Pegasus, were listed as: "Hope," 510 Fifth avenue, New York; "Nit Wits," Socony Vacuum, Inc., Hartford, Conn.; "Teddy," 1325 Grand Concourse, New York; Marie Oaster, 4950 Chestnut street, Philadelphia; Frances Cobb, 292 Howard street, Cambridge, Mass.; John Biers, 908 East Forty-eighth street, Brooklyn, N. Y., and J. Novak, 236 South Castle street, Baltimore.

The draw will be resumed at 10 a. m. Monday with 10 residual prizes and 1300 consolation ones to come out of the drum. Officials hope to complete the work Monday but there is a possibility it may be necessary to continue Tuesday.

The prize fund this year is $6,490,356.17. Each holder of a ticket on the horse which wins the race will receive $147,300. Tickets on the holders of second-place horse will get $73,650 each, and the third horse will pay its holders $49,100. Each drawer of a horse will get $1825 regardless of how the horse finishes.

There will also be 10 residual prizes of about $10,792 each and 1300 consolation prizes of $491 apiece.

The draw was based on a list of 97 horses, but since many of them will not run, holders of tickets on non-runners will receive a prize equivalent to holders of tickets on horses which do not place.

Two Brothers in City Hold One of Winning Tickets.

Edward Graul, 21 years old, and his brother, Arnold, 24, residing at 4003A Humphrey street, are among the persons in the United States drawing winning tickets yesterday in the Irish Hospital Sweepstakes. Both are employed at the Forest City Manufacturing Co. as machinists.

Edward Graul said it was the first ticket he had ever bought in a sweepstakes. The ticket will pay nearly $2000 regardless of whether the horse he has drawn wins the race. His ticket is on British Quota, one of the favorites for the race, which will be run Wednesday at Newmarket, England.

If the horse should win the race, Graul and his brother would win about $147,300. If the horse is second, the ticket will pay $73,650; or if it is third, the brothers will receive $49,100.

Edward Graul said he purchased the ticket from a fellow employe for $2.50. His brother later asked to pay for part of the ticket, and will share in any winnings. Graul said if he wins one of the major prizes he will buy a farm for his father, who lives in Mascoutah, Ill.

UNIDENTIFIED MAN KILLED BY AUTO ON EASTON AVENUE

Witnesses Say He Was Hit by One Machine and Run Over by Another in Heavy Traffic.

An unidentified man about 25 years old was killed at 7:30 o'clock last night when struck by an automobile as he crossed Easton avenue a short distance west of Vandeventer avenue.

Traffic was heavy at the time, and witnesses said it appeared that he was struck by an east-bound machine and run over by a west-bound automobile. The man died in the receiving room at City Hospital without regaining consciousness. He was aboxe five feet, eight inches in height and wore a blue serge suit. A handkerchief in his pocket was marked with the initial "H" and a ring bore the monogram letter "M."

A crowd had gathered by the time police arrived. Witnesses pointed out a machine as the one which had run over the man after he had been knocked to the pavement. The woman driver and three passengers denied the statement and were not held.

The license number of an automobile said by witnesses to have been that of the east-bound machine which struck the man was traced by police and the owner arrested at his home. Taken to the Deer Street Police Station in his automobile, he said he had stopped at the scene after the accident to inquire why the crowd had gathered. He denied that he had had an accident.

The machine was identified by five witnesses as the one which hit the man. However, it bore no marks indicating it had struck anyone.

10 SAVED FROM SINKING SHIP

BOSTON, Oct. 26.—The rescue of 10 seamen from the sinking British three-masted schooner Estonia off Nantucket Island early today by the Norwegian motor tanker South America, was told in meager wireless messages received here.

The salt-laden Estonia was bound for Bangor, Me., from Turks Island, British West Indies. A gale several nights ago is believed to have opened seams in the schooner. With the rescued crew aboard, the South America headed for Halifax, N. S., where the captain planned to put in Monday.

19 SEIZED IN THEFTS OF RELIEF CHECKS

17 of Negroes Said to Have Admitted Stealing Them From the Mails.

Nineteen Negroes were arrested by police last week on warrants charging possession of St. Louis Relief Administration checks stolen from the mails, Assistant United States District Attorney Henry G. Morris announced yesterday. He said 17 of the Negroes had admitted their guilt.

All those arrested were held in jail in default of bond, as were three other Negroes against whom warrants were issued a week ago. Postoffice inspectors and relief officials co-operated with police in the campaign to end general theft of checks from the mails in thickly populated Negro areas where, by misrepresentation, the thieves were able to intercept mail deliveries to obtain mail from letter boxes.

Morris said the Negroes had cashed 60 checks, ranging in value from $1.50 to $26. One 15-year-old boy told police he had taken the check addressed to his father, and a man admitted he took a rent receipt to identify himself in cashing a stolen check, according to Morris.

Merchants should use every possible means of identifying those who present checks, since they will lose whatever money they give in exchange for checks which are forged, Morris said.

INVESTMENT BANKERS CONFER WITH SEC ON CHANGING LAW

Meeting Disclosed at Opening of Five-day Session of Organization in West Virginia.

By the Associated Press.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Oct. 26.—Efforts of leading investment bankers and the Securities and Exchange Commission to agree on proposals for revision of Federal securities laws to speed the flow of new capital to industry were disclosed today at the opening session of the Investment Bankers Association of America.

It was learned that a group of representative investment bankers met with the Commission last Thursday and filed a plan for the revision of the law to eliminate certain specific problems. It was understood that removal of the 20-day period between filing of the registration statement and the actual issuance of a security was urged to prevent certain dealers from "beating the gun" by making sales in advance of issue.

The convention began its five-day session with 850 delegates, the largest attendance since 1929 in contrast with only about 500 last year.

AUSTRIA'S MODERN ARMS SHOWN IN PARADE IN VIENNA

Squadron of 36 Planes Takes Part in Demonstration of Military Equipment.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, Oct. 26.—Austria's modern military equipment was displayed in a military parade here today. There were little tanks and small cannon, mounted on rubber-tired wheels and drawn by single horses. A squadron of 36 planes dipped in salute over Heroes' Square. Some were three-motored bombers.

What had been announced as a review to restore the old imperial colors to the regiments of the republic turned out to be a disclosure of a variety of new weapons.

Franz von Papen, German Minister to Austria, appeared in an old German officer's spiked helmet.

CLUBS GIVE TOWNSEND INDORSEMENT POWER

Pension Plan Leader in Full Control at His Chicago Convention.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—Delegates to the first "Townsend Pension Plan" convention voted here today to give Dr. Francis E. Townsend and the secretary of his movement, R. E. Clements, the sole right to indorse candidates in the next congressional and national elections, for the support of Townsend clubs in the country.

Associates of the pair said this action would give Townsend and Clements a political following they estimated at between six and seven million persons. A resolution was adopted which read:

"The final right of indorsement and support of any candidates must rest with the national headquarters, whose approval shall carry with it the full Townsend support, and precludes any Townsend club or organization or office from supporting anyone else."

The pension plan was indorsed by Earle J. Christenberry, former secretary to the late United States Senator Huey P. Long, as "just another road" to Long's "share the wealth" objective. Christenberry has been managing the convention. He insisted there was no political significance in his connection with the meeting. "I'm just back in my old business of convention management," he said.

Leaders of Townsend's campaign promised the convention they would win no later than 1936. "No power on earth can stop the Townsend plan," Representative Martin S. Smith, Democratic Congressman from Washington's Third District, declared in a speech. Both Smith and Gilmour Young, a Townsend organizer in Los Angeles, told the convention the next Congress could be persuaded to enact the Townsend bill.

"It will probably delay enactment until June," said Smith. Townsend Plan supporters will be asked to pay 10 cents a month, he said, to "organize and carry on the work" until then. Smith said "the greatest of humanitarian Presidents, President Roosevelt," would sign the bill, in Smith's opinion, if Congress passes it.

Smith, who helped draft the Townsend bill which would put the pension plan into effect, told the delegates that before long, the retirement age it sets would be as low as 45—all persons over that age to quit work and receive $200 a month on the sole condition they spend it completely within 30 days. Under the plan as now proposed, the retirement age would be 60.

TWO CHILDREN KILLED IN FIRE

Third Jumped From Fourth Floor, Gravely Injured.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Fire that swept the top floor of a Brooklyn brownstone residence tonight caused the death of two children, Patrick Vlattas, 15 years old, and his brother, George, 13. Their sister, Elizabeth, 12, was taken to a hospital suffering from burns and from itnernal injuries when she jumped from a fourth-story window to the back yard.

Another child, a 10-year-old adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Vlattas, ran through the flames and reached the street unharmed. A fifth child, Athena Perdikakis, 12, of Jackson Heights, escaped by walking a narrow ledge to an adjoining apartment house roof. Both Vlattas and his wife, Mary, were out shopping at the time.

What Is the Adjustable Shoe?

The Adjustable Shoe is NEW . . new in respect that it incorporates adjustable features needed for normal as well as a subnormal foot. It is constructed along scientific and beautiful lines by a foot specialist who has spent 37 years in scientific research on the foot and shoe.

The Adjustable Shoe is the only shoe that may be purchased which can be adjusted to conform to your individual needs or meet any condition regardless of whether that condition is one which causes weak ankles, corns, bunions and ills such as stinging, burning numbness, pains in the feet, calf, ankle, knee, thigh, hip, back and back of the neck.

The Adjustable Shoe is therefore an individual shoe . . a shoe made to absolutely permit the natural functioning of the foot.

What Others Have Told Us:

Many have told us that they have visited Canada, Europe and places in America seeking relief from their pains, only to find that the relief obtained was but a temporary respite of their distress. These self same people have expressed surprise at the quick relief found after wearing and experiencing the thrill of the first step in a pair of ADJUSTABLE SHOES right here in St. Louis.

Investigate: You owe it to yourself to investigate the Adjustable Shoe. Come in at any time without obligation. Try on a pair of these wonderful shoes . . . THEN YOU JUDGE FOR YOURSELF. Those of you who have been having foot trouble or are wearing improperly constructed shoes know that they are constantly "pulling you down" instead of building you up. Improperly constructed shoes will also slowly but surely make a normal foot subnormal. Orthopedic physicians the world over realize this even though most others do not.

SEQUEL TO ROOSEVELT BOYS' CROSSING CRASH

Official Tells Lodge's Daughter, Who Demanded Inquiry, to Mind Her Business.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Oct. 26.—The automobile accident in which two sons of President Roosevelt were involved recently had an acrimonious sequel today when State Motor Vehicle Registrar Frank A. Goodwin advised a daughter of the late United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge to mind her own business.

John Roosevelt, youngest son of the President, was driving his brother, James, to the airport a few days ago when their automobile crashed into an electrical railroad train. Neither was seriously hurt.

Goodwin made public today a letter he had written to Mrs. Constance Lodge Williams, daughter of the former Senatc and aunt of Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., Republican aspirant for the senatorial seat his grandfather held for 30 years.

In a letter to Goodwin, Mrs. Williams asked: "How many times does one have to drive through a red light into a train before being disciplined by the Registrar of Motor Vehicles? Do the same rules apply to others as to the Roosevelts? I was under the impression that you were trying to improve traffic conditions in Massachusetts. My mistake."

Registrar's Reply.

To this Goodwin retorted: "I am under the impression you are more interested in politics than you are in making the highways safe.

"Thousands of accidents are happening in Massachusetts, and this is the first time I ever knew you to write to anybody. Why did you pick out Roosevelt?

"You say you thought I was trying to make highways safe. Well, there have been 90 less killed this year than last year up to date and nobody gets any cases fixed here now, either.

"I suppose, however, you were very much disappointed to think that Gov. Curley (Democratic Governor James M. Curley) would remove the man who was here (Morgan T. Ryan, former registrar) and place me in the position because I supported Charles Sumner Bird against your husband years ago, and because I opposed your dear friend, Gaspar Bacon.

Women and Politics.

"You and the rest of the women who think they are politicians are responsible for the ruination of the Republican party, and there are a few of you who think they own the party because their relatives at one time or another held important positions therein.

"I am running this office and you just take care of your own business."

The Gaspar Bacon mentioned by Goodwin is the former Republican Lieutenant-Governor of the State, who at the last election was defeated by Curley for the governorship. Goodwin, himself a Republican, was in that race as an independent.

Gift of Victor Herbert Mss.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—A collection of 50 music manuscripts written by the late Victor Herbert has been deposited with the Library of Congress by Mrs. Ella Herbert Bartlett of New York City, the composer's only daughter. The collection includes about 7500 pages, all in the composer's handwriting, and contains the full orchestral scores of several of Herbert's most popular operettas. The earliest manuscript is "The Captive," a dramatic cantata composed in 1891.

LOBSTER CONSPIRACY ALLEGED

Trade Commission Charges Price-Fixing.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—The Federal Trade Commission today took steps to end what it called a conspiracy to fix lobster prices.

It charged that Associated Lobster Dealers of Massachusetts were fixing the prices at which lobsters were bought from Canada, supplier of 80 per cent of this sea food to the United States. The commission asserted the association also fixed the prices for the remaining 20 per cent, taken along the coasts of Maine and Massachusetts.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Oct. 26.—A denial that the price of lobsters on the Boston market had ever been fixed was made tonight by Orris E. Gerrish, secretary of the Associated Lobster Dealers of Massachusetts.

JEWEL BOX DISPLAY OF CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Exhibit of 2000 Plants Opening Today to Continue Through November.

The annual autumn display of chrysanthemums at the Jewel Box in Forest Park, exhibited by the City Park Department, will open at 8 a. m. today. If weather conditions are favorable the display will be continued through November.

About 2000 plants are on display, the early varieties predominating. As these begin to wilt and lose their best form, they will be replaced with 22 later varieties, which have not reached their best flowering stage.

The largest number of one variety now displayed is the "Caprice," a loose-petaled bloom in pink, white, bronze, rose, purple and yellow.

"Mrs. Calvin Coolidge" is a dark red, with the undersides of the petals yellow. "Angelo" is a tightly clustered blossom in pale shell-pink running to white. "Firebird" is a light bronze with a slightly reverse yellow petal, and a small bright yellow, about the size of a quarter, used principally for edging the beds, is "Zora." Another small variety in pink is "Starbright." Three shades of the tall-stemmed "Turner" variety with curved petals and the largest flowers are shown in white, yellow and pink.

A rock mound forms a background for the central bed, and the sides of the Jewel Box, next to the footpaths, are banked with chrysanthemums.

There are three elevations to the mound, the lowest planted in yellow chrysanthemums, the middle elevation in pink and white, and the crest of the mound in bronze, pink, yellow and white chrysanthemums. On the mound are ferns and other foliage plants.

Behind the main display winding paths lead between arrangements of chrysanthemums placed among tropical plants.

FALL TRIES TO SAVE HOME IN FORECLOSURE ON RANCH

Contends House Is Not Included in Mortgage; Files Motion to Vacate Decree.

By the Associated Press.

ALAMOGORDO, N. M., Oct. 26.—Albert B. Fall, central figure in the oil scandals in President Harding's administration, took action today to prevent his eviction from his Three Rivers ranch home.

Fall and his wife filed a motion in District Court to vacate a decree which gave title to his friend, the late Edward L. Doheny. Fall, after his resignation as Secretary of the Interior in the Harding Cabinet, later served a prison term for accepting a bribe, but Doheny, accused of making the bribe, was acquitted.

For several weeks the threat of eviction has faced the Falls as a result of sale of a mortgage on the ranch. The mortgage, held by interests formerly controlled by Doheny, was foreclosed and the property recently acquired by the Palomas Land & Cattle Co.

Fall contends the ranch home itself was not included in the mortgage.

Heads National Guard Association.

By the Associated Press.

SANTA FE, N. M., Oct. 26.—Brigadier-General Thomas E. Rilea of Salem, Ore., was elected president of the National Guard Association of the United States here today, succeeding Major-General Roy D. Keehn of Illinois. Brigadier-General Fred M. Waterbury of New York was elected vice-president. Providence, R. I., was chosen for the 1936 convention.

PRESIDENT STRESSES NECESSITY OF DEFENSE

Indorses Navy Day Which Will Be Observed With Special Programs Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—"In the unsettled conditions existing throughout the world, it is imperative that we should heed the needs of national defense," President Roosevelt wrote Secretary of the Navy Swanson in indorsing the commemoration of Navy day.

"By the passage of the Vinson-Trammel bill which authorizes the upbuilding of our Navy to the limits of existing treaties, our national legislation gave very definite expression of its purpose to increase the strength of the American Navy to a degree commensurate with America's needs, interests and responsibilities."

Navy day is celebrated annually on Oct., 27 the birthday of Theodore Roosevelt, but because the date falls on Sunday, most of the program will be given Monday. At the Philadelphia Navy Yard two destroyers, the Shaw and Cassin, will be launched and the keel of the cruiser Wichita will be laid. A crash dive demonstration by a submarine in North River, New York, and a dive bombing demonstration by an 18-plane squadron over the naval air station at Washington are also on the program.

Assistant Secretary Henry Roosevelt will invite all American citizens to join in the observance in a radio address at 1:30 p. m. (St. Louis time), tomorrow. On the same program, Rear Admiral Joseph K. Taussig, Assistant Chief of Naval Operations, in Washington, will receive radio, telephone and code reports of commandants of naval districts and stations scattered over the world on their preparations for Naval day.

Monday at 1 p. m. (St. Louis time), an account of the launching at Philadelphia will be broadcast, and later a description of the training of recruits for the Navy at the Great Lakes Training Station at Chicago.

Rear Admiral Martin Woodward, commander of the destroyer squadrons of the battle force, will describe by radio an inspection tour of the destroyer Crowninshield, docked at San Diego, Cal. Addresses will be made by Admiral Standley, Chief of Naval Operations, at Atlanta; Rear Admiral Charles Russell Train, at Akron, O.; Rear Admiral M. M. Taylor, at Cleveland, O., and Brigadier-General Frederic L. Bradman, Marine Corps, at Reading, Pa.

Warships in port and the Navy's shore stations will be open to the public on Monday.

U. S. IS FIRST IN AVIATION HONORS, REPLACING FRANCE

Americans Hold 47 Records, Including Seven Awaiting Recognition; Italy Is Third.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—The United States has overtaken France and gone into the lead in the race for world aviation honors, an unofficial compilation of records disclosed today.

Data supplied by the National Aeronautical Association gave this country 47 records—including seven new ones awaiting recognition by the Federation Aeronautique Internationale and an eighth, that of the Navy's 3387-mile seaplane flight from Panama to California, ready for filing. The records include lighter-than-air craft.

French flyers had 38 recognized marks.

Italy, its attention diverted from peace-time aviation to preparations for war, dropped to 21. But among the Italian marks was the maximum speed record of 440.681 miles an hour established by Francesco Agello in a tiny seaplane a year ago.

Foremost among the American records awaiting attention is a land speed mark of 352.46 miles an hour. It was attained by Howard Hughes over a measured California course Sept. 13.

IG VOTE CAST IN AAA POLL ON CORN-HOG PLAN

Early Returns Give Heavy Majorities for Continuing Production Control Next Year.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 26.—The fate of a corn-hog program in 1936 was in the balance tonight as 2000 polling places began a slow counting of ballots in the national referendum held by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

From 8 a. m. to 10 p. m. corn and hog producers in 48 states went to county centers to vote "Yes" or "No" on the question, "Do you favor a corn-hog adjustment program to follow the 1935 program which expires Nov. 30, 1935?"

At Washington, reports of heavy voting were interpreted by AAA officials as an indication that the administration would be given a mandate to continue its program.

Early returns from 16 States showed 26,483 for, and 4680 against the production-limitation program.

In Tennessee first returns recorded 8051 for the program, 776 opposed.

Returns From Missouri.

Missouri farmers cast a heavy vote in favor of continuing the program.

Incomplete returns from 13 counties showed a total of 4335 for and 529 against. Contract signers voted 4087 to 303, and non-contract signers 248 to 126, for the program.

Buckner precinct in Jackson County voted 8 for and 16 against.

In several counties, including Pemiscot, Howell, Randolph, Macon, Callaway, Cole, Ray and Boone, the incomplete returns gave a favorable

Early Returns Give Heavy Majorities for Continuing Production Control Next Year.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 26.—The fate of a corn-hog program in 1936 was in the balance tonight as 3000 polling places began a slow counting of ballots in the national referendum held by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

From 8 a. m. to 10 p. m. corn and hog producers in 48 states went to county centers to vote "Yes" or "No" on the question, "Do you favor a corn-hog adjustment program to follow the 1935 program which expires Nov. 30, 1935?"

At Washington, reports of heavy voting were interpreted by AAA officials as an indication that the administration would be given a mandate to continue its program.

Early returns from 16 States showed 26,483 for, and 4680 against the production-limitation program.

In Tennessee first returns recorded 8051 for the program, 776 opposed.

Returns From Missouri.

Missouri farmers cast a heavy vote in favor of continuing the program.

Incomplete returns from 13 counties showed a total of 4335 for and 529 against. Contract signers voted 4087 to 303, and non-contract signers 248 to 126, for the program.

Buckner precinct in Jackson County voted 8 for and 16 against.

In several counties, including emiscot, Howell, Randolph, Macon, Callaway, Cole, Ray and Boone, the incomplete returns gave a favorable ratio of more than 10 to 1.

The incomplete Illinois vote was 3022 for, 1063 against. Early Arkansas returns showed 3368 for, 394 against.

500,000 Voted Last Year.

How many of the 4,500,000 farmers who produce corn and hogs had voted was not expected to be known before Monday. But AAA officials expressed the opinion that the number of votes would be considerably greater than the 579,716 cast last October. In that referendum, 389,139 voted for an adjustment program this year, while 190,577 voted against control.

AAA spokesmen have said that if the new program is approved, a contract for four years probably will be offered to producers.

The 1935 contracts provided for a reduction of not less than 10 per cent nor more than 30 per cent in corn acreage, and a reduction of 10 per cent in hog production from the base period, 1932 and 1933.

The AAA said a contract was desired for 1936 to prevent a heavy increase in the supply of corn, which, it was held, would bring about a surplus in hog production in 1937.

9 PERSONS JAILED IN STRIKE IN NEW JERSEY REFUSE TO EAT

Former Consumers' Research Employes Say Bail Is Too High, Charges "Trumped Up."

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, N. J., Oct. 26.—Nine prisoners, one a woman, jailed in the strike of employes of Consumers' Research, Inc., went on a hunger strike in the jail at Belvidere today. They have been in jail from two to four days and are charged with unlawful assembly and malicious mischief. They were arrested in connection with a riot Oct. 15 in which the plant was stoned.

John Heasty, president of the striking Technical, Editorial and Office Assistants' Union, and a prisoner, said: "This hunger strike is not against our treatment in jail. We are on a hunger strike against trumped-up charges, excessive bail, wholesale arrests, the New Jersey injunction law and the refusal of the company board to arbitrate the strike.

CHARLESTON (MO.) MAN GETS LIFE IN INSURANCE MURDER

One of Four Others Accused Turns State's Evidence; Fred Mansker First to Be Tried.

By the Associated Press.

CHARLESTON, Mo., Oct. 26.—Fred Mansker, 35-year-old garage mechanic, was sentenced to life in the penitentiary this afternoon for the murder last July 3 of Lige McCutcheon, who, the State contended, was killed for his $2500 insurance.

The jury was given the case after a session last night, and returned the verdict at noon today.

Mansker is the first of five men to be tried for the McCutcheon murder. Albert Vowels, one of the five, pleaded guilty in open court before Judge Frank Kelly Monday.

Chester Brightman, Negro, turned State's evidence yesterday during Mansker's trial, and named Mansker and Vowels as the actual killers.

Brightman, C. V. Williams, the insurance man who sold the policy to McCutcheon, and Bud Greese of Danville, Ill., remain to be tried.

SUIT TO BREAK $10,000 WILL

Thomas McDonald Incapable of Making Testament, Cousins Say.

Suit was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by six cousins of Thomas McDonald, 74 years old, who died Oct. 8, to set aside his will in which he bequeathed his estate, estimated at $10,000, to Mrs. Julia Durnin, 4945 Columbia avenue, a friend..

The petition alleged that McDonald was not capable of making a legal will, being despondent as a result of grief caused by the death of his wife. The will naming Joseph Brown as executor was made Sept. 7. Plaintiffs in the suit are George McDonald, Kate Hanley, Mary Packet, William C. Morrisey, John Morrisey and Maggie Hoffan. Thomas McDonald resided at 4854 Hamilton avenue.

110,737 ON RELIEF GET WPA JOBS IN TWO DAYS

Hopkins Reports Pickup in Campaign; Still Far Behind 3,500,000 Goal.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26. — A speed-up in the work relief campaign was indicated today when Administrator Harry L. Hopkins reported employment figures showing a 110,737 gain in Works Progress jobs in two days.

Checking over November allotments, which have been forecast as the last Federal contributions to direct relief, Hopkins said 1,421,470 persons were at work last Saturday, compared with 1,310,733 on the preceding Thursday.

But the two-day increase of 110,737 contrasted with a daily figure of 173,210, which would be required to reach the original goal of 3,500,000 jobs by Nov. 1. In the two-week period between Oct. 3 and Oct. 17, however, there was a job increase of only 184,499, or 13,178 a day.

Officials predicted that Comptroller-General J. R. McCarl's release today of most of the funds allotted to WPA would be of great assistance in getting within striking distance of the goal in about two weeks.

Hopkins indicated on his return to the capital Thursday that he would provide his full quota of jobs before Dec. 1, the date when states and communities must assume responsibility for the 1,000,000 "unemployable" families and individuals on the dole.

As of last Saturday, however, he had the task of creating 2,078,530 jobs in time for workers to get their pay checks at the end of November. Until the needy actually get their bi-monthly pay, he said, direct relief allotments will be continued for their support.

The Works Progress Administration, which expects to spend $1,250,000,000 and provide 2,500,000 jobs, accounted for more than two-thirds of the two-day increase reported today. The Civilian Conservation Corps, which has practically achieved its maximum strength, remained unchanged at 582,648. WPA employment rose from 594,427 to 679,560. Other Federal agencies, threatened with reduced allotments if they do not make a speedy start, increased their employment from 133,658 to 159,262.

McCarl approved $159,315,110 in WPA projects today, lifting the total available for selection by state administrators to $2,079,633,893. At the same time the Comptroller-General released an additional $28,824,833 of WPA funds, bringing WPA's active allotment to $983,922,446.

Anti-War Parade in New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—A long parade wound from Harlem to midtown Manhattan today in a demonstration against the Italian-Ethiopian war. At the end of the parade, speakers, including a niece of Pope Pius XI, Philomena Ratti, addressed a huge crowd massed in Central Park.

PENSION APPLICANTS PETITION PARK TO CALL LEGISLATURE

Forty Sign Appeal Circulated at Jefferson City Urging Special Session.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 26.—Impatient because expected old age pensions have not been paid, 40 Central Missouri applicants petitioned Gov. Park today to call a special session of the Legislature immediately.

George W. Roberts of Jefferson City, who is more than 70 years old, circulated the petition at the Cole County Courthouse. Although most of the signers were from here, some resided in adjoining counties.

Roberts said he planned to ask the Attorney-General's department to present the petition to the Governor Monday.

Attorney-General Roy McKittrick recently suggested that a special session be called to increase the $2,500,000 State appropriation and the St. Louis Old Age Assistance Board also has recommended this action. About 75,000 Missourians have applied for the pension.

Test Suit Over Sales Tax.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 26.—The Kansas City Power & Light Co. filed suit for an injunction today to restrain the State from collecting the 1 per cent sales tax on electric power sold to the Kansas City Public Service Co., operator of the street railway system. The petition asserted the street railway company had refused to pay the tax. Whether the sale is consummated at the point the payment is received or where the article is consumed is considered the question to be tested by the suit. If the electricity is held to be sold in interstate commerce, the tax will not apply.

PLUTO WATER

CONSTIPATION

Used or Recommended for Years by Thousands of Doctors

When a doctor is constipated, what does he take for relief? That ought to prove beyond question how safe, how gentle, how effective a laxative is.

Now here's an amazing fact! For many years, thousands of doctors have used or recommended Pluto Water. For they know, from personal experience, that Pluto is the sure way to eliminate dangerous accumulated poisons. They know it is an efficient, sure medicine. They know its action is gentle and quick.

WHAT DOCTORS SAY

Dr. T. C. G. of Iowa says: "I prescribe Pluto daily for my patients." Your own doctor too, will tell you how good it is. And—will warn you against habit-forming drugs of all kinds. That's why you also can always depend on this famous laxative.

So, the next time you are constipated, do as doctors do. Follow the gentle "water way" to relief. Take it in this easy, efficient dose—1/5 Pluto with 4/5 glass hot water. In one hour or less you'll get relief. And what a remarkable difference it makes!

Remember, too, Pluto Water is a highly beneficial, saline laxative mineral water fortified and bottled at famous French Lick Springs, Indiana. All drug stores have it. Two sizes—25c and 50c. Two hundred million bottles of Pluto water have already been used—millions more are sold each year. You'll find it one of the most economical, most effective laxatives you can buy! Get some today.

GARNER PERSUADED TO RUN AGAIN IN '36

President Said to Have Induced Him to Change Announced Intention to Retire.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26. — Vice-President Garner, who told the Post-Dispatch nearly two years ago he intended to retire when his four-year term expired, has been persuaded to run for re-election, it is learned upon excellent authority. President Roosevelt is reported to have done most of the persuading. In the original interview Garner said:

"When my term expires I will be 67 years old. I am vain enough to believe that I will still be good for a few more years of hunting and fishing. That's what I intend to do. I have fulfilled all the political ambitions I have, and by 1937 I'll be ready to quit."

Several factors apparently have influenced him to alter that decision. For one thing, Garner has been happier in the Senate than he expected to be. He is an excellent presiding officer because of his great familiarity with parliamentary procedure and his natural decisiveness. He is popular among the members, regardless of party lines. He was rather contemptuous of the Senate when he came from the House, but has revised his estimate of it.

More important, perhaps, is his mounting political prestige in the administration, and especially his influence with the President. Both being practical politicians, they understand one another. It is safe to say that no Cabinet member has anything approaching Garner's influence on Roosevelt where an issue of political judgment is involved. The President consults his brain trusters on a variety of problems, but when it comes to a question of getting or holding votes, he wants to know what the man from Uvalde thinks.

For that reason he has refused to listen to the suggestion that Garner might not be his running mate in 1936. He has "worked on" him, and has had others "work on" him. It appears that their labors have been rewarded.

Garner has been in public office continuously for 46 years. He was elected county attorney in Texas before he became of age. He served in the Texas Legislature, then began his longer career in the House, culminating in his election as speaker, a position which he held when he was elected vice-president.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—The Veterans of Foreign Wars moved today to seek alignment with the American Legion in a united front to carry on the fight for the soldiers' bonus at the next session of Congress.

MORE EUGENE FIELD FUNDS TO BE SOUGHT

Gerling Wants School Children Solicited Second Time for Pennies.

A request for a second solicitation of school children for not more than 5 cents each, for completing the restoration of the childhood home of Eugene Field, the children's poet, at 634 South Broadway, has been sent to all school principals by Superintendent of Instruction Gerling.

About a year ago, school children contributed $961.32, used largely for changing the interior of the old house, which is owned by the Board of Education, from a dilapidated condition to the likeness of a pleasant home of the 50's. About $50 has remained in this fund, but $38 of it will be required for a bill for repainting the exterior and other renovation of the front.

"To Emphasize Ownership."

"It seems fitting," said the superintendent's notice to principals, "in order to emphasize the sense of ownership which pupils will want to feel in the Field home, to give them another opportunity of contributing. So far as known, this is the only house in St. Louis wherein will be exhibited articles and furnishings contemporaneous with the early history of St. Louis.

"As a result of the donations made by pupils, renovation of the interior has virtually been completed. In addition, a number of articles typical of the period have been added to the furnishings, such as a candle snuffer with tray, colonial table, Empire chest, Empire mirror with glass picture at top, mantel decorations, mahogany secretary, sofa, chairs and stools. A Eugene Field scrapbook, which embraces collections over a period of 17 years, containing a number of original manuscripts in Field's handwriting, has also been added to the collection. There is still some work, however, which should be done at the building and there are still some furnishings that should be added to the collection."

Physical Work To Be Done.

The principal physical work to be done will be the erection of a brick garden wall and development of a garden. Much of the furnishings have been purchased, while the remainder were donated chiefly by Jesse P. Henry, chairman of the civic committee in charge of the Field memorial. The furnishings have not been moved into the house, as no arrangement has been made for a custodian. They are stored at the Board of Education Building.

Dr. Gerling suggested to the principals that part of one day this week be set aside for exercises in memory of Field, who was born here Sept. 3, 1850, and died Nov. 4, 1896. He lived in the house on Broadway in infancy. The house is about 90 years old.

Children's contributions should be sent to his office by the schools by Nov. 4, Dr. Gerling directed. The fund will be turned over to the committee, of which Dr. Gerling is a member.

LAUNDRY TRUCK, CONTENTS SET AFIRE IN STREET

Secretary of Firm Puts Damage to Truck at $250, Firemen Estimate $50.

A truck of the Model Laundry was set on fire yesterday forenoon while the chauffeur, Melvin Eaves, was making a delivery in the 5700 block of Westminster place. William Lageman, secretary of the company, said the damage to the truck was $250, covered by insurance. Firemen estimated the damage at $50 to the truck and $25 for the contents. The Model Laundry, 2905 Pine street, is one of those at which union drivers went on strike last December and failed to return.

Mothers' Clubs' Council Outing.

The first annual meeting of the Council of Mothers' Clubs will be held Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Women's Building at Washington University. Prof. Charles A. Lee, educational director of Washington University, will be the principal speaker.

$7500 VERDICT FOR WOMAN WHO KEPT HOUSE FOR DRUGGIST

Jury Finds for Mrs. Wortham in Her Suit Against Edward Marten Estate.

A jury in Circuit Judge Arthur H. Bader's court returned a verdict yesterday for $7500 in favor of Mrs. J. Harris Wortham, 4865 Milentz avenue, against the estate of Edward R. Marten, a druggist, who died in January, 1932. The verdict is to reimburse her for household services rendered Marten for a period of eight years.

Mrs. Wortham, a niece of Marten's deceased wife, said she had been asked by her uncle to take charge of his home at 4136 Flora place after the death of Mrs. Marten in 1922 and that he promised to compensate her, but did not do so. She sued for $12,250, valuing her services at the rate of $125 a month.

Raymond L. Marten, executor, resisted the claim, contending that Mrs. Wortham was a member of the household and rendered the services gratuitously. She had lived in the home from the time she was eight years old until her marriage, returning after her aunt's death. Robert M. Zeppenfeld, attorney for the claimant, argued that his client, having married, severed her relationship as a member of the Marten family and when she returned it was under an agreement that she was to be the housekeeper.

The claim was originally heard in Probate Court, where it was disallowed. Marten, who conducted a drug store at 922 South Vandeventer avenue, left an estate which was appraised at $14,230.

SUSPECT IN SCHULTZ KILLING FOUND DEAD

Body of Albert Stern in Gas-Filled Newark Hideout—Suicide, Says Examiner.

By the Associated Press.

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 26.—Albert Stern, 21-year-old gangster suspected by police of being the principal gunman in the killings that smashed the Arthur (Dutch Schultz) Flegenheimer gang, was found dead today in a cheap hideout.

Suicide was the tentative verdict of Chief Medical Examiner Martland, who said the chances that further investigation would point toward murder were "very small."

New York detectives described Stern as "the meanest killer since the late Vincent Coll." His death apparently was caused by illuminating gas poisoning and strangulation. His clothes were shabby. There were no soles in his shoes. His room rent was unpaid.

Hunted ever since the gang war began, Stern took whatever he knew with him in death. He did leave a scrawled note, but all it contained was a farewell to a girl he addressed as "Darling." Some bloodstained newspapers and rags were found in his room.

Bondsman Questioned.

Checkmated at least temporarily by the death of Stern, police sought new leads from Max Silverman, Dutch Schultz's bondsman, who was with him in a downtown tavern Wednesday night when Schultz and three aids were fatally shot.

Silverman surrendered today and was questioned for five hours by detectives.

He said he had met Schultz early Wednesday evening and had asked for $14,000 as attorney fees. Schultz, the bondsman said, told him he would give him the cash later at his (Schultz's) hotel. Silverman heard of the shooting when he went to the hotel, he said. He was released on $5000 bond as a material witness.

While he was at headquarters police put him in a lineup and brought in a masked woman, whose identity they did not disclose. The woman pointed to Silverman and said a man she had seen running from the tavern after Schultz was shot was about Silverman's size.

The name of Charles (Lucky) Luciano, Manhattan racketeer who is sought for questioning, entered the investigation again when it developed that he and three of his lieutenants had visited this city on the eve of the killing. Luciano, reputedly one of the "Big Six" that succeeded Schultz in power, is known as "The Boss." Schultz, in delirium before death, told police "the Boss himself" had shot him.

Other Developments.

Other developments of the day included:

Disclosure that John J. Gaul, a passerby, was slightly mounded by one of the bullets fired as Schultz's assassins fled.

Prosecutor Wachenfeld's demand on Sheriff Batchellor for a complete explanation of how Bernard Rosenkrantz, Schultz's henchman who was killed, came into possession of a Deputy Sheriff's badge and identification card.

State Alcoholic Beverage Commissioner Burnett's order for an investigation of Schultz's boast that he owned the tavern where he was shot.

Continued search for "the man in the pea-green suit," the Schultz bodyguard on duty at the door of the tavern, who vanished after the killing.

CHANGE IN U. S. CONSTITUTION SUGGESTED BY J. M. BECK

Favors Representation in Congress in Proportion to Federal Revenue State Pays.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26.—A change in the Federal Constitution to give States representation in Congress in proportion to the federal revenue they pay, was proposed by former Congressman James M. Beck in a speech here tonight. He spoke at a joint session of the Pennsylvania Federation of Historical Societies and the Pennsylvania Historical Association with groups planning a 1937 celebration of the 150th anniversary of the drafting of the constitution.

"It is a travesty on democracy to permit the State of Nevada with 80,000 residents—less than that of many wards in the city of Philadelphia—to have an equal voice in the Senate with Pennsylvania, which has more than 10,000,000 people," Beck Said. "One day this injustice must be corrected, and the great industrial states which contribute at least 90 per cent of the public revenues must have a proportionate voice in the government."

Beck said the principle of representation in proportion to taxation was advanced by Benjamin Franklin at an informal conference in 1754. Franklin, George Washington, James Madison and others fought for the plan at the 1787 constitutional convention, but yielded to delegates from smaller states under threat of secession, he said.

GOVERNOR OF IOWA INSPECTS CITY GARBAGE GRINDING PLANT

Gov. Clyde Herring Also Looks Over Black Top Street Surfacing.

Gov. Clyde L. Herring of Iowa was in St. Louis yesterday for an inspection of the city's garbage grinding plant at Vandeventer and Forest Park avenues, and of the cheap black-top asphalt street resurfacing now being used. He was accompanied by Mayor Dickmann and members of the Mayor's cabinet. He said both the grinding plant and resurfacing were so economical that he will send his state experts to examine them.

The first Democratic governor of Iowa in recent years, Herring predicted President Roosevelt will carry the state next year by an even larger majority than that of 145,000 which he rolled up in 1932. Relief rolls have been reduced from 57,000 to 40,000, he said, and he credited the AAA program with helping 31 counties, practically bankrupt because of cheap corn four years ago, to collect their taxes and straighten out their finances.

He was a guest of honor at a luncheon of the Key Club at Hotel Jefferson.

Still Yawning After Seven Weeks.

VICTORIA, B. C., Oct. 26.—Mrs. P. E. Wakelin, who has tried about all the "cures" she has heard of, kept on yawning today as she has been doing for seven weeks. She was removed to a hospital where the use of oxygen treatments was considered.

House Lobby Files Ransacked.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Department of Justice agents and police sought today to determine who broke into the House Rules Committee room in the Capitol recently and ransacked files used in the utilities lobbying investigation. Chairman O'Connor (Dem.), New York, disclosed that two attempts—one successful and the other not—had been made to break into his office. He said a check of the files showed them intact.

ROMANCE LIVES AGAIN ALONG THE MISSISSIPPI
Burlington Route
Bust Copyright, 1934, by Walter Russell

Between

ST. LOUIS, HANNIBAL AND BURLINGTON

Now is the centennial of the birth of Samuel Langhorne Clemens, the immortal Mark Twain.

The Burlington Railroad is proud to be among the hosts doing honor to his name which is one of the most eminent in the world of letters.

When this railroad's fourth streamline motor train of the famed ZEPHYR family was first considered for service over the line which runs alongside the Mississippi River between St. Louis, Missouri, and Burlington, Iowa, the suitability of naming it the "MARK TWAIN ZEPHYR" was immediately evident because the route lies through Hannibal, Missouri, the home of his youth, the scene of his adventures and the locale which furnished the inspiration for Mark Twain's ageless stories.

In Hannibal is his boyhood home . . . Becky Thatcher's home . . . the building where he learned the printer's craft . . . the cave where the buried treasure was found and where Injun Joe died.

The route of the new train runs through the hallowed ground of the Mark Twain saga . . . under the sheltering bluffs; around the big bends; always close beside the restless mighty Mississippi River with its wooded isles and the sand bars and the age-old levee—each mile of the way full of the tradition and the romance of a true American folklore which he recorded for all the world to read.

Burlington Route

The Mark Twain tradition in general belongs to the world, but a certain intimate and imperishable part of it belongs only to the Burlington Railroad.

In 1846 a public meeting to promote the building of a railroad westward from Hannibal, was held in the office of John M. Clemens, father of Mark Twain, and then and there was the beginning of the famed old "Hannibal & St. Joe" Railroad that ran from Hannibal to St. Joseph—started at Hannibal in 1851 and completed in 1859 . . . the first railroad to reach the Missouri River . . . the self-same road which is the Burlington's main line across Missouri today.

This was the railroad—and the only railroad—which delivered the United States Mail from the East to the Pony Express at St. Joseph. And on this road also was first put into practice, in 1862, the principle of assorting mail on board trains while en route—the starting point of today's vast Railway Post Office Service.

So began the Burlington's Mark Twain tradition which has continued throughout four-fifths of the railroad era.

The Mark Twain Zephyr, fourth in the Burlington's famed streamline fleet of stainless steel, was christened at Hannibal on the 25th of October, 1935. Its sponsor upon that occasion was Miss Nina Gabrilowitsch, daughter of Clara Clemens Gabrilowitsch and Ossip Gabrilowitsch, eminent conductor of the Detroit Symphony, and only granddaughter of Samuel Langhorne Clemens—Mark Twain.

The Mark Twain tradition in general belongs to the world, but a new and intimate and imperishable part of it belongs only to the Burlington Railroad.

NEW HIGH AVERAGE ON 60 STOCKS SINCE 1931

Thirty Industrials, 15 Utilities and 15 Rail Issues Increase Values During Week—Motors and Specialties Closing Favorites.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Today's stock market, with widespread small gains—in many cases sufficient to push leading equities to new highs for a year or longer—wound up a week featured by increasing values for many issues.

The closing day's trading was on a more active scale for the short session than in some six weeks. Motors and a number of specialties were the ranking favorites, but all minor divisions managed to move higher.

A few individual issues, especially among the higher priced industrials, were ahead a point or so, but few exceeded that amount in their progress. The market was about at its best as the closing gong rang.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was at a new high at today's close, not only for the current year, but since Sept. 14, 1931. The day's advance was .4 of a point at 52.9, and the 60 stocks gained, in other words, a total of $2.60 during the week to bring the average price to $52.90. Thirty industrial shares rose $3.10 to an average of $72.80, and 15 utilities increased $3.10 to $41. Fifteen railroad issues added $1.20 for a total average price of $25.20.

New High Since 1930.

General Motors was an active feature today, at a new high since 1930, at 54¼, up 1⅛ points, as traders studied its over-night report showing third quarter profits 34.5 per cent better than a year ago. General Electric made another peak since 1930, with a small gain to 35⅞.

Some of the other issues able to get ahead around a point or so during the day included Westinghouse at 88, American Can at 146¾, American Smelting at 57⅜ and Sears at 61⅜.

Other so-called pivotal shares, however, in many cases, confined their advances to modest fractions, including U. S. Steel at 47⅛, New York Central at 23⅝, Woolworth at 58, American Tobacco "B" at 103¾ and Chrysler at 88.

The better trend in rail traffic continued to attract some buying in the rail equipment stocks, and the preferred shares of American Locomotive, at 58½, and of Baldwin, at 26¼, gained 1½ and 2¾ points, respectively, and American Locomotive common was ahead nearly a point at 18⅝.

Commodities Reactionary.

The stock market made its progress today in the face of a rather reactionary tone in commodities. Wheat ended down 1⅝ to 1⅞ cents a bushel at Chicago and corn was off ⅛ to ½ cent. At New York cotton varied between a gain of 5 cents a bale and a loss of 25 cents.

Bonds were neglected. In an unusually quiet market most price changes were negligible. The U. S. Government list was almost ignored.

Day's 15 Most Active Stocks.

Closing price and net change of the 15 most active stocks: Graham Paige 4⅜, up ⅛; Gen Motors 54¼, up 1⅛; Chrysler 88, up ⅝; Packard 6⅞, up ⅛; Tenn Cop 6⅝, up ⅝; Gen Elec 35⅞, up ⅝; N Y Central 23⅝, up ⅛; Cont Mot 1⅞, up ¼; Nat Distillers 33¼, up ¾; Great Nor Ry pf 26⅞, up ½; Paramount 10⅛, down ⅝; McKesson & R 8¾, up ¾; Radio 8¼, unchanged; Socony Vac 12½, up ⅛; Studebaker 7⅞, unchanged.

NEW HIGH IN WEEKLY INDEX OF INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—The biggest production of new automobiles for October since 1929 lifted this week's Associated Press weekly index of industrial activity to a new high for 1935. In fact, it touched the highest level, with the exception of a brief period in July, 1933, when factories accelerated production to "beat" the oncoming NRA.

Steel production did almost as well. The American Iron and Steel Institute estimated production for the week at 51.8 per cent of capacity, which approximated the output at this time in 1930. The previous week it was 50.4, and a year ago 22.8.

The index of industrial activity, based on 1929-30 as 100, was placed today at 81.5, compared with 77.0 the previous week, and 62.5 a year ago. The previous high for the year was 77.3, registered last February.

The index, with seasonally adjusted indices for its six component factors, follows:

	This week.	Prev. week.	Year ago.
Composite Index (x)	81.5	77.0	62.5
Automobile production (x)	106.5	73.4	40.6
Steel mill activity	69.5	67.6	30.6
Cotton mfg. activity	95.0	93.4	90.7
Electric power prod.	101.2	101.6	93.9
Residential building	43.5	42.5	16.4
Total car loadings	68.6	69.1	59.9

(x) New high 1935.

New York Bank Statement.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—The weekly statement of the New York Clearing House shows: Total surplus and undivided profits, $730,707,100 (unchanged). Total net demand deposits (average), $35,988,000 (increase). Time deposits (average), $18,950,000 (increase). Clearings week ending today, $3,315,259,611. Clearings week ending Oct. 19, $3,968,412,713.

INVESTMENT BANKERS MEET

By the Associated Press.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Oct. 26.—Nine hundred members of the Investment Bankers' Association of America arrived here today to attend the twenty-fourth annual convention of the organization. Attendance at the opening session was the largest since 1929 and 80 per cent over last year.

The big increase in the issuance of securities thus far in 1935 over 1934 is pointed to as an indication that the revised regulations, widespread economic recovery, and other factors have finally combined to break the log jam in the securities issuance business that marked 1933 and most of 1934.

STEEL OPERATIONS RISE 4 POINTS IN YOUNGSTOWN AREA

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 26.—Steel operations jumped four points last week in the Youngstown section, to 62 per cent, and moved up two points in the Cleveland-Lorain district to 64 per cent.

At Lorain the National Tube Co. has begun firing another blast furnace, to step up production to the highest point in five years.

At Youngstown the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation and Republic each have plans to start an additional blast furnace next week.

A year ago this week the Youngstown district was operating at only 26 per cent, and thte Cleveland district was at only 38 per cent.

One of the largest steel orders in the last few days called for about 140 miles of eight-inch steel pipe for a crude oil line from Crystal, Mich., to Toledo, O. This order, given by Standard Oil of Ohio, amounted to nearly 8600 tons and was reported shared almost entirely by Republic, Sheet & Tube, National Tube and the Wheeling Steel Co.

WEEKLY METALS

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Quieter conditions prevailed in all non-ferrous metal markets this week after consumers in most lines had supplied forward requirements in recent active buying movements.

New business in copper was negligible, but trade reports indicated that deliveries by producers to fabricators against orders were maintained in good volume.

While some metal appeared through second hand sources at slight concessions as a result of moderate declines in the export market, first hand sellers generally held firm at 9¼ cents for electrolytic delivered in the Connecticut valley. Consumption was said to be continuing at a high rate both in this country and abroad.

Increase in tin production quotas from 70 to 80 per cent of capacity by the International Tin Committee retroactive to Oct. 1 was not unexpected. Spot prices here held steady.

Lead smelters experienced a moderate day-to-day inquiry which permitted them to dispose of ore intake in most instances, at unchanged prices.

Zinc was quiet, with sellers holding prices steady influenced by the firm ore situation and a continuing large backlog of unfilled orders on their books.

Prices for domestic antimony were slashed ⅞-cent per pound owing to dullness of demand and reports of easier conditions in China.

The steel price situation came in for some attention this week when pig iron prices in the Chicago district advanced $1 per ton due to higher fuel costs and steel laborers were making demands for higher wages. On the other hand, steel scrap prices eased. Steel ingot operations were generally higher.

CIGARETTE CONSUMPTION

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Soaring cigarette consumption—to peaks above those of 1929—has led financial circles to examine into the possibilities of further growth for the industry.

From 1920 to 1929, domestic consumption of cigarettes shot ahead at a yearly rate of 11.7 per cent.

Rebounding from the depression valley, consumption in 1934 showed an upturn of 12.3 per cent over 1933. This, says Standard Statistics, Inc., "should not be taken as an indication that the former long term growth rate of 12 per cent annually is to be resumed."

"Cyclical forces of recovery may permit substantial increases for another year or two. Thereafter a 4 to 6 per cent annual rate of gain is about all that can be foreseen," the survey maintains. At the same time the point is stressed that the saturation point appears some way off, particularly inasmuch as "the feminine market is susceptible of further exploitation."

The Federal Government pockets 6 cents on each package of cigarettes, or in other words, 60 per cent of the retail price for 10-cent cigarettes and 40 per cent for 15-cent brands. Additional taxes of from 2 to 5 cents a package are levied by 19 states. Finally, there is the added load of processing taxes incident to the tobacco production control of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. In 1934 the aggregate total of this was $29,300,000 and in 1935 it will total about $35,000,000.

WHEAT SLUMP GENERAL AFTER WINNIPEG BREAK

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—Uncertainties regarding disposal of Canada's big wheat surplus, together with Winnipeg price smashes to below an officially guaranteed rural minimum, tumbled wheat values everywhere today.

All deliveries of wheat in Winnipeg fell 3 cents a bushel, the full limit allowed there during any one day's dealings. Chicago wheat receded a maximum of 2½ cents.

Many unconfirmed rumors were current as to possible changes in grain marketing policy by the newly elected Canadian administration because of disappointing volume of Canada's grain export business.

Wheat in Chicago closed nervous, 1⅝ @ 1⅞ cents under yesterday's finish, December, 98¾ @ ⅞c. Corn ⅛ @ ½c down, December 60⅝ @ ¾, oats ⅛ @ ⅜c off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 7 cents.

This was the first time the Winnipeg wheat market has dropped under 87½ cents since a Government minimum price at that level was officially guaranteed to Canadian farmers a month ago. Preceding today's price break at Winnipeg, it was reported Argentine shippers were selling wheat futures on account of improved crop prospects for wheat in Argentina. Notice too was taken of lower quotations both at Liverpool and Buenos Aires, especially an unstady close in Buenos Aires today, suggesting sharp competition ahead for Canada.

Rains in Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma, likely to benefit domestic wheat crop prospects had a contributing bearish influence. The chief factor disturbing to confidence of holders of wheat, however, was persistent relative meagerness of European takings of Canadian wheat. Canadian shippers reported that only a small amount of business to overseas was in progress today.

Corn, oats, rye and provisions all sympathized with wheat weakness. Forecasts of unfavorable rainy weather in the corn belt had but a transient stimulating effect in the corn market. On the other hand, for the first time in a long while, primary receipts of corn were larger than a year ago.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—Dec. 97⅞ to ½, 100 to ⅛; May 96½ to ⅝, 99⅝ to ½; July 27⅛ to ¼, 89¼. Corn—Dec. 60, 61⅜; May 58¾, 59⅝.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 19,488,000 bushels, corn 3,609,000. Open interest in wheat was 128,794,000 bushels, and in corn, 30,322,000.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Oct. 26.—Local wheat futures were lower today in line with prices on other exchanges. The December option was 1½c and the May 1⅞c lower both on bids. Corn futures were also lower, May closing ⅜c off on a bid.

Liverpool opened unchanged to ¼d higher and closed ¼ @ ½d lower.

Winnipeg opened ⅛ @ ½c lower. The close was 1⅞ @ 2c net lower.

In the cash grain market Saturday soft wheat was 1 @ 1½c lower. The receipts were very light but some were carried over as buyers displayed slight interest in the market at the prevailing premiums. There was neither offerings of nor interest in hard wheat and nominal quotations were 1½c lower. Corn was ½ @ 1½c lower. Although the receipts were small trading was slow starting as buyers and seller were far apart in price ideas and when holders weakened late in the session a clearance was effected. Glucose makers and mills were the buyers. Oats were unchanged. The supply was light but the demand slow and holders were forced to press the grain to sale making some concession to the current bidders. Elevators were the only purchasers.

COTTON STEADY, ONE POINT HIGHER TO FIVE LOWER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Cotton moved irregularly in a narrow range today, with near months relatively steady on trade buying. There was hedging in the later deliveries.

December sold off from 10.95 to 10.91 and closed at 10.92, with the general market steady, net 1 point higher to 5 points lower.

Some light frosts were reported in Eastern belt sections, but they were insufficient to create market interest.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week is estimated at 189,000 bales against 113,000 last year.

Futures closed steady, 1 higher to 5 lower. Dec. 10.92-95, Jan. 10.89, March 10.92-93, May 10.97-99, July 10.97, Oct. 10.84. Spot steady; middling, 11.30.

Cotton futures opened steady, unchanged to 5 higher on trade buying of near months and Southern hedge selling of the distant positions. Dec., 10.94c; Jan., 10.93c; March, 10.97c; May, 11.00c; July, 11.01c; Oct., 10.85c.

Offerings increased somewhat after the call, with hedging a little more active, and prices sagged slightly. December sold down from 10.95c to 10.91c and May from 11.00c to 10.95c, making the market about net unchanged to 5 points lower. There was enough trade buying to hold prices fairly steady at the decline. Houses with foreign connections were buyers. The first sales for delivery in October, 1936, were about 15 points under the price of July, with next October selling at 10.85c and 10.87c.

WHEAT SLUMP GENERAL AFTER WINNIPEG BREAK

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—Uncertainties regarding disposal of Canada's big wheat surplus, together with Winnipeg price smashes to below an officially guaranteed rural minimum, tumbled wheat values everywhere today.

All deliveries of wheat in Winnipeg fell 3 cents a bushel, the full limit allowed there during any one day's dealings. Chicago wheat receded a maximum of 2½ cents.

Many unconfirmed rumors were current as to possible changes in grain marketing policy by the newly elected Canadian administration because of disappointing volume of Canada's grain export business.

Wheat in Chicago closed nervous, 1⅝ @ 1⅞ cents under yesterday's finish, December, 98¾ @ ⅞c. Corn ⅛ @ ½c down, December 60⅝ @ ¾, oats ⅛ @ ⅜c off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 7 cents.

This was the first time the Winnipeg wheat market has dropped under 87½ cents since a Government minimum price at that level was officially guaranteed to Canadian farmers a month ago. Preceding today's price break at Winnipeg, it was reported Argentine shippers were selling wheat futures on account of improved crop prospects for wheat in Argentina. Notice too was taken of lower quotations both at Liverpool and Buenos Aires, especially an unstady close in Buenos Aires today, suggesting sharp competition ahead for Canada.

Rains in Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma, likely to benefit domestic wheat crop prospects had a contributing bearish influence. The chief factor disturbing to confidence of holders of wheat, however, was persistent relative meagerness of European takings of Canadian wheat. Canadian shippers reported that only a small amount of business to overseas was in progress today.

Corn, oats, rye and provisions all sympathized with wheat weakness. Forecasts of unfavorable rainy weather in the corn belt had but a transient stimulating effect in the corn market. On the other hand, for the first time in a long while, primary receipts of corn were larger than a year ago.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—Dec. 97⅜ to ½, 100 to ⅛; May 96½ to ⅝, 99⅜ to ½; July 27¼ to ¼, 89¼. Corn—Dec. 60, 61⅜; May 58¾, 59⅝.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 19,488,000 bushels, corn 3,609,000. Open interest in wheat was 128,794,000 bushels, and in corn, 30,322,000.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Oct. 26.—Local wheat futures were lower today in line with prices on other exchanges. The December option was 1½c and the May 1⅞c lower both on bids. Corn futures were also lower, May closing ⅜c off on a bid.

Liverpool opened unchanged to ¼d higher and closed ¼ @ ½d lower.

Winnipeg opened ⅛ @ ½c lower. The close was 1⅞ @ 2c net lower.

In the cash grain market Saturday soft wheat was 1 @ 1½c lower. The receipts were very light but some were carried over as buyers displayed slight interest in the market at the prevailing premiums. There was neither offerings of nor interest in hard wheat and nominal quotations were 1½c lower. Corn was ½ @ 1½c lower. Although the receipts were small trading was slow starting as buyers and seller were far apart in price ideas and when holders weakened late in the session a clearance was effected. Glucose makers and mills were the buyers. Oats were unchanged. The supply was light but the demand slow and holders were forced to press the grain to sale making some concession to the current bidders. Elevators were the only purchasers.

COTTON STEADY, ONE POINT HIGHER TO FIVE LOWER

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Cotton moved irregularly in a narrow range today, with near months relatively steady on trade buying. There was hedging in the later deliveries.

December sold off from 10.95 to 10.91 and closed at 10.92, with the general market steady, net 1 point higher to 5 points lower.

Some light frosts were reported in Eastern belt sections, but they were insufficient to create market interest.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week is estimated at 189,000 bales against 113,000 last year.

Futures closed steady, 1 higher to 5 lower. Dec. 10.92-95, Jan. 10.89, March 10.92-93, May 10.97-99, July 10.97, Oct. 10.84. Spot steady; middling, 11.30.

Cotton futures opened steady, unchanged to 5 higher on trade buying of near months and Southern hedge selling of the distant positions. Dec., 10.94c; Jan., 10.93c; March, 10.97c; May, 11.00c; July, 11.01c; Oct., 10.85c.

Offerings increased somewhat after the call, with hedging a little more active, and prices sagged slightly. December sold down from 10.95c to 10.91c and May from 11.00c to 10.95c, making the market about net unchanged to 5 points lower. There was enough trade buying to hold prices fairly steady at the decline. Houses with foreign connections were buyers. The first sales for delivery in October, 1936, were about 15 points under the price of July, with next October selling at 10.85c and 10.87c.

SCATTERED NEW HIGHS IN QUIET BOND TRADE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Corporate bond prices moved only fractionally either way today in an unusually quiet session.

U. S. Government bonds changed hands to the extent of only $160,000, par value, and prices were mixed, 3-32ds lower to 5-32ds higher. Foreign bonds were generally steady.

Transfers of $5,390,000 compared with $4,758,000 last Friday. The Associated Press averages .1 of a point higher to .2 of a point lower.

A handful of scattered movements of one to two points stood out against the general background of small fractional fluctuations recorded by the main body of active loans. Among these were Murray Body 6½s, up 1⅜ points at 200, a new 1935 high; Niagara Shares 5½s, up 2 at 97½, also a new high for the year, and International Telephone 4½s, 1⅜ lower at 68.

Closing prices of representative issues in various groups include: Baltimore & Ohio 4½s, off ⅜ at 56⅜; St. Paul 5s, up ⅜, at 11½; New Orleans Public Service 5s, up ½ at 85; Paramount 6s, off ⅛ at 96½; Republic Steel 4½s, up ⅝ at 109; Liggett & Myers 5s, up ½ at 122, and Southern Pacific 4½s, up ¼ at 73.

Sagging tendencies were noticeable among active Italian bonds following the brisk upturn throughout most of this week. The Government 7s finished ¼ lower at 65, and Public Utility 7s were 1⅜ lower at 52⅝. Other foreign bonds did little either way.

Only about one-half of the 39 listed Government issues were traded in during the two-hour session and of these only six boasted sales of more than one block. The new 2⅞ per cent Treasury issue, with a turnover of $56,000, was the most active. It closed at 100.1, up 2-32ds.

MODERATELY HIGHER GROUND REACHED BY CURB LEADERS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Leading Curb stocks moved through substantial realizing today to establish themselves on moderately higher ground. Utilities were again favorites, while a number of specialty issues were well taken. Transfers approximated 261,000 shares, compared with 177,000 a week ago.

Electric Bond & Share, in brisk dealings, was up 1⅜ points to 17¼, while American Gas & Electric gained a major fraction at 37⅞. National Sugar of New Jersey and Parker Rust-Proof both advanced around 2 points at 26 and 62½ respectively. Other firm issues included Swift International, Humble Oil, Columbia Gas & Electric Conv. preferred, Distillers Corporation-Seagrams and Pittsburgh Plate Glass.

EX-CONVICT GETS DEATH FOR KILLING AT STE. GENEVIEVE

Found Guilty of Murdering Neighbor, a Former St. Louisan, and Taking His Hogs and Alarm Clock.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

STE. GENEVIEVE, Mo., Oct. 26.—A Circuit Court jury here convicted John Flannery Williamson, 55 years old, a former convict, of the murder of George Williams, 64, a former St. Louisan, after deliberating for a little more than an hour today. Williamson was sentenced to be hanged.

Although he pleaded "not guilty" at the start of the two-day trial, his counsel refrained from calling witnesses after the State's case was presented. Instead, they admitted Williamson's guilt and pleaded for mercy, asking that he be given a sentence of life imprisonment.

Judge Taylor Smith has not fixed the date for execution. The prosecution was conducted by Prosecuting Attorney Peter H. Huck, aided by Assistant Attorney-General Franklin E. Reagan. Williamson was represented by Henry Petrequin and Alfred Moeller of Ste. Genevieve and Raymond Roberts of Farmington.

Williams was found shot to death Aug. 11 in woods on his farm five miles northwest of here, where he had been living alone for two years. When Sheriff Henry J. Drury arrived at the farm after learning of the killing, he found Williamson leaving the place with a load of hogs. Williamson denied knowledge of the murder and said he had bought the hogs from Williams, who had "gone to St. Louis." At Williamson's home at New Offenburg, southwest of Ste. Genevieve, a shotgun, ax and alarm clock, identified by neighbors as belonging to Williams, were found. Williamson said these had been included in the deal for the hogs.

Apparently Williams had been dead for about 36 hours when the body was encountered by hunters. He had been shot in the back of the head at close range with a shotgun.

Williamson, who had made his home in this county with his wife for six weeks before the killing, was released from the Southern Illinois penitentiary at Menard last December after serving 22 years of a life sentence for the murder of Andrew Smothers of Marion County. Smothers, too, was found shot in the back of the head near his farmhouse. Williamson was arrested in that case after he had moved into Smothers' home, with forged papers purporting to show he had bought the place. He pleaded guilty to that murder.

Two years ago Williamson came to this county with a wood-cutting crew. When his employment ended, he obtained permission to remain on the place where he had worked.

To Participate, or Not To?

AMERICA'S intramural athletic war flames day by day. Debates multiply; discussion grows more acrimonious; propagandists clutter our desks daily with their output. It is probable that a first-class civil athletic Donnybrook will be under way before December.

That we will be out of the trenches by Christmas is a hope, but not a certainty.

BRUNDAGE

Whether the United States shall participate in the Olympic games in Berlin or withdraw is the debated subject, brought on by a purely political Nazi stand against non-Aryan dwellers in the Reich.

Powerful organizations, men of outstanding prominence in business and professional life, even the athletes themselves are split over this vexing agitation which could conceivably spread from a purely local disturbance into a world athletic war—with Germany again confronting an indignant world.

Olympic Forces Powerful.

BATTLING in the interest of participation are the International Olympic Association (through its American representative, Gen. Sherrill); the American Olympic Association, headed by Avery Brundage; approximately 50 per cent of the Amateur Athletic Union of America; the Y. M. C. A., and other groups.

On the side of non-participation we find some strange bedfellows, such as: Jeremiah Mahoney, president of the A. A. U. and nine A. A. U. districts; William Green, head of the American Federation of Labor; various Catholic and Jewish associations; and a new organization, an outcropping of the controversy—"The Committee for Fair Play in Sports," or words to that effect.

The last named body seems to have been born for propagandist purposes and its big shots, in some instances, have little connection with sports.

What John Thomas Public thinks has not been polled, as yet—but he probably is making up his mind slowly, winnowing the chaff from the grain. And John Thomas is important, because he pays the freight.

138-POUND IMPOST TOO MUCH FOR STAKE STAR

By the Associated Press.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 26.—One hundred and thirty-eight pounds weighed heavily on Discovery today and the Vanderbilt sensation went down to defeat in the $10,000 Maryland Handicap — in fourth place, more than five lengths back of the winner.

Walter M. Jeffords' three-year-old colt Firethorn, carrying 119 pounds, raced to a three-length victory in the mile and one-quarter feature to pay backers $14 for $2. Second by a nose was Count Arthur with Only One third, two lengths ahead of the heavily-weighted Discovery.

Before a crowd of more than 18,000 persons—which made Discovery the favorite at 65 cents to a dollar—Firethorn moved up on the outside rounding the last turn, wore down the leaders at the furlong pole, led by half a length going into the home stretch and went across the finish going away.

Discovery trailed his opposition during the first five furlongs. Seventh at the post, he got off ninth and was in that position at the quarter mark. The half way mark saw the Vanderbilt colt in eighth place by four lengths.

He closed some ground, running in sixth place at the three-quarter mark and in fifth place entering the home stretch. But, in the drive down the stretch, he could not come up and did not threaten the leaders.

The value to the winner was $10,075, with second getting $1500, third $750 and fourth $500. Discovery's winnings of $500 brought his earnings for the year to $102,545.

Firethorn, with Jockey H. Richards up, negotiated the distance in 2:02 3-5.

The secondary feature, the $3500 Spalding Lowe Jenkins handicap over a mile distance for two-year-olds and up, went to Greentree Stable's Memory Book by a length and one-half. Maeriel was second by two lengths and Ned Reigh third by five lengths.

The value to the winner was $4140. Memory Book paid $4.80 for $2.

Olin and Lewis to Go on With Training, Despite Suit

By W. J. McGoogan.

Despite the fact that New York's Madison Square Garden threw a wrench into the machinery promoting the Bob Olin-John Henry Lewis, light-heavyweight title fight to be held at the Arena Thursday night with an injunction suit yesterday, the boxers today planned to go right ahead with their training activities, the downtown office of the promoters in the Arcade Building was to remain open all day and other activities were to continue as usual.

Judge Max G. Baron has set 10 o'clock Tuesday morning as the time when the defendants, including the Jackson Johnson Post, Olin, Lew Raymond and Benny Greenberg are to show cause why a permanent injunction against the contest should not be issued.

But with an advance sale claimed to amount to more than $9000 already in the till, the promoters declare they are going right ahead with the advance sale with assurances to the public that if anything should happen to prevent the battle the money expended for tickets would be refunded to the purchasers.

Petition Filed.

Upon receipt of the petition with supporting affidavits from New York yesterday morning, former Circuit Judge Fred L. English, representing the firm of Williams, Nelson and English, filed an application for an injunction alleging on Olin and Lewis have been requested by the Commissioner to appear at his office tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock for preliminary examination by commission physicians.

Army Defeats Yale, 14-8, After Stubborn Battle Before 45,000

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 26.—Yale, handicapped by its own kicking mistakes at the outset and never fully able to get out of the hole, was tumbled from the unbeaten ranks today by Army. The Cadets from West Point emerged with a 14 to 8 triumph, their fourth in a row over the Elis and fourth successive victory of the 1935 campaign.

Before a crowd of 45,000, the Soldiers capitalized two first-half scoring opportunities with an attack featuring the brilliant Charles (Monk) Meyer, West Point's newest ball-carrying sensation, and then successfully stood off Yale's sensational counter offensive in the last half.

Meyer Whole Show.

Meyer was pretty much the whole show for Army, although the Soldiers outrushed, outplayed and outsmarted the favored Elis. The Cadet Ace, playing the entire game despite a head injury that nearly knocked him out in the final quarter, did nearly all the passing as well as most of the kicking and running.

Besides taking the play away from Yale's brilliant passing combination of Jerry Roscoe and Larry Kelley, which accounted for Yale's touchdown in the second period, Meyer was a standout on the defense. He broke up two Eli advances in the last half by intercepting passes deep in Army territory. One resulted in a safety and two points for Yale as Meyer tumbled back into his own end zone, but the Army star took the threat out of the last Eli drive with a spectacular shotstring catch of a pass by Yale's Charley Ewart after the Elis had advanced nearly 40 yards by the aerial route.

Piling up 13 first downs to Yale's 11 and outrushing the Elis by 176 yards to 115, West Point nevertheless needed the early "breaks" to win from this resourceful, hard-charging Blue team.

Stubborn Defense.

Three first period Army thrusts were necessary before the gallant Eli forwards finally yielded to sustained Cadet pressure. Army lost the ball on downs on Yale's five-yard line and again on the three-yard strip before Meyer finally engineered a scoring attack. Three plays netted 26 yards and a touchdown as Meyer hit the line for two yards, passed to Grove for 18 more and then skirted Yale's left end for the score, to which Grove's placekick added the extra point.

Yale bounded back with a 74-yard touchdown drive, featured by two spectacular pass catches by the colorful Larry Kelley. The talkative Eli end made a circus catch of the first from Roscoe for a 30-yard gain, putting the ball on Army's 39. Then Kelley raced into the end zone and snagged a fourth-down pass with another leaping catch, while two Cadets were at his elbows.

Henry (One Play) Gardner failed to convert.

The Army counter-attacked for a second touchdown, marching 46 yards for the score. Meyer shared the ball-lugging with Grohs before finally passing to Janzan in the end zone. From the six-yard line, on the first play after the substitute's entry, Yale drove as far as Army's 20, in the third quarter, before picking up two points on Meyer's safety. This was more or less of a "boner" by the Army star, who needed only to bat down the ball to avoid any undue risks near his own goal line.

Subsequently the Elis tried desperately to penetrate Army's defense with an aerial barrage, with Roscoe and Ewart alternating on the throwing end, but lacked success until the closing moments, when Meyer's interception turned back the last threat for the Cadets.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 26.—Iowa's football forces, undefeated and previously thrice victorious this season, turned their full fury on Illinois today, crushing the Illini, 19 to 0.

A crowd of 25,000 sat in sun-drenched Memorial Stadium to watch a rout of the tricky, forward passing Illini, and with bulging eyes, saw some great open field running of Iowa's Negro star

NOTRE DAME'S SECOND PERIOD DRIVE DEFEATS NAVY, 14 TO 0

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 26.—The Ramblers of Notre Dame, roaring along the gridiron trail that may lead to their first unbeaten season since Rockne's days, struck with two swift, sudden aerial blows today to whip Navy, 14 to 0. A crowd of around 65,000, largest in the East this year, witnessed the clean-cut victory of the Irish.

The triumph, Notre Dame's fifth of the campaign, not only kept the "Fighting Irish" in the battle for the national championship, but allowed them to avenge the setbacks the Midshipmen handed them in two previous contests.

The win restrained the Tars from joining Southern California and Pittsburgh as the elevens that have defeated the Green Raiders three successive years. It was only last week that Notre Dame settled its accounts with the Pittsburgh Panthers, bombing them out of the way.

After the Sailors had thrown up a stout defense to halt Notre Dame's opening challenge in the first period, a drive that was brought up short within the shadow of the Midshipmen's goal, the Ramblers, wearing their famous green shirts for the first time this year, unloosed a rushing attack that swept the Navy back, slowly but surely, to the Notre Dame 45-yard line.

Then Andy Pilney, a 175-pound halfback from Chicago, started out around right end and the Sailors moved in to hem him. Suddenly he turned and whipped a long diagonal pass to Francis Joseph Gaul, the Raiders' No. 2 quarterback, who was lying out near the sidelines.

Gaul snagged the pass in the clear, wheeled and was off. One tackler in the blue of Navy's livery apparently had him bottled up a few yards down field, but he pivoted out of danger. Behind a host of green shorts that had sprung up to encircle him, he sped on across the goal. Kenneth Stilley, a reserve tackle, booted a perfect placement for the extra point.

Still startled by the swiftness of Notre Dame's surprise blow through the air, the Sailors were unable to get their anti-warcraft defense arranged and four short minutes later the Ramblers tallied again.

It was the same Pilney youngster

BEARS SHOW BEST ATTACK OF SEASON; MAKE 13 FIRST DOWNS TO SPARTANS' NINE

By J. Roy Stockton.

Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

EAST LANSING, Mich., Oct. 26.—Charley Bachman's Spartans of Michigan State College were much too much for the Washington University Bears this afternoon, but as Jimmy Conzelman's team suffered its fourth straight defeat and the worst of the season, 47 to 13, there was some consolation for Jimmy and his warriors.

Michigan State ran over, around and through the Washington forces to score its seven touchdowns, and it seemed that the Spartans, with superior speed and far superior man power, could gain at will. But despite the margin of the defeat, the Bears showed their best attack of the season and demonstrated that their plays could click against the stoutest defense.

While seven touchdowns, which do not appear in the first-down phase of the statistical story of the game, discount the apparent differences in attacking power, there is still some comfort in the fact that the Bears registered 13 first downs to Michigan State's nine. Thirteen first downs are something to be proud of when made against a team as powerful as the Michigan State Spartans, and the Washington squad was happier tonight than it had been at any time since the unfortunate defeat at the hands of Illinois, starting the four-game losing streak.

At scrimmage the Bears made only 117 yards to the Spartans' 311, but they proved the strength of their aerial attack by completing nine passes for a total gain through the air of 139 yards.

A crowd of 8000 witnessed the game.

Bears Furnish Spectacular Play.

Michigan State scored with such apparent ease and disgusting regularity that there soon was no novelty to seeing a Spartan ball-carrier, brushing aside would-be Washington tacklers and romping to the goal line. But there was no particular brilliance to the performance, and it was the first Washington touchdown, manufactured out of a combination of laterals and forwards, that provided the most spectacular play of the afternoon and gave the crowd an impressive lesson in what the passing game can do for the underdog of a gridiron contest.

Hudgens' recovery of a fumble in the third quarter, with the score 26 to 0 in the Spartans' favor, gave the Bears the opportunity that they turned into a touchdown. A first lateral to Zboyovski lost five yards and a long pass by Bukant was knocked down before Hudgens could reach the ball.

Then Hudgens flipped a lateral to Droke, who passed back to Zboyovski. Mike hurled the ball laterally to Bukant on the other side of the field and by that time Hafeli was far down in the corner of the field. Hafeli caught Joe's long pass and reached the three-yard line before he was downed. The Spartan line bunched to repel Bukant, but it was Hudgens who carried the ball and he sliced over for the touchdown.

Washington players on the bench jumped to their feet and cheered as though they had just defeated Yale, 6 to 0, and it was something, to confuse the well-coached and stalwart Spartans, that 47 to 13 score notwithstanding.

The other Washington touchdown was not so important. It was scored late in the fourth quarter, when young men difficult to identify, who were described as breaking into the Spartan lineup for the first time in their careers, were manning the Michigan State defenses.

Joe Bukant intercepted a pass to start the touchdown drive, while Dave Blumberg, substitute half back, furnished most of the power in the advance. Bukant caught a throw from Goltz and ran to his 35-yard line before he was downed. He tried a pass that was incomplete and Blumberg then found a hole in the right side of the Spartan line and reached the enemy's 47.

Dave then tried his right end and showed speed behind good blocking to make it another first down on the 24. Tutinsky then took a hand in the advance, making two excellent runs, the second putting the ball three yards from home, after which Bukant went over for the touchdown.

Bears Convert First Extra Point.

Then came another feature of the season. Blumberg converted the extra point, the first place-kick booted between the uprights by a Washington varsity player this year.

Returning to unpleasant features of the afternoon, it didn't take the Spartans long to demonstrate their marked superiority. Iezzi kicked off to start the contest, Edwards returned to his 42-yard line and in just three plays, or approximately one minute, Michigan State had taken the lead.

Edwards' lateral to Brandstatter, who weighs only 173 pounds, according to the official information sheet, but who looks more like 185 pounds, netted five yards. Edwards made only one on a spinner and then Brandstatter, showing fine

MISSOURI AND IOWA STATE ELEVENS BATTLE TO 6-6 TIE

Tiger Touchdown Trek: Lochiner on His Way With Cyclone Pass

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

Intercepting an Iowa State pass in midfield, LOCHINER of Missouri (No. 23) dodged and outran three would-be tacklers and raced to a touchdown. He is shown here starting his dash for the points which gave Missouri a 6-6 tie in its first Big Six Conference game.

AMES, Ia., Oct. 26.—Iowa State and Missouri, two underdogs of the Big Six Football Conference, battled to a disappointing 6 to 6 tie here today on State Field before a home-coming crowd of 9000.

The Tigers dominated the play in the first half and the Cyclones came back to assume command in the third period to score the tying points.

Missouri jumped into the lead late in the first period by capitalizing on a break. Lochiner, Tiger back, intercepted Miller's fumble in the air on Iowa State's 43-yard line and raced 57 yards for the touchdown. Catron, Cyclone tackle, blocked the try for point after touchdown.

Iowa State came into scoring territory after an exchange of kicks in the third period. A forward-lateral pass gained 13 yards, Miller's run around end was good for 10, and a shovel pass added 12 more. Then Allender plunged over for the touchdown, but Poole missed the kick.

Missouri made 12 first downs to five for Iowa State and gained 205 yards by rushing, compared to 61 for the Cyclones.

NOTRE DAME BEATS NAVY, 14-0, SCORING IN SECOND QUARTER

who started the second scoring maneuver as well as ended it. He grabbed a Navy punt on his 35-yard line and wriggled and sidestepped his way back to the Tars' 39-yard line. From the 25-yard line he tossed another pass to Gaul. But Gaul stumbled and fell almost in the clear on the 10-yard line after he had speared the throw.

Down to the three went the Ramblers in two bucks and, as Navy braced for another shock through the line, Pilney lobbed a short toss directly over center to Mike Layden, brother of the Notre Dame coach. Layden, ailing from an injured leg, had replaced Wojcihovski. Stilley again kicked the extra point from placement. That ended the scoring, although both teams threatened several times.

In that same period, Fromhart fumbled a punt and Soballe recovered for Navy on the 30-yard line, but the aroused Green Shirts pushed the Sailors back 12 yards in two plays and Layden snagged a third down pass to end the Navy gesture.

An alert Navy halfback, Joe Evans, thwarted one of Notre Dame's advances in the third period, intercepting Pilney's pass on Navy's 22-yard line. The South Bend Raiders had jabbed and darted for consistent gains for 60 yards. Once again, in the fourth quarter, opportunity came to Notre Dame as Gleason, a reserve back, caught a gambling Navy pass on the Sailors' 35-yard line, but the Tars' defense, plus a five-yard penalty, forced a punt.

Navy's finest chance came early in the second period when Evans recovered Pilney's fumble on the 20-yard line, but the wide-awake Notre Dame pass defenders covered Navy's receivers and knocked down one pass over the goal, while another plopped into the end zone with no Navy man near.

For three quarters it was a pretty even battle, but in the second, the suddenness of Notre Dame's switch from a successful rushing attack to daring passes caught the Sailors unaware and with those two throws rode Notre Dame's hopes—and they clicked.

KANSAS UPSETS KANSAS STATE ON WET FIELD, 9-2

By the Associated Press.

LAWRENCE, Kan., Oct. 26. — Kansas State College, defending football champion of the Big Six, was upset, 9 to 2, by the University of Kansas on a soggy gridiron here today and virtually eliminated from the 1935 title race.

Surprising the Wildcats by keeping them repeatedly on the defense, Kansas took the lead with Tom McCall's field goal in the second period, gave Kansas State two points through an intentional safety in the fourth quarter and then crashed over a touchdown.

The safety was Kansas' method of squirming out of a hole after a quick kick backed the Jayhawkers to their goal line. Soon afterward, Clarence Douglas, substitute fullback, broke through center for 51 yards to the Wildcat 16. A pass from the five-yard line, Bill Decker to Emil Weinecke, scored the touchdown. The goal kick missed.

full back, Oze Simmons, a 21-year-old youth from Fort Worth, Texas.

Simmons, with a breath-taking gallop of 71 yards, broke through center in the third play after the second period opened, dashed down the field into the clear and raced on to a touchdown, outrunning his pursuers and skilfully dodging the last Illini defense man. That gallop, reminding spectators of the days of the famous "galloping ghost," Red Grange, took the heart out of Illinois and started the heavier Hawkeyes on their way to a decisive victory. In the fourth period the Hawkeyes crashed through the Illini line for two more touchdowns on the plunges of Capt. Dick Crayne, the Hawkeyes' half back.

Simmons Is Star.

Sparkling above the general class of the smart, well-drilled Hawkeyes was the famed ebony streak of lightning, Simmons. He frequently got away on sweeping twisting runs, flashing a remarkable change of pace, in dodging away from pursuing tacklers. The Illini were guilty of roughing him in the fourth period, once with Tom Wilson, the Illinois fullback, charging into Simmons after the ball had been declared dead and knocking him flat on his back from an upright position. This cost the Illini a 15-yard penalty and indirectly was responsible for Iowa's second touchdown.

This penalty placed the ball on the 2-yard line, from where Crayne plunged over for the score.

An intercepted pass led to the third Iowa touchdown, Henry flipped Lindberg's long pass into Lamb's hands on the Illinois 27-yard line.

Iowa's end around play, Lamb to Lannon, sent the latter sweeping around to the right for a 22-yard gain to the Illinois 5-yard line. Simmons hit through the middle to the one-yard marker with Crayne carrying the ball over on his second and devastating plunge through right tackle.

Lamb added the extra point on the first touchdown of the game for his first successful kick of the year, but missed the second, and Crayne, attempting the third, also missed.

The Hawkeyes by their victory served notice that they are to be an important factor in the Big Ten championship race. The Hawkeyes successfully throttled Illinois' three scoring chances, breaking up the Illini forward passes and tilting the issue their own way, with a relentless steady and cutting running attack. Crayne, with Simmons, besides accounting for the three touchdowns, carried the brunt of the entire attack.

WRAY'S COLUMN

against discrimination by Germany on the score of religion and race.

The opposition holds that Germany's athletes are not affected by the Nazi's anti-Semitic political restrictions; that even if they were, the makeup of Germany's team is its own internal affair; that the teams of 47 other nations may be made up without regard to race or religion; and that, in any case, punitive measures lie with the International Olympic Association and not with just one of the 48 nations involved.

Both sides are marshalling facts. Arguments, direct and rebuttal, grow more bitter day by day and the honors seem to lie with whichever side you happen to favor.

Just Like Geneva?

ONE contention of the withdrawal group interests Mr. Average Citizen greatly. It is an alleged attempt to mobilize the Olympic Games member states into a sort of sports league of nations, to enforce a boycott sanction against Germany.

Fear has been expressed that American sport organizations and perhaps the entire Olympic machinery, might be used to pull political chestnuts out of the fire.

As far as the International Olympic Association goes that is impossible. No nation except the United States seems to take active interest in boycotting the Games.

The net result of the United States' withdrawal would be that 47 nations would participate, with the United States the only absentee. At least, such is the present indication.

The Foreign View.

ABROAD, nations appear to be wondering what all the coil over here is about. As they see it, if Germany wants to make its own rules governing the selection of a German Olympic team, that's its own affair, so long as the International Olympic rules are complied with.

They see no reason for agitation. In fact, they, like Avery Brundage, point to the statement that "no Jewish athlete ever represented Germany in an Olympic final," so why worry about their not being any now?

After the games, if it's found that Germany has violated any regulations, charges may be preferred before the International Olympic Committee and the punishment made to fit the crime, even to expulsion.

Opposition to the idea of convicting Germany in advance, may also impress many in this country as not being correct proceedure.

If a corrective for the future is needed, the Olympic Games Association not an individual nation should take the initiative, is the European view — endorsed in America by conservatives.

Brundage Carries On.

IN the meantime, Avery Brundage, head of the American Olympic Committee, declares that in the matter of putting a team in Berlin in 1936 he will carry on.

The fact is Mr. Brundage has been carrying on little short of scandalously, according to the view of the non-participationists. Brundage is mobilizing his 1936 team already. The colleges are said to be working in the interest of the Olympic Games and funds already are being raised by means of a small fee charged each ticket buyer at collegiate meets and games.

Brundage is planning to draw largely on collegiate athletes for his team, if the Amateur Athletic Union fails him. This he does not expect to happen, since only nine of 34 associations thus far have favored boycotting the games by vote.

An informal meeting of delegates of the Metropolitan A. A. U., most important of all, voted in favor of participation.

The entire Olympic program is under way and going stronger than usually is the case so long before the opening date of the games.

It seems better than a 50-50 probability that in December the A. A. U. will vote FOR participation.

If it does not, then the American Olympic Association and its leaders will face a lot of sleepless nights. Not only the team but the finances then will be difficult to raise.

NEBRASKA BEATS OKLAHOMA, 19-0; CARDWELL STARS

By the Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 26. — Nebraska's Cornhuskers beat their way back into a favored spot in the Big Six Conference football championship race by scoring in each of the first three quarters and nipping a late Oklahoma rally to win from the Sooners, 19 to 0 here today.

The contest had hardly gotten under way when a heavy drizzle started falling, and as the 22,000 spectators huddled into their topcoats and wraps Lloyd Cardwell took a 27-yard pass from Henry Bauer and in three plays went over for a touchdown to start Nebraska off to victory.

The fleet Husker halfback plowed eight yards through the center of the Oklahoma line to score the second Nebraska touchdown on the first play of the second quarter, and Bernie Scherer, end, took a 21-yard pass from Johnny Howell, quarterback, early in the third period to end the scoring.

When Nebraska quit scoring Oklahoma began trying, and on a flurry of passes and spinner plays repeatedly threatened to carry the ball over. The most serious threat came at the start of the final period, but ended when Woodrow Huddleston's pass to Karey Fuqua was knocked down on the goal line.

The Sooners tried 20 passes and completed six, all for substantial yardage. Nebraska completed five of nine flips. The pass yardage was 69 for Nebraska and 67 for Oklahoma. Nebraska gained 112 yards from scrimmage and netted 163 yards to Oklahoma's 139 yards from scrimmage and a net of 168 yards.

ST. LOUIS C. B. C. TIES ST. JOE C. B. C., 7-7

Forward passes were the dominating factor as St. Louis Christian Brothers tied St. Joseph (Mo.) C. B. C., 7 to 7, in an interleague high school football game played last night at St. Louis C. B. C. before about 400 fans.

Both touchdowns were scored in the third quarter and both were results of passes. St. Joe counted first when Martin Mazur flipped a 12-yard pass to Gergeni, standing in the end zone. The same combination from Mazur to Gergeni also added the extra point.

Later in the period, a St. Louis pass from Llaherty to Schulte of about the same distance as the St. Joe touchdown passed produced the St. Louis score. Mercurio's perfect place-kick then tied the count.

BEAUMONT AND SOLDAN VICTORS IN HIGH SCHOOL LEAGUE GAMES

Beaumont and Soldan scored decisive victories in their Public High School League football games yesterday afternoon before a crowd of about 3000 persons at Public Schools Stadium.

Soldan put over two touchdowns to defeat Blewett, 13 to 0, in the opening game of the doubleheader. Beaumont turned on a tremendous scoring drive, smothering Central, 33 to 0.

It was evident from the manner in which Soldan played that Coach Arnold von Lehsten's boys were out to score as many points against their neighbors as they could, for even when they had a 6 to 0 edge they failed to play it safe and kept trying for another touchdown. They succeeded in accomplishing their end for late in the final period Jimmy Dimitriades skipped around right end for their second touchdown. Johnny Hequembourg then passed to Glazner for the extra point.

Soldan counted in the second period when Johnny Hequembourg passed 20 yards to Lunan, who ran 16 yards to Blewett's goal line. Goldberg's try for placement for the extra point was wide and to the right.

Out for a Big Score.

The fact that Soldan was out to pile up a large score and that Blewett was striving desperately to cross Soldan's goal line caused both teams to open up with a deluge of forward passes, some of which were caught and as many of which were intercepted. First one side would pass and the other would intercept and then the process would be reversed.

Blewett's line was out-rushed by the forward wall and only for some splendid blocks on the part of the Blewett secondary, Coach Paul Barnes' charges would not have got away as many of their passes as they did.

A side issue between the Hequembourg boys—Johnny of Soldan and Jimmy of Blewett—ended with a decision for the younger Johnny who battled from the start to the finish. Jimmy was badly bruised and had to be relieved by Gould at the start of the final period.

The defeat dropped Blewett farther in the cellar with three consecutive defeats. Soldan's record is a victory, a tie and a defeat.

Bud Schwenk Stars.

In the second game, Beaumont won with ease. Bud Schwenk, towering Beaumont back, had a field day, getting four touchdowns and two extra points for an individual total of 26 points. Victor Theiling secured the other touchdown and also added the extra point on a line buck.

Schwenk ran his total points for the season to 73, since he counted 21 against Webster and 26 against Edwardsville. Neither of those games was in league play.

The Blue Jackets showed a remarkable comeback after their 6-6 tie with Soldan last week. With Schwenk leading the way, they tallied twice in each of the first two periods, once in the third and not at all in the final session.

That's when the football rooters to stadiums will flock;

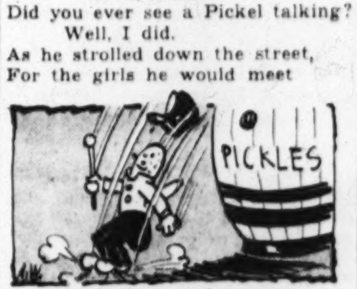
Maj. Ralph Sasse told Halfback Ike Pickle he would give his clothes so greatly admired by Ike if Mississippi State beat Alabama. So, if you see a Pickle walking around dressed up like a Major, you'll understand.

DID you ever see a Pickle walking?
Well, I did.
Did you ever see a Pickel talking?
Well, I did.
As he strolled down the street,
For the girls he would meet



An admiring pose he would strike.
And the Pickle that was walking
And the Pickle that was talking
And the Pickle in the pose was Ike!

speed and running skillfully behind brilliant blocking, scampered 51 yards for the first touchdown of the afternoon.

A fumble by Bob Hudgens, recovered by Allman on the Bear 26-yard line about midtime in the same period, started the second touchdown drive. Kurt Warmbein, billed as 165 pounds, but with dashing speed that made him seem like a ton to the Bears, made six through the line and Brandstatter helped by making it first down on the 15 in two plays. Warmbein passed to Edwards, who was forced out less than a yard from home and Warmbeing went over on the next play.

Agett Paves Way for Score.

Albert Agett, information sheeted as packing only 156 pounds, was the spearhead for the third Spartan touchdown, scored in the second period. Schrader recovered a fumble by Wagner on the Bears' 38 and Agett cracked the line, carrying several Bears with him, to make it first down on the 25. Agett then faded back as though to pass, but when he saw an opening he ran instead and gained five yards. Brandstatter made it first down on the 14, and after a pass failed and Sebo, a substitute back, made four, Agett reeled off the remaining 10 yards to cross the Bear goal line.

The half ended without further scoring, but the Spartans increased their advantage early in the third period, and again it was Agett who made the Washington line look like tissue paper and the Bear tacklers like stationary figures. After Michigan State received a punt on its 38-yard line, Agett broke through and ran to the Bear nine before Tutinsky tackled him from behind, Agett having slowed up as he was dodging other Washington defenders. Brandstatter hit the line for four, added another yard and then took a pass from Agett on the goal line for the fourth Spartan touchdown.

Just before the third period ended Schrader recovered a Washington fumble on the Michigan State 43, and after two line plays gained only two yards, Agett passed to Allmann for a 55-yard advance and another touchdown.

Early in the fourth quarter, a pass by Bukant was intercepted by Halbert on the Bear 34, John Coolidge made seven around end, Coolidge missed a pass from Agett in the end zone. Michigan State was penalized five for offside and Agett showed his speed as he raced around his right end, dodging and hip shifting until he was downed on the three-yard line. Coolidge was stopped on a line buck; but Henry Kutchins, on an end-around, made the necessary yardage for another touchdown.

Agett Scores on 64-Yard Run.

A few minutes later Zboyovski tried to flip a lateral while in the clutches of a tackler and the ball went wild, Coolidge recovering for Michigan State on the Bear 36. On the first play the fleet-footed Agett broke through for a 64-yard run, dodging Bear after Bear until with 20 yards still to go the only men near him were four Spartans, who formed a semi-circle behind him as he ran the rest of the way to the goal line.

Michigan State won the game without reaching very far into Charley Bachman's bag of tricks. There were no complicated plays. One of the fleet-footed backs would take the ball, the interference would form, knocking the Bear defenders out of the way, and there would be a touchdown or a long gain. There were variations, but the impression after the contest was that the Spartans didn't employ more than eight or ten plays.

Speed, fine blocking and an abundance of man-power turned the trick. There were many substitutions. But when a fine back retired to the bench, another was able to take his place. The difference between the squads was immediately noticeable. Conzelman has at most about five or six good football players. When one of them had to retire, a man of less speed and skill had to go in. The Bears were no match for the Spartans. They were over-matched.

Three Bears Injured.

Conzelman's team fought hard against the heavy odds. Wimberly was forced out of the game after a few minutes of the first quarter, with a recurrence of his knee injury, and Bukant played through most of the remainder of the game, Mutt Martin taking his place late in the fourth quarter.

John Lamb and Chick Droke were the other Bears injured. Lamb suffered a sprained left ankle and will be lost to the team for two weeks or more. He was on crutches after the game.

Droke suffered a foot injury and probably will miss next week's game with Creighton.

It will be another week or more before Wimberly can return to duty.

the part of Madison Square Garden, breach of contract by Olin, the petition set forth that Olin had signed a contract before his championship bout with Maxie Rosenbloom last November, to make the first defense of the 175-pound title under its direction, the contract being conditional on his winning the title.

The contract cited in the petition was in the form of a letter to Madison Square Garden, signed by Harold Scadron, Olin's manager, Olin and accepted for the Garden by James J. Johnston, matchmaker.

In it Olin agreed to make his first defense of the championship for the Garden against an opponent and at a time and place to be designated by the Garden, these conditions to be acceptable to Olin but to which he agreed his consent would not be unreasonably withheld.

The Garden, the petition states, also insisted that the match be held under the rules of the New York Athletic Commission and Olin bound himself to engage in no prior fight.

Garden Ready.

Also, it is alleged, the Garden was ready and willing to go through with its part of the contract and even went so far, under the urging of the New York Commission, as to begin negotiations for a bout between Abe Feldman of New York and Al McCoy of Boston, the winner to meet Olin. To this Olin refused to agree.

Then the Garden approached Olin with the idea of a Maxie Rosenbloom-McCoy bout, the winner to meet Olin and again Bob refused.

Finally John Henry Lewis' name was mentioned as an acceptable opponent but still Olin held off from signing with the Garden whose contract stipulated that Bob was to be paid 37½ per cent of the gate minus Federal and State taxes and officials' fees. He has been guaranteed $15,000 here.

The Garden also alleges that Olin importuned them many times to release him from his contract in order that he might fight Lewis in Pittsburgh, Chicago or St. Louis. But to this the Garden refused and in a letter Sept. 9, Johnson informed Olin that the Garden would use every legal means at its command to prevent him from going through with the match in St. Louis.

To all of this Olin turned a deaf ear and went ahead with the contract for the match here under the direction of the Jackson Johnson Post, Raymond and Greenberg.

Counsel for the Post stated yesterday that he felt there was no merit to the Garden's case and that he felt confident the show would be permitted to go on.

Raymond stated that the Garden had finally realized what an important match it had let slip from its grasp as it did the Joe Louis contests recently under other auspices and was making a ninth inning effort to stop it.

Scadron Due Soon.

Scadron, manager of Olin, has not reached St. Louis as yet and is not expected until tomorrow.

Olin's trainer, Ray Arcel, said that neither he nor Olin felt free to make a statement but that they planned to go right ahead with Bob's training as usual except that the champion, nearing condition, would have a holiday today.

Lewis planned to go through his daily paces at the West End Gymnasium, 3941 Olive street, at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

A. cadet and it would be a high score in any match. Summers of Cleveland High led his team with a score of 180 and Dixon was high-point man for the W. M. A. with 167 points.

Chicago Beats Wisconsin; Berwanger Scores Twice.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—Out of a medley of fumbles and intercepted forward passes, Chicago's Maroons fashioned their first victory of the Western Conference season today over Wisconsin's battling Badgers, 13 to 7, in a widely exciting struggle at Stagg Field before 20,000 spectators.

An alert bit of defensive play in the second period set the Maroons up for their first touchdown. Big Jay Berwanger got off one of his long kicks to Wisconsin's five-yard line. The Badgers attempted to get away with a surprise lateral pass play behind their own goal line, but Johnny Wilson fumbled Eddie Jankowski's lateral and Ewald Nyquist for Chicago recovered two yards from the goal.

Berwanger needed just one smash at the middle of the Badger line to convert the break into a touchdown. His attempt at the extra point was blocked.

Berwanger fumbled on his 22-yard line in the third quarter and Wilson recovered, to pave the way for the Badger touchdown. Wilson scored through the line and Lynn Jordan kicked the extra point.

Berwanger ran the next kickoff back 78 yards before he was tossed by John Fish, but the opportunity fled when he fumbled.

The Maroon leader got down to business at that point and redeemed himself by scoring the winning points. He returned Emmet Mortell's punt 12 yards. Omar Fareed, substitute back, shot a 36-yard pass to Petersen, and on the next play flipped a 10-yard toss to Berwanger over the goal line. Berwanger kicked the point.

Chicago fumbled five times, with Berwanger the offender on four occasions, and the Badgers recovered three of the misplays.

MISSISSIPPI, FOE OF ST. L. U. THIS WEEK, LOSES TO MARQUETTE, 33-7

The St. Louis University Billikens play Mississippi at Walsh Stadium next Friday night. A week ago the Billikens lost to Marquette, 20 to 13.

By the Associated Press.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 26. — Marquette University's Golden Avalanche rumbled over Mississippi here today and left the previously unbeaten Southerners piled beneath a 33 to 7 score.

Twelve thousand saw the eleven that had averaged 40 points in five earlier games go scoreless until the last period when a short pass prevented a shutout.

Art Guepe, fleet-footed Marquette quarterback, was the largest rock of the avalanche, counting three touchdowns and helping pave the way for two more by the bullet passing left halfback, Ray Buivid, and the punting fullback, Ward Cuff.

Guepe broke loose on the first play after the kick-off, spearing a 50-yard pass from Buivid on Mississippi's 32-yard line and romping across untouched. He counted again in the second by intercepting a pass from C. Hapes, substitute fullback, and running 22 yards to the goal. In the third period, he stood in the end zone and grabbed a pass from Buivid on the Mississippi 12.

It was Buivid, however, who provided the sensation of the game by breaking through the line and running 76 yards in the first period. He suffered several setbacks at the hands of the Ole Miss' linemen, however, and netted only 29 yards in the 12 times he carried the ball. Guepe collected 72 in 14 attempts.

Cuff, who made two of the points after touchdown, scored Marquette's second touchdown in the second period on a short pass from Buivid beyond the Mississippi 8. Big Leonard Mierzwa, sub for Cuff, counted the other extra point.

Mississippi missed one other good chance to score, but in the final period came through as Mierzwa kicked out of a bad hole to the Marquette 22, from where Rab Rodgers, 166-pound halfback, passed to Bobo Foose, end, who stepped across the goal. Dave Bernard, fullback, place-kicked the extra point.

Bernard, Ned Peters, and Ray Hapes and Clarence Hapes were the Mississippi eleven's heavy ground gainers. The Hapes boys substitute backs, and Peters late in the third quarter, pulled a string of line drives and short runs to the Marquette 5. The Hilltoppers maintained a stubborn defensc, however, and Ole Miss' lost the ball on downs.

The lineups and summary:

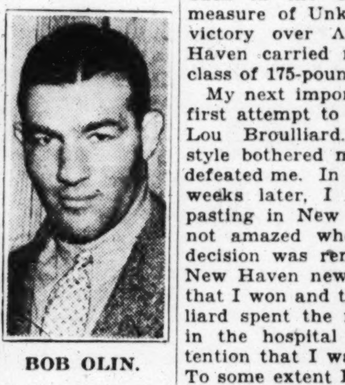
LIFE STORY OF BOB OLIN, WORLD'S LIGHT HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPION.

This is the fourth of a series of six stories dealing with the life of Bob Olin, world lightheavyweight champion. The fifth article will appear tomorrow.

By BOB OLIN

As Told to a Representative of the Post-Dispatch.

MY first bout after the three-month layoff was no easy assignment. Tony Shucco, who was at that time recognized as the leading contender for the light-heavyweight crown, was my opponent and we fought in Albany, Tony's home town. Shucco was a 5-to-1 favorite over me, at least I was told of this by reading an Albany paper the day of the fight.



BOB OLIN.

After I had knocked Shucco down five times and given him a good shellacking, the referee raised Tony's hand at the end of the bout, all of which caused a riot. I grabbed the referee and asked him why he gave the verdict to my opponent and he told me that he was confused all during the contest, giving the credit for the knockdowns to Shucco.

I must have won for immediately following the Shucco fight I realized the dream of every fighter—to box the feature bout in Madison Square Garden. Al Gainer was my foe and I scored sensationally in my debut in the "House that Tex Rickard built." I won every round and I satisfied my manager and myself that I was once more fit and ready to make boxing my business.

About this time, Charley Massare was something of a sensation, being undefeated as a pro, and once again I headlined a Madison Square Garden fistic attractive. I ended Massare's unbroken string of victories. A few weeks later I was back in the Garden taking the measure of Unknown Winston. A victory over Al Gainer in New Haven carried me into the select class of 175-pounders.

My next important start was my first attempt to beat a southpaw—Lou Broulliard. Lou's southpaw style bothered me and I admit he defeated me. In a return bout three weeks later, I gave Lou a good pasting in New Haven and I was not amazed when a "home-town" decision was rendered against me. New Haven newspapers all agreed that I won and the fact that Broulliard spent the next three months in the hospital sustains the contention that I was the real winner. To some extent I was satisfied that Lou got the decision and I remained unhurt and able.

After the Broulliard bout, my manager and myself drove out to California and the night we arrived in Hollywood Bob Godwin, then rated as No. 2 among the 175-pounders, kayoed Benny Miller in three rounds. Godwin was "red hot" out on the West Coast because of his victories over Maxie Rosenbloom and Mickey Walker. After watching Godwin in action I asked my manager to get me a bout with the reigning sensation.

CHESHIRE'S LONG RUNS LEAD TO U.C.L.A. VICTORY

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 26.—A great defensive team turned on its offensive heat today as the undefeated University of California at Los Angeles football team won from the University of Oregon, 33 to 6, before a crowd of approximately 35,000. The victory was the fourth straight for U. C. L. A.

The winners showed dazzling speed to score in every period, with two touchdowns in the second, and kept the visitors away from their goal line until the final period.

Chuck Cheshire, slippery California halfback, ran wild until removed in the third quarter. The elusive Cheshire contributed the longest run of the day—81 yards to a touchdown. He also ran a punt back 32 yards and on the next play took a pass from behind the line of scrimmage from Bill Murphy and ran 42 yards to score. He piled up an average of 15.5 yards in carrying the ball 12 times.

Don Ferguson, diminutive Bruin halfback, came into the game late, ran to a touchdown from 18 yards away and contributed the outstanding defensive play of the day with a smart tackle of Ray Lopez, when the Oregonian seemed headed for a touchdown.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 26.—Minnesota's great football line tamed the Northwestern Wildcats today while fleet-footed Gopher backs combed the flying fur of the invaders for three touchdowns and a 21 to 13 triumph before a homecoming throng of 54,000.

Not until the last period were the Wildcats subdued, however, and then it took a slippery, fast-stepping reserve halfback, Clarence (Tuffy) Thompson, to turn the trick after the first stringers had failed.

Thompson, aided by some bang-up line play by the Gopher forwards, was the spearhead of the bruising, driving attack Minnesota unleashed in the last half to open its Big Ten campaign with a victory and keep unblemished its record of not having suffered a defeat in three years.

Gophers Outplayed in First Half.

The two winning touchdowns were marked up by Thompson when the Wildcaft forwards wilted and couldn't hold the pace they set in the first two periods to outplay Minnesota. Northwestern left the field at half-time on the big end of a 13 to 7 score.

Minnesota made 12 first downs and piled up 289 yards by rushing compared to eight first downs and 196 yards for Northwestern.

OHIO STATE TRAMPLES INDIANA U., 28 TO 6

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 26.—Held to a 7 to 6 edge over the first two periods, Ohio State released its power house in the final half today to crush Indiana, 28 to 6, before a homecoming crowd of 15,000 spectators.

"Jumping Joe" Williams rushed over two of Ohio State's touchdowns.

CARNEGIE'S PASSES BEAT PURDUE, 7-0

By the Associated Press.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 26.—Carnegie Tech despoiled Purdue's uncrossed goal line on a beautiful pass from Matelan to Rosenthal today to win a 7-to-0 intersectional football victory.

The score, which came on the second play of the fourth period, gained 70 yards.

A Purdue homecoming crowd of 17,000 saw the favored Boilermakers upset.

Texas Golf Champion.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Oct. 26.—Mrs. Max Goldthwaite of Fort Worth won the Texas woman's open golf championship here this afternoon, when she defeated Mrs. Charles Newbold of Topeka, Kan., 5 and 4, in the final match. The match, scheduled for 36 holes, ended on the thirty-second when Mrs. Goldthwaite holed out to win.

The Dartmouth touchdowns resulted from long marches, climaxed by the successful bucking of Fullback Joe Kiernan and Fred Hollingworth. George Hedblom, the 153-pound fullback, registered the Harvard score on a 35-yard dash through the Dartmouth line.

GOOD HARVEST EVENS SCORE WITH VICARESS AT EMPIRE

SPANISH WAY ALSO AHEAD OF RECENT VICTOR IN NEW ENGLAND

By the Associated Press.

EMPIRE CITY RACETRACK, N. Y., Oct. 26.—Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Good Harvest, purchased from the B. B. Stable last spring for a reported price of $10,000, ran one of his best races to score a bitter head victory over Spanish Way, a representative of that same B. B. Stable, in the Yorktown Handicap here today. The son of Epinard, shipped here from Agawam, received a powerful ride from Sammy Renick to earn a purse of $4550 before approximately 10,000 sun-drenched fans.

William Woodward's Vicaress, a recent victor over Good Harvest in New England, was beaten six lengths for the place, with Rust, Apprentice (coupled with Spanish Way) and Roustabout following in that order. Good Harvest covered the mile and a furlong in the fast time of 1:51 4-5 and paid 3 to 1. Vicaress was a slight favorite over Roustabout and the Vanderbilt gelding.

Spanish Way, out of the money but twice in two years of hard competition and looked upon as king of the platers, ran his usual honest and consistent race despite the jump into stake company. Vicaress, one that likes to run in front, was unable to gain that position at any time.

Apprentice and Spanish Way were first to the clubhouse turn, while Vicaress shot into third position on the inside. Good Harvest was a bit slow away from the gate, but he picked up the leaders on the back stretch and circled the final bend with his head in front of the bulldoggish Spanish Way. The latter held on tenaciously, but Good Harvest was equal to the test and stuck it out with a fine display of courage. Vicaress saved the show by five lengths from the dull-running Rust. Roustabout never was a factor.

LINCOLN UNIVERSITY AND WILBERFORCE ELEVENS TO PLAY GAME HERE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 26.—The most important Negro College football game in the State of Missouri is scheduled for Nov. 9, when the Lincoln University Tigers and the strong Wilberforce Green Waves of Xenia, Ohio, meet at Edward Walsh Stadium, 5200 Oakland avenue ,at St. Louis. The Oakland avenue, at St. Louis. The Ray Kemp, newly appointed head coach at Lincoln, conditioned the Tigers and last Saturday they scored a 14-0 victory in the final quarter, over the powerful West Virginia Yellowjackets. Tuskegee gained a 3 to 0 victory over Wilberforce on the same day.

The two teams met in St. Louis about three years ago. The Ohio team easily defeated the Lincoln University team at this meeting, but Kemp today has the strongest team Lincoln has ever seen. He has enough first string players to compose two complete teams.

Nathaniel Sweets, former student at Lincoln and general sponsor of the Lincoln-Wilberforce contest, has promised St. Louis one of the biggest Negro college football games the town has ever seen.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 26. — J. Shakespeare's Mucho Gusto defeated the Rosedale Stable's Silk Mask by a nose in the feature race of the Churchill Downs fall meeting getaway card today. M. J. Conley's My Blaze was third.

Failure of Top Dog to show disappointed the holiday crowd, which backed him down to an 11 to 10 favorite. The winner paid $11.80 for $2.

Silk Mask cut a fast pace in the back stretch and led at the home turn. Then Much Gusto, ridden by the veteran Earl Pool, made his bid, getting under the wire by a short nose. Silk Mask held on and outlasted My Blaze by a length and a half. Top Dog was fourth all the way.

Today's racing closed the official fall meeting. There will be a one-day meeting Monday sponsored by the Kentucky Derby Festival Association.

St. Louis U. Frosh Held to 6-6 Score by Cape Team

St. Louis University's freshman football eleven, playing badly as a team but well as individuals, muffed numerous scoring chances and finally ended a game with the Cape Girardeau Teachers College freshman team in a 6-6 tie. About 200 persons watched the contest played at Walsh Stadium yesterday afternoon.

The St. Louis team scored early in the first period when it capitalized on a poor kick by the Teachers that went out of bounds on the 29-yard line. Two plays gained five yards, and then Carl Totsch tossed a pass to Melvin McGonnigle, standing in the end zone, for the touchdown. McGonnigle's attempted place-kick was wide.

Early in the third quarter, Virgil Pope of Cape recovered a fumble on the Billikens' 31-yard line. A penalty and a pass, Malone to Milfelt, gained a first down, and Malone added five yards around end. Malone then passed to Virgil Pope for a 13-yard gain and a touchdown. Pope's attempted place-kick was wide.

The Billiken freshmen had two excellent scoring opportunities later in the game, but lacked power to penetrate Cape's line.

Outstanding for the Billikens were Carl Totsch and Melvin McGonnigle in the backfield. These two hard-driving backs crashed through the Cape line time after time for gains. McGonnigle also did a fine job of punting. In the line, Len Gorman, former C. B. C. center, was the standout, as he did a wonderful job as roving center, time after time stopping the ball carrier after he crossed the line of scrimmage.

BURROUGHS "A" TEAM DEFEATS WESTERN

In the third quarter Western marched down the field to the Burroughs' one-foot line but it failed to put the ball across in four downs.

In the fourth quarter Tschannen smashed off tackle and crossed the Burroughs goal line only to be called back because Western was off sides.

AMATEURS WILL PAIR WITH PROS IN GOLF EVENT

Benny Richter, secretary of the Professional Golfers' Association, has arranged a novel pro-amateur tournament at Meadow Brook Golf Club tomorrow to finish the competitive golf season here, at least so far as the professionals are concerned.

The professionals and amateurs, all who care to play, are to assemble at the club at 1 p. m. Names will be placed in a hat and the name of a professional and an amateur will be drawn. They are to be partners, the professional playing from scratch and the amateur will be allowed his district handicap.

Two Chances.

In the event there are more professionals than amateurs or vice versa, names will be redrawn and perhaps an individual will have two chances for a prize. That is, in the case of an amateur, he may get one professional on the first draw and another on the second.

Entry fee is to be $1.50 and the prizes will be graduated percentage after 10 per cent for expenses is taken off the top.

The annual senior tournament of the District Golf Association is scheduled to be held Wednesday at Norwood Hills Country Club, starting at 1 o'clock.

It is a competition open to amateur golfers, 50 years of age or older and members of clubs belonging to the association.

The contest will be 18 holes of medal play, with handicaps allowed, but the championship will be decided on the basis of the best gross score. There also will be a prize for the low net.

Entry fee will be $1, and entries will be accepted by Bonner Miller, chairman of the committee, or by Norwood Hills Country Club.

Last year the event was won by Tom Clabaugh of Normandie Golf Club, with a 79 for 18 holes. Fer Hemker, also of Normandie, was runner-up and he also won the low net with a 68.

Normandie won the four-man team prize.

Clabaugh will not defend his title, as he has moved to California.

Mrs. Wolff Wins.

Mrs. Clayton Wolff won the Algonquin Golf Club women's golf championship, defeating Mrs. Carl P. Daniel in the final, 1 up.

Mrs. J. L. Bauman was low medalist in the tournament, with an 83, while Mrs. E. M. Brenn won the championship consolation and Mrs. C. C. Crossman won class A, defeating Mrs. C. S. Abel in the final, 5 and 4.

JOHN BURROUGHS WINS FROM WESTERN, 7-0

A lateral pass, Hay to Doughty, enabled the latter to score a touchdown which gave John Burroughs School a 7-to-0 victory over Western Military Academy at John Burroughs yesterday.

NEW CATHOLIC HIGH SCHOOL LEAGUE BEING ORGANIZED

The formation of a new high school league, tentatively labeled the Ill.-Mo. Catholic League, was announced by Brother Eugene Sohm, athletic director at Belleville Cathedral High, last night. The league plans to confine itself only to basketball until it has become solidified.

25-CENT SOCCER WILL BE TRIED BY PRO LEAGUE STARTING TODAY

Although they are experiencing some difficulty in finding a sponsor for their club, the management of the St. Louis Soccer Club (formerly the Centrals) are going right ahead with the business of strengthening their lineup for impending national cup games. Today they will have in goal Sam Dueker, for several seasons a member of John Marre's teams and regarded as one of the best goal tenders in the country. With Dueker in goal, the national champions appear a bit too strong for Frank Vaughan's rebuilt Ben Miller team, whom they meet in the feature match of the St. Louis Soccer League double-header at Sportsman's Park.

The undefeated Spanish Sport Club eleven, which surprised by holding the St. Louis Club to a tie score last Sunday, opposes Phil Kavanaugh's Hellrung club in the featured game at National Park. On the strength of their showing against the Hermanns, the Schumachers and the St. Louis Club, the Spaniards must be regarded as favorites in this important test.

A double-header will be played at each park. The admission charge has been reduced to 25 cents, and ladies will be admitted free today. Kickoff in the first game, 2 p. m.

WRESTLING CHAMPION TO SHOW HERE NOV. 7

Dan O'Mahoney, holder of the world heavyweight wrestling championship, has been matched with Gus Sonnenberg, former holder of the title, for a bout at The Arena here on Thursday, Nov. 7, it was announced last night.

O'Mahoney will appear on Nov. 4 against an opponent to be named later in a bout at Kansas City, it was announced last night by Gabe Kaufman, Kansas City promoter.

QUADS OPPOSE WHITE LINES IN MUNY FOOTBALL TITLE CONTEST

Municipal football reaches the midway point in its schedule this afternoon, when the championship of the first half race will be determined if the two teams tied for first place — Quadrangle Club and the White Lines—reach a decision. If the game results in a tie, the deadlock for first place will remain.

This feature contest will open the Municipal Football Association double-header at the drill grounds south of the Jefferson Memorial tennis courts in Forest Park, beginning at 1:30 o'clock. The second contest, starting at 3:30 o'clock, will be important, too, in a lesser sense, since the occupancy of third place will be at stake when the Weber-Deibels play the Mordie Wolfs.

The Lennemann squad, which drew a bye, will play the Prison eleven on the penitentiary grounds at Jefferson City this morning.

The White Lines and Quads are undefeated, untied and unscored upon all year. Mainly due to a 240-0 early-season victory over the Mordie Wolfs, the Quads have a 17-point offensive margin over the White Lines, 42 points to 25.

If the game becomes a duel of lines and a test of power plays, the Quads would be considered pregame favorites, for they will have a 10-pound-a-man weight advantage, with a 196-pound average line. As far as weight in the backfield is concerned the two quartets are equal.

Survey Shows Game Increase.

MISSOURI game, particularly quail, has this year shown a marked increase over the drouth-ridden 1934 breeding season, a check-up by the State Game and Fish Department now under way indicates.

The check-up, similar to the one made annually by the department for several years prior to the opening of the State's major hunting season, is being conducted by E. L. Preston, director of public information for the department from reports submitted by game wardens and sportsmen.

Although there appears a wide diversity of opinion among those making reports on some species of game nearly all who have returned the questionnaires to the conservation officials say conditions this year have shown a marked imporvement over conditions prevalent last year. Most of them indicate a considerable increase in the quail density and continue to report a steady decrease in the raccoon population.

Harry Rollins of Carthage reports that quail in Jasper County have this year shown a 50 per cent increase over last year but the density is yet low as compared to five years ago. He reports a decrease among rabbits, squirrels, raccoon and possum with a marked increase in foxes.

More Deer in Shannon County.

M. E. Ruble of Eminence, says the deer population in Shannon County has greatly increased this season with some increase noted also in Iron and Reynolds Counties. He also reports a satisfactory increase in wild turkey in the Current River country, with nearly double the number of 1934's birds in Shannon County.

Charles Fleetwood, game warden in the Lake of the Ozarks region, reports a big quail increase in Morgan and Miller counties. He also believes, as the result of early duck flights on the Lake of the Ozarks, that duck hunters this year will fare better than last season.

Taney County reporters are unanimous in their opinions that deer have shown a marked increase in that section during the 1935 breeding season. Taney County is one of the State's major deer and turkey hunting sections. Squirrel and rabbit shooting in that section do not promise as much as usual, the reporters agree.

D. C. Pool of Paris, game warden in Northeast Missouri, says there has been a substantial increase in quail in Monroe, Shelby, Macon, Knox and Adair counties this season, but that rabbits, squirrels, raccoon and oppossum have not fared so well. Pool is a staunch advocate of the anti-automatic shotgun movement.

A slight increase in quail is noted in Ralls County by Fred Bailey of Ralls. He does not believe that county will offer much to the squirrel and rabbit hunter this season.

Wants Closed Raccoon Season.

Over in Gentry County, where the case to determine the legality of the local option quail law was started up to the Supreme Court several years ago, C. T. Sanders of Albany reports a slight increase in the quail population this year. Sanders is advocating a closed season on raccoon.

Fred J. Bergman of Bowling Green reports an increase of quail, rabbits and foxes in Pike County, but a decrease in squirrel, oppossum and raccoon. He says pheasants, planted in that county several years ago, continue to increase. This is one of the few counties in Missouri where pheasants have survived.

Hilary Peiper of O'Fallon reports a good increase of quail and a fair outlook for rabbit and squirrel shooting in St. Charles County. Peiper believes the present daily bag limit on game is too high and advocates cutting the limit as a conservation measure.

Conditions similar to those in St. Charles County are reported for Lincoln and Warren counties with best rabbit hunting in Lincoln County.

Prairie Chicken in Missouri.

I. A. Nieman of Lockwood, Dade County, president of the Lockwood Sportsmen's Club, believes his county is going to furnish good quail shooting this season. Dade County long has had a reputation as being good quail territory. Nieman voices a protest—the pre-season shooting of quail and the illegal shooting of prairie chickens. Dade County is one of Missouri's counties yet showing a prairie chicken population.

Dr. L. V. Cockrum of LaBelle, says there has been a noticeable increase in quail this season but that there are fewer squirrels than usual in Lewis County.

Washington, St. Francois and parts of Perry County are not particularly desirable hunting areas this year in the opinion of Joseph Rehme of Farmington. He attributes the game shortage due partly to heavy hunting by residents of the heavily populated mining area.

Irwin Laramie of Florissant, is authority for the report that St. Louis County promises good quail hunting this fall. He helped plant 25 racoon in St. Louis County this season.

Deer are on the increase in Butler County, W. H. Johnson of Poplar Bluff states.

Other counties showing good conditions for hunting this fall are Green, Franklin, Gasconade, Crawford, southern part of Dent, Wayne and Ripley.

May Use Dogs to Hunt Quail.

Joe E. Green, Chief of Wardens for the State Game and Fish Department last week said many sportsmen had received the erroneous impression that dogs could not be used this season in hunting quail and that he wanted to correct this idea. The usual regulations for quail hunting will prevail this season which opens Nov. 10 and dogs may, of course, be used.

A new duck hunting regulation to be cleared up is the one pertaining to places where blinds may be established. Due to the Federal regulation that duck blinds may not be more than 100 feet from natural vegetation, Green holds that shooting from newly made sandbars in the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers is not permissable. This ruling does not preclude shooting from islands where there is a natural growth providing they are 100 feet from the shore line.

Arrangements have been made with Illinois game officials whereby license from the states of Illinois and Missouri will be recognized on the Mississippi River providing the licensee does not in any case go upon lands taxed by or attached to either of the states from which they hold a license. Under the plan hunters may move from sand bars and islands on any part of the river.

Billikens Have Exhibited Weakness Against Forward Passes in Last Four Games

By James M. Gould.

While the St. Louis University Billikens and their followers have reason to grin broadly over the excellent showing of the team thus far this season, Head Coach Muellerleile would be more apt to laugh aloud if certain weaknesses had not become apparent in recent competition. These weaknesses, with five difficult games remaining on the 1935 schedule, must be corrected if the latter part of the football campaign is to match the first in glory of achievement.

The Billikens have won four games of the six played as against three victories in the entire 1934 season. The 1935 combination has scored 166 points while, in eight 1934 games, the point-total was only 59. All of which is bright and happy, well and good. There's a chuckle coming inasmuch as only opportunities for groaning were expected before the season opened.

The glaring weakness of the team is in the pass-defense employed. Analysis of the play in the Billikens' last four games — a fair enough slice to judge by — shows three victories. But, it also shows that the four opponents—Missouri Mines, Kirksville, Marquette and Arkansas State—have totaled 425 yards by passes. This is 41 more yards than the opposition was able to gain from scrimmage.

Face a Worthy Opponent.

Apparently, it's no job at all for a team to work a flanker loose to receive a long heave. Arkansas State, weak as it was, completed 12 passes for 155 yards and but for some almost inexcusable muffs by receivers might have added greatly to this yard-total. In extenuation, it may be said that the Arkansas passes mostly were completed against reserves who had not had much playing experience this season but, even at that, there would seem to be something radically wrong with an air-defense that permits an average of more than 100 yards to be gained by the enemy by passes per game.

With a powerful Mississippi eleven due for a game next Friday night —a team with a fine air-record— Coach Muellerleile undoubtedly will devote much of his practice-period to strengthening his defense against air-raids.

Another observation is that there has been some wastage of downs in using plunging plays with light backs against powerful lines. Billiken offensive strength seems to lie in thrusts off tackle and dashes around end. Passing also has been generally successful, so why plunge for small yardage?

Recent play by the Billikens has resulted in certain first-string changes. Banfield now has first call at guard with Putnam, Mitchell has won the right to pair with Fitzgerald at end and Cianciolo to work with Rossini at tackle. These pairings give the Billikens strong reserves on the line with Baker, Vollmer, Ruhl, Oates and Best available.

Some Good Running Backs.

Muellerleile's backs are small, but they have "running sense." Hemp, when used as he should be used, in tries at the ends, keeps his feet well and finds "holes" cleverly. Hermanny is inclined to head-down it blindly but Kloepper knows where he's going and goes there. Harris is very fast and once past the line of scrimmage is hard to catch. Hudson can go on special types of plays and Carl Wood, with Kloepper, is the most dependable for line gains.

Last year, the Billikens had severe attacks of "quarterback trouble" but this year, all is well on that front. Lou Drone is a really capable signal caller and he can run and pass as well. He is a great defensive player. Veith, Drone's first relief, has proven a capable substitute as has Nunn at half. Francis Kane, given a chance at full back against Arkansas State, showed excellent form for a debut.

6 STATE ELECTIONS NOV. 5; FEW NATIONAL ISSUES

Republicans Seek to Inject New Deal Questions Into New York Assembly Campaign.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—Six states wild hold elections Nov. 5, but after voting is over the searchers for national political trends may know little more than they do now.

In New York, where a new State Assembly is to be chosen, the Republicans have sought to give a New Deal twist to the proceedings. The Democrats, who won control of the Assembly a year ago for the first time in 22 years, want to make the year's record the issue. Only state issues are involved, the Democrats say.

Nov. 5, voting will take place in Kentucky, Mississippi, Virginia, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and New York.

The Kentucky election took on a national aspect several weeks ago through an incident involving the President of the United States. When Roosevelt's train skirted Kentucky on his trip west, the President invited Gov. Ruby Laffoon, Thomas S. Rhea and Lieutenant-Governor A. B. (Happy) Chandler to visit him. It was intended as a "Harmony" meeting, for Rhea and Gov. Laffoon have been cool toward Chandler ever since Chandler won the Democratic gubernatorial nomination from Rhea in a run-off primary. Gov. Laffoon and Rhea declined the presidential invitation, and only Chandler appeared. He has pledged full support to the Roosevelt Administration. He was assailed the present State Administration of Gov. Laffoon, and has attacked the State Sales Tax Law. Opposing Chandler on the Republican ticket is Circuit Judge King Swope of Lexington who was nominated by a huge majority as a "harmony" candidate.

Two amendments to the State constitution will be voted upon in Kentucky. One would repeal the State prohibition amendment. The other would authorize the Legislature to provide old age pensions. Kentucky will elect eight other State officers in addition to Governor; a Congressman in the Fourth District to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Cap Carden; three district railroad commissioners; all 100 members of the State House of Representatives; and 21 of the 38 State Senators.

Judge Swope in his campaign has kept away from national issues. Lieutenant-Governor Chandler, however, has said that if Kentucky elects a Republican Governor it will be a rebuff to the Roosevelt administration.

New Jersey Democrats have pledged "deep devotion" to President Roosevelt. The Republicans have criticised his policies. Eight State Senators and a full quota of 60 assemblymen will be elected. The Republicans invariably control both houses. The sales tax was a bitter campaign issue in the primaries, but both parties are entering the November election agreed that the tax should be repealed.

Only one State officer, a Superior Court judge, is faced with a contest in Pennsylvania. Judge Jesse E. B. Cunningham, Republican, is seeking re-election. He is opposed by Robert L. Myers, a Deputy Attorney-General, who has been designated by Gov. George H. Earle, Democrat, to "carry the torch of liberalism into the higher court." Myers is campaigning on a New Deal platform, pleading for social and labor legislation.

Two Supreme Court justices will be chosen, but their election is a formality, inasmuch as each party has but one candidate. The nominees are H. Edgar Barnes, now serving on the bench by appointment of Gov. Earle, and Judge Horace Stern of Philadelphia, who won Republican nomination in a seven-sided primary contest.

Philadelphia will elect a Mayor. The Republican candidate is S. Davis Wilson, who was elected City Controller two years ago as a Democrat. He claimed much credit for the election of Gov. Earle, the first Democrat to win the Governorship in Pennsylvania in many years. The Democratic candidate is John B. Kelly, brother of George Kelly, the playwright, and of Walter Kelly, known on the stage as "The Virginia Judge."

The election of a complete Democratic state ticket in Mississippi is a mere formality. Hugh L. White will be elected Governor.

Virginia will elect members of both Houses of the General Assembly. With a few exceptions, the Democratic primaries are equivalent to election. In the last Assembly there were 97 Democrats and three Republicans in the House of Delegates, and 38 Democrats and two Republicans in the Senate.

New York has one congressional contest—in the Twenty-second District for the seat left vacant by the death of A. J. Griffin. The district, normally Democratic, embraces part of the Bronx and New York Counties. Edward W. Curley, the Democratic nominee, is opposing Vincent Santini, Republican.

HERRIOT'S PARTY DEMANDS CURB ON FASCIST LEAGUES

Radical Socialists Call on Him to Quit Cabinet if It "Tolerates Violent Agitation."

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Oct. 26.—The demand of the Radical Socialist party convention today for suppression of "semi-military Fascist Leagues" was regarded as threatening to cause a Cabinet crisis in November.

The convention unanimously adopted a resolution calling on Edouard Herriot, Minister without portfolio, to quit the Government if it "tolerates violent agitation." The resolution asked that measures forbidding mobilizations such as those of the Croix de Feu, veterans' organization, be discussed by the Chamber of Deputies when it reconvenes in November.

Herriot was re-elected president of the party despite the strong opposition of a faction supporting former Premier Edouard Daladier.

Daladier in a speech declared France was in a "revolutionary situation like the eve of 1789."

"We are confronted with the formation of an army for civil war," he said, referring to the Croix de Feu.

Meanwhile, Francois de la Rocque, leader of the Croix de Feu, warned Premier Laval of the danger of troubling or discouraging his followers.

GAIN IN FACTORY PRODUCTION

Employment Also Increased in September, Reserve Board Reports.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—The monthly summary of business and finance issued by the Federal Reserve Board notes further increases in industrial production and employment in September "reflecting in part seasonal influences." Output of factories and mines advanced from 87 per cent of the 1923-25 average in August to 88 per cent in September, chiefly as a result of gains in iron and steel, lumber, cotton and silk textiles, the report says. These gains were offset by declines in automobiles and woolen textiles, but the distribution of goods to consumers increased. Employment gains were registered by foundries, lumber and the machinery industries, cotton mills and silk and rayon mills. Woolen mills and shoe factory employment declined. The general level of wholesale commodity prices showed little change.

On the basis of reports from 33 cities, the Commerce Department says retail trade "throughout most sections resumed its upward trend" during the week ended Wednesday.

BANKERS BACK FROM MEXICO

Held Up by Rebels in Sonora; Ammunition Taken.

By the Associated Press

DOUGLAS, Ariz., Oct. 26.—J. H. Durrell and James Bruce, New York bankers, once reported missing on a hunting trip in the wilds of Sonora, Mexico, were back in Douglas today, on their way home.

The bankers, along with Dr. W. S. Fulton and Lee Paull, both of Wheeling, W. Va., were the object of concern when Arthur D. Norcross, New York publisher, brought news here two weeks ago they had been held up and robbed of their guns and ammunition by bandits.

Durrell said a rebel band came to their hunting camp and took the Americans to their general, who told the bankers he was leading a "religious revolt." He took about 300 rounds of their ammunition.

STATE WPA TO BEGIN ON 40 NEW PROJECTS

Work Expected to Take 10,000 Off Relief Rolls This Week.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 26.—Forty-eight projects with which the State Works Progress Administration expects to take 10,000 men off the relief rolls early next week, were made public here today. A. J. Alport, Assistant State Administrator, said the projects would bring the number employed under the program to 14,750. Eighty-two projects had been started previously.

Matthew S. Murray, State Administrator, announced several days ago he hoped to put 20,000 to work by Nov. 1, about 50,000 to work by Nov. 15, and said he thought he would reach his "peak" of finding employment for 70,000 by Dec. 1.

Alport explained that there were no projects for Kansas City because that city preferred to wait for more acceptable ones which were approved in Washington too late to be included in today's list.

The number of persons to be employed on each of the several projects, and the costs, were not available at the State WPA office here.

Pierson confessed the killing, saying he had lured his parents to the rural spot on a pretext of showing them an Indian relic. He first declared they were shot by a robber.

COMPANY UNION BEATEN IN SAN FRANCISCO PLANT

A. F. L. Organization Wins First Election Conducted by Federal Labor Board.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—The National Labor Relations Board announced today that a so-called company union lost the first election for employe representation the board has conducted in an industrial plant under the Labor Disputes Act.

In a secret ballot, 408 employes of the Simmons Co., San Francisco furniture makers, selected the Furniture Workers Union, Local 1541, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor, to represent them in collective bargaining. An organization called the Co-Operative Union received 98 votes. The company agreed to negotiate with the federation union.

The Labor Board said the election ended a strike called six weeks ago to win recognition for the federation union.

The board announced also the settlement of a dispute the Seattle plant of the Boeing Airplane Co. It said the company had agreed to meet the wishes of the mechanics' union which opposed the promotion of a group known as the Works Council.

SLAVES' COURT RIGHTS LAW INVOKED TO BAR MURDER TRIAL

D. A. Lamson, Accused of Killing Wife in California, Says Fair Hearing Is Denied.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 26. — Invoking a law passed in 1853 designed to assure slaves court rights, counsel for David A. Lamson today petitioned the United States District Court to enjoin the Santa Clara County Court from proceeding with his third trial on a charge of murdering his wife. Attorneys contended the State was depriving Lamson of his right to a fair hearing.

The petition was taken under advisement by District Judge Harold Louderback, who said he would announce a decision Monday morning, when Lamson's trial is scheduled to start before Superior Judge R. R. Syer at San Jose.

HOW JACKIE COOGAN SPENT 21ST BIRTHDAY

London Calls at 3 A. M., Asks About Million; "Under Bed," He Replies.

By the Associated Press.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 26. — Jackie Coogan was 21 years old today, and thereby the possessor of the first portion of the million dollars, more or less, that he earned as a child movie star years ago.

He celebrated these events by spending the morning in the dentist's chair, the afternoon listening to radio reports of a football defeat for his alma mater, the University of Southern California, and the evening attending a birthday party he didn't know he was going to have.

"So I'm a man now," he mused. "I don't know whether I like it or not."

His coming of age was a pretty strenuous affair, he said. The newspapers have been asking for interviews. His mother and his business manager told him he shouldn't see anyone.

He was awakened at 3 a. m. today by telephone calls from London.

"Somebody asked me if I got my million dollars," he said.

"'Sure,' I said, 'they shovelled it under the bed.' I hung up and let mother talk to them."

His room was cluttered with telegrams on one side and with a stack of birthday presents as high as his head on the other. A platinum watch ensemble, with the chain and all the accessories, interested him most. And there were sweaters, polo coats, dressing gowns, three dozen neckties, and some bathing suits.

"And of course I got some money," he said, "but please don't ask me about it. I'm sick of hearing about money."

He said he turned it back to Arthur Bernstein, the business manager, and told his mother to continue the college boy's allowance she now gives him.

Mrs. Coogan said Jackie was "pretty blue" yesterday.

"'We're going on, just as usual, aren't we?' he asked me," she said.

"I asked him what he meant.

"'Well, I just don't want to be bothered with all this,'" he replied.

He had planned to take five persons to a hotel tonight to celebrate his birthday. Instead, a surprise party at a supper club was given and he found his five guests, with 27 others, there.

"Gee, there's a lot of champagne," he said. "I don't drink, but now I'm a man, I guess I could have some champagne."

SCANDAL LIKELY TO FORCE NEW ELECTIONS IN SPAIN

Resignations of Two Ministers Reported After Disclosure of Gambling Graft.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Oct. 26.—Dissolution of Parliament and the ordering of new elections were indicated tonight as possible outgrowths of a scandal in which eight members of the Radical party were said to have been connected with the opening of a gambling casino.

Foreign Minister Alejandro Lerroux and Minister of Education Juan Jose Rocha have presented their resignations, which have been accepted, effective after a special Parliament session Monday night, it was reported.

It was believed a Cabinet crisis would result if Radicals withdraw their 74 Parliament votes from the Government and if they decline to take the two portfolios which Premier Joaquin Chapaprieta is understood to be holding open for them.

Eight officials and former officials—all Radicals—including Aurelio Lerroux, the nephew of the Foreign Minister's adopted son, and former Minister of Interior Salazar Alonso, were involved in charges made by Daniel Straus, Mexican citizen.

In a letter to President Alcala Zamora, Straus said he had paid $68,000 to various officials and in expenses for opening a gambling casino, which was permitted to operate only three hours. He asserted he would have lost an additional $272,000 if he had complied with all the demands made on him.

Gambling has not been permitted in Spain since the fall of the monarchy.

NEW PACIFIC AIR MAIL STAMP

To Go On Sale Nov. 8 in San Francisco and Washington.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—A new 25-cent airmail stamp for use on the trans-Pacific airmail route will go on sale Nov. 8 in San Francisco and Washington and in the rest of the country on the following day.

LEPPERT-ROOS TAKES BUILDING AT 919 LOCUST

Fur Company Leases 4-Story Structure for 10 Years, and Will Occupy It Next Feb. 1.

The Leppert-Roos Fur Co., of which A. G. Solari is president, has acquired a 10-year lease on the four-story building at 919 Locust street. Possession of the new quarters is to be taken Feb. 1, 1936.

The building is owned by the Waldheim Realty & Investment Co., a holding company of Aaron Waldheim. Negotiations for the lease were conducted by the Breitt & Naumer Realty Co., representing both interests. The rental involved was not disclosed.

Established in 1867, the Leppert-Roos Co. is one of the best known fur houses in the retail field in St. Louis. It has occupied quarters at 809 Washington avenue for the last 20 years, under a lease expiring in December. Prior to that it was located for 25 years at 512 Locust street.

The building at 919 Locust street was sought as attractively situated for a retail fur store, with an exclusive women's patronage. It is opposite the Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney department store, and is just west of the Board of Education building at the northwest corner of Ninth and Locust streets, the first floor of which was recently remodeled and subdivided for stores.

The new building is to be remodeled and equipped at a large outlay. A cold storage unit of the newest type is to be installed, together with complete storage facilities. The entire premises will be air conditioned. The exterior will be enhanced with a modern front of distinctive design.

It was one of various buildings, including that at 916-18 Olive street, formerly occupied by Browning-King & Co., under consideration by the fur company which had been in the market for a new location several months. Nat Abrams, Inc., architects and builders, has been awarded the contract for the alterations and remodeling.

$53,000 LENT ON BUILDING ON UNION BOULEVARD

Edward K. Love & Co. has made a new loan of $53,000 to the Julia Investment Co., the holding company of the Stock-Peterman Furniture Co., on its modern three-story building at the southeast corner of Natural Bridge and Union boulevard, in the General Motors district. The building formerly carried a $100,000 loan. The papers were made to the Edward K. Love Realty Co., trustee for G. H. Dudley. The loan, was made for 10 years with amortized payments each year. The rate of interest is 5 per cent.

LEACOCK TO REMAIN AT 921 LOCUST STREET

The Leacock Sporting Goods Co. has negotiated a new long term lease on its present location, 921 Locust street. The company announced last summer that it would move to a new location. Inducements were made by the owner of the property, however, to keep the Leacock Company in the Locust street building, which it has occupied for the last 18 years.

Extensive alterations and modern improvements will be made in the Leacock building, including the installation of a new first floor front. There will be new windows, electric signs and an entirely new interior store arrangement is contemplated.

ACQUIRES BLOCK OF PLANT COMPANY NEAR FREE BRIDGE

Flour Mills at Main and Chouteau Bought by Corneli Seed Company — Main Structure Is Eight Stories.

The buildings of the Plant Flour Mills Co., occupying a square block, bounded by Chouteau avenue, Municipal Free Bridge, Main (First) street and Risley streets, have been purchased by the Corneli Seed Co. Bert H. Lang, vice-president of the First National Bank, handled the transaction. The reported purchase price was close to $125,000, which is conspicuously lower than the original cost of the buildings and site.

The main building of the group, eight stories in height, was built in 1918. It comprises 125,000 square feet of floor space, with a 350,000-bushel grain elevator, composed of a fireproof concrete section of 125,000-bushel capacity, and an ironclad crib frame elevator of 225,000-bushel capacity. It is of structural steel encased in concrete, with matt brick exterior and steel sash throughout. Construction is fireproof and of the highest type.

The premises is served by four Missouri Pacific spur tracks, with a capacity of 30 cars. Ideal truck loading and unloading facilities are provided by a 200-foot loading platform along Chouteau avenue, accessible without crossing the railroad tracks.

The buildings, which contain ample freight elevators and man lifts, will be equipped with the most modern seed-cleaning machinery.

The Corneli Seed Co. is included in the Chamber of Commerce's list of firms in business in St. Louis continually for more than 75 years. It constitutes a consolidation of three of the oldest seed firms in this part of the country—Plant Seed Co., D. I. Bushnell & Co. and Schisler-Corneli Seed Co. Clifford Corneli is chairman of the board.

The Corneli Seed Co. now has its main office and cleaning plant in a five-story building at 230 Biddle street. A cleaning plant and warehouse are also in operation at 715 South Main street. The office and shipping department will be moved to the Chouteau avenue location about Jan. 1, 1936. Eventually all the operations of the concern will be centered at the new location, it was announced.

The business of the firm consists of growing, cleaning and distributing at wholesale all kinds of farm and garden seeds. It maintains growing stations for garden seeds in Michigan, Idaho and in several Western states and buying stations for field seeds in different sections of the Middle West.

The Plant Flour Mills Co. is the successor to the former Geo. P. Plant Milling Co., established in the latter part of the previous century. Frank Kell of Wichita Falls, Tex., is president of the Plant Flour Mills Co., which acquired title to the properties six years ago. Flour milling, however, was discontinued in the plant in 1931. It has since been used as a warehouse and the grain elevator for custom storage of grain.

Corneli Seed Co.'s general counsel, Neuhoff & Millar, handled the legal phase of the transaction.

The building is one of several real estate holdings on Locust street, acquired by Waldheim before the big uplift in prices on this part of the street.

LOAN CONCERN TO MOVE ITS WELLSTON OFFICE

Industrial Company Has Taken Ten-Year Lease on Building at 5928 Easton.

The Industrial Loan Co., affiliated with the Industrial Bank and Trust Co., Nov. 1, will move its Wellston office to a remodeled building at 5928 Easton avenue on which a 10-year lease has been taken. The concern has been located at 1486 Hodiamont avenue for the last 10 years.

Increased business and consequent need for larger quarters and more convenient parking facilities for customers prompted the move, according to Arthur Blumeyer, president of the parent organization. The new location provides triple the floor space. The personnel, headed by Frank Wilhelm, manager, will also be increased. A parking lot with 14,000 square feet is available in the rear of the premises for customers.

The property is owned by the PER Realty Co., represented in the negotiations for the lease by the Edward Glick Co. The Smith-Cook Construction Co. had the contract for building remodeling and fixture installation. The latest "friendly counter' type, with trimmings of marble and bronze, is the work of the St. Louis Bank Building and Equipment Co. A 10-year lease has been signed by the loan company.

Greensfelder lane is a secluded private street occupied by a higher order of medium sized houses. It runs west from Warder avenue and south from Delmar.

The Teasdale avenue ground together with the frontage on both sides of Delmar boulevard, west of Warder, was purchased in September, 1931, by Mr. Remmert from M. B. Greensfelder.

This section of University City has been one of the most active centers in building operations in recent years. Thirty-five houses of a higher order have been built on Gannon avenue, between Warder and Gay avenues, since 1930. Several houses are now in course of construction in this block, one of the most outstanding in University City. Considerable construction also has taken place on Cornell and Stanford avenues in this section, and nearby on Warder and Donne avenues and Lafon place.

He developed the Village of Huntleigh, an outstanding estate development on Lindbergh boulevard ,south of the Manchester road. PLANNING BEYOND CITY LMITS IS URGED

George C. Smith Advocates Step to Provide for Rural or Suburban Branch Plants.

In terms of where the wage jobs are, and where they are going, in terms of changing patterns of city growth, and in terms of change in the competitive advantage of old and new locations, there is plenty happening in the migration going on in American industries and the general movement for decentralization, much more than is generally realized, George C. Smith, St. Louis, assistant to the president, Missouri-Kansas-Texas lines, told the National Association of Real Estate Boards at its annual convention in Atlantic City last week.

Talking before the Association's Industrial Property Division, of which he is a past chairman, Smith, former director of the Industrial Bureau of the Industrial Club of St. Louis, urged the need for regional planning of metropolitan industrial areas far beyond the limits of the central city.

Suburban Branch Plants.

The tendency toward establishing rural or suburban branch plants seems to be growing rapidly. But factory workers, for various reasons, continue to crowd themselves into the central cities. There is lacking in most localities any organized allocation or planning of the region's land area.

"It is not pleasing to contemplate that, in the future, our suburbs will be a mixture of gentlemen's estates and factory sites and that our cities will be more and more crowded with factory workers and the unemployed," Mr. Smith said. "Yet those are the real trends of the times and we are doing little or nothing about it.

"City plans, and the vision of civic bodies, must be widened well beyond the city's actual boundary lines if well planned industrial subdivisions, now readily possible, are to come into being."

Conversely, Smith emphasized that because of the development of economical short haul motor truck transportation, well-planned industrial subdivisions, where city congestion and high tax rates can be avoided by both the industry and its employes, but still retaining the advantages of proximity to raw or semi-finished materials, packages and other accessories, markets and labor reservoirs, are within the realm of possibility near most of our large cities.

Cites French Action.

"So long as we remain relatively free from national industrial regimentation, it is not likely that any national supervision over industrial location will occur, although some pressures are being exerted through industrial housing projects, the TVA, the Subsistence Homesteads and other agencies of our Government. Only in time of war, however, will our Federal Government have much to say about where industry may locate.

"In France, industrial concentration at Paris has become a military menace to such an extent that subsidies are now being offered to industry to encourage their movement out of Paris to outlying and more easily protected provinces and migration, particularly to Southern France and Brittany has already set in," Mr. Smith said. "Lower tax and labor costs are also an inducement. During the World War our own War Industries Board exercised certain authority and control over the location of industries producing military supplies and equipment, in order to avoid the military risks of further concentration of industrial production and possible congestion of transporation facilities."

NRA, Smith said, through failure to recognize natural differences in real wages by the imposition of only slight or no variations in minimum wage scale as between the large city and its smaller competitor, imposed serious restriction on the tendency of industry to establish rural or suburban branch plants.

LOS ANGELES COMPANY TO ESTABLISH BRANCH HERE

The Purex Corporation, with its main plant in Los Angeles, Cal., will establish a branch plant at 4999 Fyler avenue, in St. Louis.

The new plant will be installed in a modern one story building, containing 10,000 square feet of floor space. The building has been taken under a lease. The premises include vacant ground, served by the Missouri Pacific Railroad. The officers of this company contacted the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce and obtained information concerning raw materials and other facilities, pertaining to the manufacture of their products.

The lease was negotiated by Eugene L. Wehmeyer, manager of the Industrial Department of the Breitt and Naumer Realty Company. Mr. Wehmeyer represented both parties in the transaction.

Jay Kuhs Co. represented the Astrup Co.

Joseph F. Dickmann Real Estate Co. acquired a long lease on the building at 804 Chestnut street, owned by Mrs. James M. Franciscus. Possession is to be taken Dec. 1.

Five years later the company moved to larger offices at 19 North Eighth street. It has occupied ground-floor quarters, consisting of two storerooms, at 623 Chestnu tstreet, for the last 20 years.

The latter had been actively identified with the concern from its inception. The concern is one of the best known in the local real estate field. It maintains a branch office at 3115 South Grand boulevard, in the Joseph F. Dickmann Building.

U. S. AGRICULTURAL EXPORTS, $668,779,000 IN 1934-35

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26. — The total value of United States agricultural exports (excluding forest products) for the fiscal year 1934-35 has been revised to $668,779,000 compared with $787,347,000 for the previous year.

According to the Division of Foreign Crops and Markets, last year's unprecedented drouth drastically reduced supplies available for export, with the result that both the volume and value of farm shipments in the 1934-35 season fell below the low level of the preceding year, although the value did not return to the record low level of $509,550,000 for 1932-33.

The relatively small decline in the value of farm exports was due to general increases in export prices for the principal agricultural commodities entering world markets. For example, the unit export value for raw cotton rose from 10.53 cents a pound in 1933-34 to 12.95 cents in 1934-35 and for the same years the export value of bright flue-cured tobacco rose from 25.4 cents a pound to 42.8 cents.

The volume of farm exports decreased at a more rapid rate than did the value. The index volume of exports reached 54 per cent of the pre-war average in 1934-35 against 85 per cent in 1933-34.

Fluctuations in the export of raw cotton, this country's principal agricultural export commodity, have not been as marked as have the changes in the volume of other farm products ordinarily exported, but in 1934 35 cotton exports showed a marked decline. Exports of wheat and wheat flour were first to decline and have fallen to lower levels than have any of the other farm produce exported.

TRADE TRENDS

By the Associated Press.

TOBACCO—The average price of U. S. type 12 grade B-4-F fine-cured tobacco during the week ended Oct. 26 was 20.5 cents a pound compared with 20.4 cents in the preceding week and 27.4 cents in the same week a year ago, according to A. Stich, tobacco economist.

WOOL—A steady advance in the wool top futures market during the last week was accompanied by a further gain in raw wool prices at Boston and other centers, according to the New York Wool Top Exchange Service. The average price of 10 grades of raw wool suitable for making into fine tops showed an increase of 7 points during the week, the Exchange said.

AIR CONDITIONING—The value of orders booked for air conditioning equipment in September amounted to $1,357,000 against $1,415,000 in the preceding month and $1,189,000 in September, 1934, according to figures prepared for the Government census bureau.

HOSIERY—The current bulletin of the National Association of Hosiery Manufacturers says there is "little immediate danger" that Japanese made full-fashioned silk hosiery will offer serious competition to American manufacturers in domestic markets. The article pointed out that the cost of the Japanese article, plus the American tariff of 60 per cent, would prevent importation in any volume that might prove disturbing.

LEATHER—Reports from New England processing centers indicate active buying of sole leather. Soles for men's shoes have recently been advanced around 10 cents a pair, while soles for women's shoes are up about half as much, it is said.

New York Cottonseed Oil.

NATIONS DEVELOPING HOME INDUSTRIES

Reports to Commerce Dept. From Far East, S. America, Africa, Canada.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Many countries have been developing home industry and sources of raw materials. Reports to the Department of Commerce indicate industrialization of the Far East, Latin America, South Africa, Canada and Australia has been proceeding.

Expansion of textile manufacturing in the Far East and South America, of tire production in South Africa and Latin America, steel and iron in Australia and South Africa, cotton growing in Brazil, Turkey, the Argentine and elsewhere, petroleum refining in Europe, are frequent topics of reports to the Commerce Department from its trade scouts.

Besides the efforts of Soviet Russia and Japan, Turkey embarked on a five-year plan under the guidance of Russia, has opened the first cotton mill in its attempt to establish a domestic cotton textile industry, a Commerce Department report says. Turkey is planning three more cotton mills.

Brazil is reported to have made progress in developing its own textile industry, drawing from its expanding production of raw cotton. So have Argentina and India. India, Commerce reports say, is nearing self-sufficiency in sugar production and enlarging its output of tobacco.

European governments, according to other reports, have been encouraging home production of motion pictures, and development of alcohol as a substitute for gasoline and oil refining.

The United States has been trying to free itself from dependence on China in the production of tung oil, an essential raw material in the manufacture of varnishes, electrical goods, printing ink and many other products. It bought $11,000,000 worth last year. The South has been experimenting with the tung tree and C. C. Concannon, chief of the chemical division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, says he is convinced it can be made to flourish in this country after growers have learned how to cultivate it.

Manufacture of rubber goods locally, the Department reports, has extended throughout the world, restricting import demand. But most countries still look to the United States for the major part of their motor car and truck imports.

From Australia it is reported that "hardware is now largely supplied by local production. Paints, iron and steel products are nearly all produced domestically, and approximately the same is true of plumbing and household appliances."

Boston Wool Market.

BOSTON, Oct. 26 (United States Department of Agriculture).—A fairly large volume of wool in the aggregate was moved during the past week, and prices tended firm to slightly higher. A few Ohio fleeces were moved. Strictly combing 58s, 60s, ½ blood Ohio wools brought 32-33 cents in the grease. Other grades of strictly combing Ohio wools were quoted at 32@33 cents in the grease for 64s and finer, at 36 cents for 56s, ⅜ blood, and at 35@36 cents for 48s, 50s, ¼ blood. All grades of territory wools were active, and volume was fairly large on 58s, 60s, ½ blood and 64s and finer at strengthening prices.

Miss Henriette Pirrung Married to Lawrence S. Kaine at Home Ceremony

ATTIRED in a moyen age wedding costume of deep peach-tinted velvet, Miss Henriette Catherine Pirrung, daughter of Mrs. Clifford Willard Gaylord, became the bride at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon of Lawrence Stewart Kaine of New York. The service was read by the Rev. Robert S. Johnston, S. J., president of St. Louis University, at the Gaylord home, 816 South Hanley road.

The bridal party descended the broad, smilax-hung stairway, crossed the living room beneath an arched doorway defined by fern and chrysanthemums and stood in the solarium off the south side of the house. The bride, on the arm of Mr. Gaylord, who gave her in marriage, was attended by her sister, Mrs. Edward Carnarvon Flynn of Pacific Palisades, Cal., as matron of honor, and by Miss Josephine Salorgne Scullin, Miss Martha Nicolaus and Mrs. Warren Kaine of New York, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, bridesmaids. Warren Kaine was his brother's best man and Gilbert Pirrung, the bride's brother; Bradford Shinkle Jr. and W. Staanley Moore of New York, ushers.

The wall back of the wedding party was concealed by a wrought-iron grill studded thickly with bronze chrysanthemums. Each of the arched windows overhead was outlined in greenery, and the entire scene was lighted by peach-colored candles burning in standards graduating from tall bronze central candelabra to shorter ones at the ends of the room. Bronze and yellow blossoms were clustered in profusion on high bookcases which line the rooms, and on mantel ledges. The open terrace off the flower-trimmed dining room was inclosed in canvas to permit additional space for guests.

Rich autumn shades, from the token roses carried by Mrs. Flynn to the deep copper leaf velvet worn by the bridesmaids, emphasized the general color scheme. The gown of the matron of honor was of leaf-green velvet, the neckline a high cowl, and the long, full sleeves caught into a band at the wrists. The simple bodice, slashed to the waist in the back, was secured by a wide gold girdle, and the skirt, designed with box pleating to achieve front fullness, swept into a slight train. The bridesmaids, similarly gowned, carried talisman roses to harmonize with the deep bronze of their attire. Their slippers, like those of Mrs. Flynn, were golden,

Frances Charlot Bows to Society At Dinner Dance

MISS JEANNE FRANCES CHARLOT, daughter of Mrs. Theodore Ferguson Fowler, 43 Kingsbury place, made her debut before society last night at the opening dinner dance of the season at the St. Louis Country Club, when Mr. and Mrs. Fowler entertained about 100 members of the young set.

Wearing the silver lame gown in which she was presented to His Majesty, the Veiled Prophet, earlier in the season, Miss Charlot stood with the host and hostess in the large east lounge of the club to receive their guests informally. Only baskets and bowls of autumn flowers, the gifts to the debutante, decorated the room. Miss Charlot wore a spray of deep purple orchids to set off her costume, which was fashioned in the neo-classic mode, with diagonal bands across the pleated bodice and a skirt shirred at the back to form a short train. Mrs. Fowler was in a gown of deep blue matelasse, simply made with a low V decolletage, adorned at the corsage with large velvet flowers shading from pale yellow to rust brown. Alita Davis Wed To New York Man

AN autumn wedding of social importance was that of Miss Alita Davis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Craft Davis, 13 Westmoreland place, and William Bigler Weaver Jr., of New York, which took place yesterday afternoon at Christ Church Cathedral at 5 o'clock. Canon Claude E. Remick officiated.

Julia M. Walsh Becomes Bride Of C. S. Lamy

MISS JULIA MAFFITT WALSH, daughter of Mrs. Edward J. Walsh, 4349 Westminster place, and Charles Sheehan Lamy, son of C. Oscar Lamy, 1 Forest Ridge, were married yesterday morning in the St. Louis Cathedral. The ceremony was performed at 11 o'clock by Archbishop Glennon and was followed by a mass with the Rev. Sylvester Tucker the celebrant. Charles Bates, John and William Corley and Maurice Lonsway Jr. acted as servers.

The golden high altar was adorned with hundreds of calla lilies and reflected the light of many candles. Rows of cathedral tapers in wrought iron standards were set a few feet within the pews of the nave and marked the aisle down which the bride proceeded on the arm of her brother, Edward J. Walsh.

She was gowned in heavy bridal satin fashioned with a high neckline and very full sleeves edged at the shoulder by a roll of the satin. The gown was trimmed with lace which was worn by the bride's grandmother and sister. A girdle of satin was looped at the front and its tassels fell over heavy folds of the skirt which extended at the back into a long train. The bride's veil of tulle, which was secured by a fillet of pearls, pointed over the forehead in Renaissance style, reached the length of her train. She carried an ivory prayerbook used by her mother on her wedding day.

The bridal attendants were like the figures in a medieval pageant, wearing gowns of apple green velvet with narrow white ruffs at the high neck. They wore short white gloves and small green velvet tricorn hats, set off with white ostrich tips, and carried prayerbooks of the velvet clasping a single gardenia.

Mrs. Edward Walsh wore a costume of dull green crepe, made with a cape edged in Persian lamb. Her toque was black and her shoulder corsage of purple orchids. The bride's grandmother, Mrs. Julia Maffitt Walsh, for whom she is named, was in an ensemble of black velvet with which she wore a silver fox scarf, small velvet hat and orchids. Mrs. Lamy's gown was of ing in a tailored bow at the center back marked the waistline, from which the skirt flaired into a train.

Posters in the foyer of the club, reading "S. S. Country Club Sailing 9 p. m.," "Have Your Passports Examined Here," and "First-Class Passengers," hinted at the decorative scheme within. At regular intervals portholes through which by some ingenious device water seemed to sparkle, relieved the whiteness of the simulated walls, formed by beaver board with riveted seams like a ship. Signal flags of brilliant colors were strung overhead from the drum lights, which were covered with cut-outs of white anchors on red. A shipboard scene, effected by red-throated ventilators and a deck rail, against which the life preservers of the "S. S. Country Club" were hung, created a nautical amosphere in the private dining room. In the main dining room the orchestra players sat behind a deck rail, against a similar background in which the blue of a satin ocean was framed by tall ship's ventilators of chalk white with red linings.

Refreshments were served under a marquee inclosing the south terrace of the club. Here again steamer appurtenances—port and starboard lanterns, white deck chairs and tables—were used. The debutante table, in the shape of a large U, was set in the private dining room, and at a smaller table in the main salon. Mr. and Mrs. Fowler entertained 24 of their friends. All the tables were spread with buff-colored damask, and the chairs were similarly covered. African daisies, varying in color from ivory to carmine, yellow roses and snapdragons, were arranged the length of Miss Charlot's table, which was lighted by candles held in clumps of the flowers.

The guests were: Miss Lila Marshall Childress, Veiled Prophet Queen; Miss Vera Virginia Angert, Miss Suzanne Bitting, Miss Sally Bridge, Miss Betty Brown, Miss Katherine Ward Burg, Miss Katherine Collins, Miss Eugenie Evans, Miss Ruth Deibel, Miss Blanche Elliott Fischel, Miss Elizabeth Cole Freeman, Miss Gertrude Grove, Miss Judith Oliver, Miss Martha O'Neil, Miss Carroll Jones, Miss Elizabeth Myrl and Miss Katherine James, Miss Ann Elizabeth Shapleigh, Miss Ruth Stevens, Miss Marie Taylor Spink, Miss Frances Fuqua Terrell, Miss Kathleen Wallace, Miss Phoebe Weed, Miss Grace Ballard White, Miss Irene Pettus, Miss Jane Wells, Miss Lucile Field Keeler, Miss Nancy Mitchell, Miss Margaret Cabell (and her finance, Orrin Wightman Jr.), Miss Jessie and Miss Nancy Connett, Miss Baura Baumgartner, and Miss Lydia Ann Allen.

Their escorts included: Ray Spencer, Hugh Logan, Edwin Sweet, Willard Boyd III, Dudley Giberson, Clarkson Carpenter Jr., John S. Leahy Jr., Oscar Whitelaw Rexford, Alanson Brown Jr., Arthur Dunn, J. Boyd Ware, Arthur Bland, Brooke Payne, William McChesney, Leighton and Ford Morrill, Edward and William Haverstick, William Julius Polk Jr., William Bernoudy, Reuben C. reception and a wedding dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Davis for the families and a few close friends. The bridal party stood in the reception room, which was elaborately decorated with Easter lilies and greenery. Long-stemmed yellow roses were arranged about the other rooms on the lower floor and the table in the dining room was adorned with white blossoms and lighted by white tapers.

The bride is a former president of the St. Louis Junior League and former St. Louis District Indoor Tennis Champion. After attending Mary Institute she was graduated from the Ethel Walker School, Simsbury, Conn. She was presented to society with her cousin, Miss Alice Davis, daughter of Dwight F. Davis, former Secretary of War, at a party at the St. Louis Country Club in 1927, and the following year was presented to King George and Queen Mary at the Court of St. James. Mr. Weaver is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Weaver of Charleston, W. Va. He is in the foreign department of J. P. Morgan & Co., New York.

Several out-of-town guests attended the wedding. Dwight F. Davis, uncle of the bride, is the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Kauffman, 51 Portland place, and Mr. and Mrs. Dwight F. Davis Jr., are staying with Mr. and Mrs. Harry H. Langenberg, 49 Westmoreland place. Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Moore have with them, Miss Helen Davis, and Miss Mary Bolland Taussig is entertaining Miss Cynthia Davis.

After a wedding trip, Mr. Weaver and his bride will return to New York where they will make their home.

A distinctive feature of the bride's costume was the wide circular train, attached by a narrow panel at the waist, and flowing in satin-lined folds for several yards. The gown itself was fashioned with the slender, fitted bodice of the Renaissance period, its drop shoulder neckline bordered with peach-tinted Italian lace. Velvet drapery lined with peach chiffon embroidered in silver valley lilies fell from the wrists of long, fitted sleeves. All the bride's accessories were tinted to correspond with her gown. Her slippers were peach, and voluminous folds of peach tulle fell from a high moyen age coronet edged and striped with peach pearls. She carried white orchids fringed with lilies of the valley and wore a diamond and platinum bracelet, the gift of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Gaylord wore heliotrope metal jersey, an afternoon ensemble fitted by front shirring, which partly was concealed by a continuous drapery connecting the sleeves, and a train. She wore a small purple hat crossed with silver sweetpeas. Her slippers were purple and she carried a matching velvet purse clipped with diamonds. Her flowers were purple orchids.

Mrs. Lawrence F. Kain, the bridegroom's mother, was gowned in wine-colored velvet with white orchids pinned to the chinchilla collar, and wore a wine velvet hat.

Mr. Gaylord's study was converted into a dining room for the bridal dinner, served from a round table. Irridescent cornucopias filled with lilies of the valley surrounded a tiered wedding cake topped by Cupid resting under a wedding arch. Cigarette and bonbon containers were tulle tied. The table was illuminated by white candles in branched silver candelabra.

Seated there, in addition to the wedding party, were Miss Ruth Jane Jones, Miss Jacquelin Chapman, Thomas C. Hennings Jr. and Benjamin W. Durham.

Out-of-town guests besides the bridegroom's family, included Mrs. J. Boyce Byrne of Los Angeles, formerly of Columbus, O., and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Miller of Columbus.

The bride's gifts to her attendants were crystal clips with monograms in marcasite. Mr. Kaine gave his ushers evening wallets, gold trimmed.

Mr. and Mrs. Kaine will sail from New York for a honeymoon in Nassau, in the Bahamas. They will be at home after Nov. 25 at 570 Park avenue, New York.

The bride's father was the late Henry C. Pirrung of Columbus. She is a graduate of Villa Duchesne and attended the Mount Vernon Seminary, and Miss Madeira's School, both in Washington, and made her debut at the St. Louis Country Club in the fall of 1930, when she served as a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet's ball.

Mr. Kaine is an alumnus of Lafayette University, Easton, Pa. His father died several years ago.

of black velvet, trimmed with bands of brilliants at the edge of the long, full sleeves, and high collar. Her flowers will be purple orchids, arranged in a shoulder bouquet.

Dinner, which will include Russian dishes, will be served in the north bay of the club. Myriads of dull blue lights in chandeliers and candles in numerous seven-branched torcheres will cast a cool light over the Muscovite scene created by cardboard caricatures of familiar Russian types set against the blue-draped walls. The guest of honor will be seated at the center of a long table, where places will be laid for about 24 guests, and over which a cut-out of a Russian Emperor in garish robes will preside. She will face a platform on which the troupe of Russian musicians and entertainers will sit on varying levels before a snow-covered scene. Bright scarves of blue, yellow and red will cover the smaller tables scattered through the dining room, and on them will be set brass candlesticks and brass bowls filled with brilliant flowers. Waitresses in gay Russian skirts and blouses will serve tea from samovars, images of which appeared in the invitations received several weeks ago.

The debutante, who will be feted at several smaller affairs later in the season, attended Mary Institute and Miss Wright's School at Bryn Mawr, Pa. She was graduated last June from Sarah Lawrence College in Bronxville, N. Y.

burgundy matelasse, fashioned simply, with a hat to match. She also wore a silver fox neckpiece and orchids arranged in a shoulder corsage.

The reception was held at the residence of Mrs. Julia Walsh, 4341 Westminster place, adjoining the home of the bride, with which it was connected by canopies. The bride and her attendants received their guests in the drawing room, decorated with calla lilies. Yellow roses were used throughout the living rooms of both homes, where the bridal breakfast was served. The wedding table, which was set in the ballroom of Mrs. Julia Walsh's home, was adorned with a centerpiece of lilies of the valley, and at either end more of the calla lilies were arranged.

The bridal attendants were: Mrs. Robert C. Corley, the former Miss Ellen Walsh, sister of the bride, as matron of honor; Miss Delphine Polk, maid of honor; Miss Frances Bates, Miss Jean Kiley of Boston, Miss Katherine Mahaffey, Miss Jane Lamy, a cousin of the bridegroom, and his sister, Miss Genevieve Lamy.

Edward Bischoff served as best man and the other groomsmen were: John Scott, David Wells, Sidney Kieselhorst, Fred Schlafly, Richard Shelton, Thomas Dempsey, Warren Wagner, Paul Bakewell III, Joseph Lamy, a cousin of the bridegroom from Chicago, and Robert C. Corley.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.

FEW such crescent sagas were projected upon the Manhattan consciousness during the '20s and '30s as the heroic newspaper legend of Stanley Walker, whose "Mrs. Astor's Horse," a study in curious Americana, is to be published Monday. Emerging from the dust storms of Texas with a number of notches already cut in his professional guns, he was, until the appearance of "The Night Club Era," little known outside the sphere and saloons of his calling. Some index of his stature as a city editor may be gathered, however, from the circumstance that at one time his immediate staff included Alva Johnston, Beverly Smith, Edward Angly, Joel Sayre, Ishbel Ross, Edward Dean Sullivan, Denis Tilden Lynch and a number of other of the city's star reporters. Individual anecdotes of his ingenuity at beating the town on news stories became woven into the pattern of an epic.

But it is as a connoisseur of the fatuous, the daffy and the improbable that he is at his best. The fantastic, the fraudulent, the fruity engage his attention as a cynical but delighted observer of the human comedy. Mr. Rosenbach, the bibliophile, thinks nothing of going halfway around the world to track down a forty-nine-line Bible, but Mr. Walker will devote months of painstaking investigation to getting the details of a dance marathon, a hog-calling contest or Mrs. Menken's costume at the Beaux Arts Ball. The gaudy trivia of existence fascinate him and "Mrs. Astor's Horse" is a sort of variorum compilation of these.

As a person Mr. Walker is small, mousey and admittedly a fellow of vicious turn of mind. "Never hit a man when he's down; kick him," is one of his homely aphorisms. He eats vast quantities of rare beef at the Algonquin and absorbs pails of whisky at the Lafayette. A Tattersall waistcoat and Albert Watch chain big enough to moor the Normandie are his favorite attire. One of his closest friends is former Police Commissioner Mulrooney, for whom he entertains a vast admiration. He once, with the aid of headquarters, raided the hangout of a gang of the city's toughest clip joint proprietors. "Let's throw the place into the street," he pleaded with the raiding inspector as the police knocked off the thugs with a little gunfire. "It was the party of a lifetime," he afterward told friends.

It was a regular Cooley evening, with Marion greeting all her guests with whoops or kisses, as the occasion demanded, and Ina Clair getting the biggest hand for wearing a fur-trimmed hat that promptly resulted in every one's referring to her as "Mrs. Daniel Boone." Aileen Winslow, in from Cleveland for a Manhattan safari, entertained the Hall Room Boys, A. K. Mills and Bobby Bruce, and a flock of other local celebrities from Mrs. Kenneth Murchison and Paul Flato to Edwin Hewitt and Louis Ehret scrambled around the cold buffet and made amiable uproar over each other. Pierre's Edward Crandall had done himself proud with supper, which ranged from corned beef hash to truffled foie-gras, and it looks as though Marion will be hanging out the S. R. O. sign hereafter.

Joseph Bryan III, the town's most urbane of managing editors, is circulating the story of the Cleveland millionairess who was ambitious for social honors in the courts of Europe. She gave magnificent parties at fabulous expense, and got to know almost everybody of account, save an extremely retiring French nobleman who had no wish to be exploited for her pleasure, but who, nevertheless, was deluged with invitations to her levees. He grew to look forward to the morning mail with terror, and his secretary got writer's cramp penning regrets. Finally in desperation he caused to be engraved on formal stationery a permanent declination reading: "M. Le Comte de Pommes Frites regrets that a previous engagement makes it impossible for him to accept the kind invitation of Mrs. Hattie Harrigan for the night of ——." The date was left blank.

Elise Harvey Wed To Joseph M. Hohn

MISS ELISE CRAMER HARVEY, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester L. Harvey, 82 Lake Forest, and Joseph M. Hohn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Hohn, 3722 Arkansas avenue, were married at 11 o'clock yesterday morning in the Church of the Little Flower by the Rev. Joseph Tammany.

The altar was banked with palms, greenery and white chrysanthemums. The ceremony was followed by a reception at the Harvey home. White chrysanthemums decorated the living room and dining room and chrysanthemums in the fall colors were used in the hall.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in white mechlin lace, made on princesse lines with long tight sleeves, and the train flaring from the knees. Her tulle veil fell from a halo of braided satin and had a cluster of orange blossoms at the back. She carried lilies of the valley. Her twin sisters, Miss Mary Lou Harvey and Miss Althea Louise Harvey, were maid of honor and bridesmaid, respectively. They were gowned alike in rust colored lace, fashioned with elbow length sleeves and short jackets which flared in the back. There were tiny gold buttons down the front of the blouse and gold buckles. The two wore brown velvet halo hats and brown slippers and carried arm bouquets of talisman roses.

Mrs. Harvey was gowned in deep blue flat crepe trimmed with bands of silver lame. Her velour hat matched her gown and she wore a corsage of lavender orchids. Mrs. Hohn was in a mulberry shade of crepe trimmed with matching lace, a hat of the same shade and a corsage of brown orchids.

The bridegroom's cousin, Edward Hohn, was best man; Dr. Joseph Kessler, groomsman, and Paul Harrington and Bruno Schroeter, ushers.

Following their wedding trip Mr. Hohn and his bride will live at 3185 Portis avenue. They will be there after Nov. 15.

USE POWDER

100% Cleansing Properties
Twice that of tooth paste
Contains No Grit or Pumice
Cannot possibly scratch the softest enamel
Outlasts Tooth Paste 2 to 1

Do As Your Dentist Does—

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleaming white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes. Dentists everywhere recommend Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder cleans off all stains and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter.

Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums and the least possible tooth decay. Powder leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Once you use powder you will never go back to tooth paste. People by the thousands are changing daily.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

DR. LYON'S TOOTH POWDER

Worries of a Man with an Old-Fashioned Furnace—and Fall Here Again

Stop Furnace Worries

By Adding Holland's Amazing
New Powered-Air Principle
To Your Warm-Air Furnace

Quickly Pays for Itself in Fuel Savings and Adds Years to the Life of a Furnace

● It may seem hard to believe but Holland's Powered-Air unit, added to your old warm-air furnace, will make it work better than when it was new! Here are some of the astonishing things it will do: Heat every room in your home evenly regardless of weather conditions—And so end cold weather "register hugging."

Heat your home much quicker. This will be especially noticeable in the mornings because it will end shivery bathrooms and bundled-up breakfast snatching.

End the menace of cold drafty floors, for it gives even room temperature.

End the weary parading up and down basement stairs to "tend" the furnace—because Powered Air gives you so much better control of your fire and burns so much less fuel.

Which brings up the big economy factor. The Powered-Air principle will reduce your furnace's working temperature from 400 to 600 degrees to 150 or 200 degrees. That not only saves fuel, it saves the furnace. And that's where the Powered-Air principle pays for itself

You will find that the controlled ventilation from this system will banish stale parched air from your home . . . will make your home much more comfortable and much healthier! And you also get the benefit of Summer ventilation from the same unit.

Sounds like it's too good to be true? You won't think so if you will have it demonstrated in your home! There are over 100,000 now in use. Home owners will back up these claims from their own experience. Perhaps we can refer you to neighbors who can tell you the whole story.

At least don't face the problems of another Winter with an old furnace until you see what Holland's Powered Air will do for you. See how easily you can add it to your warm-air system and have its economies help make the payments. Estimates and demonstrations gladly furnished.

LONDON PURCHASE

ORIENTAL RUGS

In every instance, the price we quote is truly sensational. In many cases, the Rugs are priced actually less than imitations.

The Imperial Bank of Persia held in London a large stock of Oriental Rugs to be liquidated. To do this without delay, they offered this stock to our buyer on his recent foreign trip, at a low figure which enables us to offer to the public at prices which under ordinary conditions, would be impossible.

Social Affairs In Washington

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.

EMBASSY parties—weddings—horse shows—this indeed has been a very gay autumn season. The weather has been made to order, and although new fur coats have not been on display, there certainly has been a continuous fashion show of new fall dresses and hats at all the parties.

Cabinet members are returning from various trips. The Attorney-General and Mrs. Cummings are back at their charming home, Ruthven, overlooking Rock Creek Park, fairly bristling with good stories of their travels. The Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Morgenthau have returned from a short trip abroad.

On Thursday Mrs. Roosevelt, with members of the Cabinet who are in town, members of the diplomatic corps and other high ranking officials were the guests of Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, at a "private view" of the Agriculture Department's annual chrysanthemum show which is now open to the public.

Mrs. Roosevelt viewed the giant yellow chrysanthemum named for her—a tall stately flower which towered above her.

Through rows of potted sheds little groups of ladies made their way to the long glass house, where row after row of giant blossoms glowed under bright sunlight.

Lawrence Wood "Chip" Robert and his bride, who was Evie Walker before their recent marriage in London, are back here and have taken an apartment at the Mayflower. Mr. Robert lived there before his marriage to Mrs. Walker.

Another reported romance is that of Eppes Hawes Preston and Lloyd Moore, and if rumors are true they are soon to be married. Eppes, who is spending the winter in New York, is the daughter of the former Senator and Mrs. Harry B. Hawes. Mr. Moore, who is also living in New York, is working for the Rockefeller Institute. He is the son of the late Clarence Moore and the late Mrs. Alex Wichfeld, who was Mabel Swift of Chicago.

And everywhere one goes these days you hear that same rumor—Eleanor Davies Cheeseborough and Senator Millard Tydings will soon be married.

CHINESE CALL GREEK ART INDECENT, CLOTHE STATUES

Kimono Put on One Nude at Amoy; Paris Frock on Other.

By the Associated Press.

AMOY, China, Oct. 26.—What was art to ancient Greece, is indecency to this city. Amoy has put clothes on its two examples of Greek statuary.

The unclad female figures were brought here from Europe several years ago by a wealthy merchant. Recently the statues were sold to a photographer.

The new owner saw in them an opportunity to advertise his business and set them up at the entrance to his shop.

Crowds gathered to stare at the classical forms. Then Amoy's moralists got busy. The statues, they decided, were a flagrant violation of the code of decency promulgated by Gen. Shiang Kai-shek's "new life" movement. The photographer was warned that unless he removed his statues or put clothes on them he would be prosecuted.

So today one of the marble pair wears a Japanese kimono, and the other is covered from neck to kness by a dainty organdie frock of Paris cut.

LIKE REM? THEN YOU WILL LIKE REL!

REL is as good for head colds as REM is for coughs

WHEN REL Head Cold Jelly was put on the market a few short weeks ago, the very first people who bought it were those who had had such fine results from REM for Coughs.

They said to themselves, "The REM people know how to make a good cough medicine—I guess they know how to make something good for head colds, too."

And they guessed right! It's the same long years of experience back of REM that account for the great formula of REL Head Cold Jelly.

REL the result of 137 different experiments!

REL didn't just happen. It started out with the big advantage of 49 years of pharmaceutical experience of the makers of REM. Then a study was made of the good and bad points of existing remedies. There were many consultations with distinguished physicians, pharmacists, chemists and pharmacologists. One hundred and thirty-seven different experiments were made. Clinical tests were conducted in actual cases under careful medical supervision.

The result was REL, the finest thing yet for head colds.

Make this One-Side Nose Test

Put a little REL Head Cold Jelly up just one side of your nose. Wait a few seconds—and see what happens! First you'll note a delightful, refreshing "pine woods" odor. Then you'll feel that side of the nostril open—clearly—all the way up. That "stuffed up" feeling is gone! You breathe freely naturally again! And the other side—what a difference!

REL is as good for head colds as REM is for coughs!

POLL OF WAR VIEWS IN 2500 CHURCHES

Congregational and Christian Leaders Expect 300,000 Persons to Reply.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—The Council for Social Action of the Congregational and Christian Churches of America, in a nation-wide poll planned for the week ending Armistice Sunday, Nov. 10, expects to get the first factual information ever obtained on what Christian people of the United States are thinking about war.

Pointed questions are contained in the ballots sent this week to 2500 Congregational and Christain churches in all 48 states, to which responses from 300,000 persons are expected.

The first is a flat question of whether the voter would bear arms or otherwise support war in which the United States might engage, with the answers divided into five categories:

1. Any war which the Government may declare.
2. Any war declared against an internationally recognized aggressor.
3. Only a war declared after making utmost use of every agency for peace.
4. Only a war in which American territory has been invaded.
5. No war.

Hubert C. Herring, director of the council explains:

"These questions and answers not noly will tell us what American Christains believe, but will clarify and solidify the belief in their own minds."

The second section of the ballot asks for a frank "yes" or "no" reply to whether the voter will work for peace through seven designated methods:

Advocacy of League of Nations membership; consultation with other nations supporting the Kellogg peace pact and other peace agreements; national isolation through strict neutrality; more nearly equal distribution of world resources and market; a larger army, navy and air force; abolition of compulsory military training, and Government control of the munitions industry.

Replies will not be signed, but will specify the voter's age group as from 15 to 20 years, from 21 to 35, from 36 to 50 and from 51 years; they will classify the voters by sex, occupation and as church members or non-members.

"We want to know what the young folk who would be called first in a war during the next decade think on the subject, and what the men and women of the World War age classification believe," Herring says in explaining the division by years.

"We expect to create an informed church opinion which, when expressed in the plebiscite, will have an incalculable value in the formation of that larger public opinion on which enduring peace is dependent."

The plebiscite was authorized in June, 1934.

JUDGE BARON CHECKS UP ON RECEIVERSHIPS

Custodians of Estates Also Ordered to File Inventories Within 10 Days.

Receivers and trustees in matters pending before Circuit Judge Max G. Baron, who have failed to file inventories disclosing assets were ordered by him yesterday to file such reports within 10 days. The penalty for failure to comply with the order, the Court announced, will be removal of the receiver or trustee as well as their counsel.

There are about 70 receivership and trustee estates pending before Judge Baron. He said that an examination has disclosed custodians of such estates in many instances have failed to file any inventory.

"I think to permit the trustees and receivers," the Judge said, "to continue for a long period without filing an inventory and then for the them to ask the Court for a final discharge without indicating where and with what they started is imposing a responsibility the Court ought not to be subjected to. On the other hand, I cannot ignore the fact that the responsibility is with the Court to see that such inventories are filed and that a proper order be made to remedy the situation."

The Court pointed out it can only operate in these cases through its officials and their attorneys and it has a right to rely on their doing their duty.

"It is exasperating," Judge Baron declared, "to attempt to pass upon final reports and reconcile the figures of receivers and trustees when there is nothing to start with as a guide. In the absence of an inventory the Court has to accept final figures as truth regardless of the facts, or to arrive at some proper figure, proceed to start into an accounting and hearing which will cover all the years of business."

In the formal order prepared by the Court, it was pointed out that the beneficiaries and creditors of estates are entitled to know what was done with their money and property. The clerk of the Court will make a check of the records to ascertain the exact number of estates in which inventories have not been filed.

The Order of the Arrow will meet Thursday evening at St. Peter's Episcopal Church to plan for its Christmas "good turn." It has been planned tentatively to gather scout uniforms which have been outgrown or discarded, repair them, and give them to Scouts who are not able to purchase new uniforms.

The Order, an honorary organization of older Scouts, will give a dance at Hotel DeSoto, Nov. 9.

Mothers of Cubs in North, South and Central districts will meet at a luncheon at 12:15 p. m., Tuesday, at 1120 Locust street. Another luncheon for mothers in West and Suburban districts will be held there Nov. 4.

Troop 65, Mount Auburn Presbyterian Church, held a banquet and court of honor Tuesday. Among the 75 awards presented were Star Scout badges to Clyde Graham, Joseph Fischer, Richard Clark and William Weiner, and a Life badge to Robert Kelpe.

Robert Sexton was the first scout in his troop, 135, University Methodist Church, to reach the rank of Eagle Scout. The insignia was presented to him at a court of honor Thursday evening.

The four scout troops of St. Charles held a court of honor Tuesday, each troop arranging part of the program. Star Scout badges were presented to George Tainter, Arthur Seiling and Joseph Marheinecke Sr.

Girl Scouts.

The 175 troops of Girl Scouts in St. Louis and St. Louis County will be engaged this week in special activities, in observance of Girl Scout week. Today has been designated Church day, and succeeding days will be devoted specifically to homemaking, handicraft, thrift, hospitality, citizenship and health.

NAZIS' VERSION OF STORY OF JOSEPH AND POTIPHAR'S WIFE

Anti-Semitic Weekly Says Old Testament Account Was "Faked by Hebrew Chroniclers."

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 26.—The publication, "Judenkenner," an anti-Semitic weekly, is conducting a campaign against the Old Testament, and now charges that the story of Joseph and Potiphar's wife was "deliberately faked by Hebrew chroniclers to save the Jew's face."

Joseph, it holds, was not the chaste youth who fled from the woman's amorous advances, leaving his garment behind him, but "a base slave who dared to cast lecherous eyes upon his master's wife; for she, not being a Jewess, had special appeal for the Hebrew."

"Jewish propaganda was rampant even in those days," the "Judenkenner" goes on. "One can safely bet a hundred to one that the story, as told by Potiphar's wife, namely, that Joseph unsuccessfully attacked her, was the true version of the affair. Jewish writers of the period distorted the facts, so as to shift the blame from where it rightly belonged."

Potiphar's wife, the "Judenkenner" says, was most likely an Aryan. In support of this, it quotes Madison Grant's "conquest of a continent," mentioning a blonde, blue-eyed race making its appearance in Egypt about 1300 B. C.

LECTURE, PICTURES ON ALASKA

The Rev. Bernard Hubbard, S. J., to Speak Wednesday Evening.

The Rev. Bernard Hubbard, S. J., will lecture and show motion pictures of his most recent Alaskan expedition at 8 p. m. Wednesday at St. Louis University. The pictures will show the icebergs break from the tidewater glaciers that border the Gulf of Alaska and rise to the surface of the sea.

The expedition ship, the Amelie, cruised around the Yakutat Bay, where glaciers rise to a height of 500 feet and the mountain peaks to 19,000 feet, waiting for the moments when the great icebergs broke to take the pictures.

THE American people today are confront tutional issue which they have had to the Federal Constitution itself in 1787. judgment of one the country's leading auth law and constitutional problems—Dr. Howa professor of constitutional law in Columbia

But that is not all. The issue is not only the largest of a constitutional nature since the founding, it is also the most perplexing, in Dr. McBain's opinion. To use his words, solving the problem which lies ahead "will be an adult's, not a child's undertaking." This sobering conclusion appears in Dr. McBain's carefully-reasoned article, "The Constitution and the New Deal," in the twenty-fifth anniversary number of the Yale Review, quarterly journal of public affairs and literature, whose editor, incidentally, is Dr. Wilbur L. Cross, Democratic Governor of Connecticut, now serving his third term.

As the Columbia professor views the issue, amending the Constitution for the purpose of validating policies of the Roosevelt administration, rejected as unconstitutional by the Supreme Court, could be counted on to affect the existing division of powers between the national government and the States. He bases this on the virtual certainty that some of the powers which would be handed over to Congress by any generally phrased grant of additional authority to legislate would be powers which the States now constitutionally exercise.

Issue Is Broader.

Dr. McBain, however, is at pains to state that the whole issue cannot be stated in terms of national rights as against states' rights. Much more is concerned. To quote from the Yale Review's article:

"It involves a careful consideration of a midnight zone of powers which under the Constitution are now denied or may be denied to both the nation and the States. The issue is, in fact, extraordinarily complicated. Formulating an amendment or amendments to resolve it . . . cannot be smiled across to the people, although it may be admitted that to present it to them for adequate understanding will be well-nigh impossible.

"The campaign that it features will bristle with misrepresentations both deliberately and ignorantly put forward. It is the largest constitutional issue that the American people have faced since 1787, not to forget or minimize the Civil War amendments. And there are no Madison, Hamilton and Jay to write new Federalist papers about it."

Lack of Statesmen.

Students of American history will agree that Dr. McBain makes a telling point in his reference to the lack of statesmen qualified to do for the country today what James Madison, Alexander Hamilton and John Jay did immediately following the constitutional convention. When it became clear then that sentiment in New York was against ratification of the Constitution because the prohibition of state-levied tariffs would abolish a lucrative source of revenue in the port state, Jay and Madison, at Hamilton's invitation, joined with him in issuing 77 semi-weekly essays in behalf of document produced in the Philadelphia convention.

Published in journal form in New York City from October, 1787 to April 1788 and widely circulated throughout the colonies in pamphlets, these masterful expositions of the intent of the various provisions of the Constitution were of enormous help to the side

'American People Confronted With Biggest Constitutional Issue Since 1787 Convention'

Prof. McBain of Columbia U. Declares Generally Phrased Amendment Would Change Fundamentals of Government.

"Any generally-phrased constitutional amendment will firmly entrench the centralizing tendency (of national power) and will almost certainly invite its further increase. What does this portend? Manifestly, a fundamental change in our federal system of government . . ."

By IRVING DILLIARD,
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

THE American people today are confronted by the largest constitutional issue which they have had to face since the framing of the Federal Constitution itself in 1787. This is the considered judgment of one the country's leading authorities on constitutional law and constitutional problems—Dr. Howard Lee McBain, Ruggles professor of constitutional law in Columbia University.

But that is not all. The issue is not only the largest of a constitutional nature since the founding, it is also the most perplexing, in Dr. McBain's opinion. To use his words, solving the problem which lies ahead "will be an adult's, not a child's undertaking." This sobering conclusion appears in Dr. McBain's carefully-reasoned article, "The Constitution and the New Deal," in the twenty-fifth anniversary number of the Yale Review, quarterly journal of public affairs and literature, whose editor, incidentally, is Dr. Wilbur L. Cross, Democratic Governor of Connecticut, now serving his third term.

As the Columbia professor views the issue, amending the Constitution for the purpose of validating policies of the Roosevelt administration, rejected as unconstitutional by the Supreme Court, could be counted on to affect the existing division of powers between the national government and the States. He bases this on the virtual certainty that some of the powers which would be handed over to Congress by any generally phrased grant of additional authority to legislate would be powers which the States now constitutionally exercise.

Issue Is Broader.

Dr. McBain, however, is at pains to state that the whole issue cannot be stated in terms of national rights as against states' rights. Much more is concerned. To quote from the Yale Review's article:

"It involves a careful consideration of a midnight zone of powers which under the Constitution are now denied or may be denied to both the nation and the States. Students of American history will agree that Dr. McBain makes a telling point in his reference to the lack of statesmen qualified to do for the country today what James Madison, Alexander Hamilton and John Jay did immediately following the constitutional convention. When it became clear then that sentiment in New York was against ratification of the Constitution because the prohibition of state-levied tariffs would abolish a lucrative source of revenue in the port state, Jay and Madison, at Hamilton's invitation, joined with him in issuing 77 semi-weekly essays in behalf of document produced in the Philadelphia convention.

Published in journal form in New York City from October, 1787 to April 1788 and widely circulated throughout the colonies in pamphlets, these masterful expositions of the intent of the various provisions of the Constitution were of enormous help to the side of ratification. That they turned the tide in New York, where approval was secured by a margin of only two votes, cannot be questioned. The courts have recognized these papers as a storehouse of American constitutional philosophy, and in spite of their unofficial character, have quoted from them in decisions involving questions of constitutionality.

Experimentation Justified.

It is not to be reasoned from Dr. McBain's statement of the issue that he looks back on the legislative experimentation which followed the inauguration of President Roosevelt as wholly without justification. Indeed, he remembers the times as they were: "Public morale was low; fright was everywhere; needs were desperate."

"Nearly everybody," he writes, "thought that something had to be done. Most of the New Deal policies were frankly experimental; but they were experiments which the country was willing, not to say eager, to see tried. Anything done seemed better than nothing done. Man is not made for a constitution, however, pastworthy and venerable it may be.

"If the Constitution obstructed needed recovery and needed reform, if it prevented the inauguration of governmental activities and controls that would put idle men to work, feed hungry mouths, and revive a famishing national economy, the Constitution should, of course, be made to stand aside either by twisting it out of the way or by changing its letter. There was no time to invoke the tedious legal process of changing its letter even if the New Dealers were prepared to propose appropriate changes, which they probably were not.

"They Elected to Twist."

"They elected, therefore, to twist, relying upon the hoped for, if not confidently expected, succor from the Supreme Court. It was the only course open to them if they were to experiment upon any adequate scale."

The hope or even expectation that the Supreme Court would find a way to uphold the hastily enacted recovery measures was not without its basis in the record of the past, Dr. McBain points out. There were instances in which the court had bridged over or tunneled under apparently insuperable constitutional obstacles. There were, among others, the Insular cases in the early 1900s, the Adamson eight-hour law of 1917 and the emergency rent laws in 1921. Moreover, "many of the alleged obstacles had been created not by anything expressly set forth in the Constitution but by the court's own interpretation of its general terms."

But not even the hope, let alone the expectation, were justified in the light of what happened. Since those early days of 1933 when the New Deal began its attack on what Dr. McBain calls "an economic mess," Chief Justice Hughes, speaking for every member of the Supreme Court in the NRA decision, has said bluntly:

"It is not the province of the court to consider the economic advantages or disadvantages of such a centralized system. It is sufficient to say that the Federal Constitution does not provide for it."

So far as it can be determined by an outside observer, the Pres-

French Attitude Toward Ethiopian Problem Confused by Politics, but Majority Opinion Backs League and Sanctions

"This Is a Dress Rehearsal That Will Be Gone Through With," Ex-Premier Herriot Says of Penalties.

England and France Have a Double Duty to Uphold Geneva Pact and Try to Put End to War.

France Through One Pair of French Eyes

By EDOUARD HERRIOT,
Former Premier of France and Minister Without Portfolio in the Present Laval Cabinet.

(World Copyright, 1935.)

PARIS, Oct. 26.

EVENTS have justified the firm but prudent political course followed in the Italian-Ethiopian conflict.

The League of Nations made every effort to achieve peaceful settlement before applying sanctions. In Geneva, for the first time, we saw international conscience at work. Nothing was more moving than to hear Belgium, through its youthful Premier, pluckily upholding the just cause. Geneva's 1935 session will remain historical.

Not without emotion did I, a faithful democrat, hear a certain representative tell what brought him to take sides with Ethiopia. It was truly also a great sight to find representatives of the dominions bending around England to uphold its views in freely consented association.

Fascism Italy's Affair So Long As It Is Not Forced on Others.

No reasonable, just man can harbor unfriendly sentiments for the Italian people, sober, hard-working and passionately loyal to their country and their homes.

Fascism itself is a purely Italian concern. Provided it does not attempt to foist it on us—in which case I would demand application of the interdictions voted in Geneva—Italy has a perfect right to adopt whichever Government and whichever leader it pleases.

We have been terribly affected by Italy's refusal to accept the conciliatory solutions offered. It seems to us that by collaborating in the task of modernizing Ethiopia, creating roads, schools, and hospitals, and in making healthy and educated the people, our Latin sister would have acquired more enduring glory than is resulting from her military successes.

Italy has refused. She has crossed the Rubicon, in this case a little river marking the frontier between Eritrea and the Abyssinian Province of Tigre.

Military Operations Seem Inconclusive, Up to Present.

The results of the military operations to date have not been decisive. It was easy to foresee that occupation of the Adigrat, Aksum, Aduwa line; it seems Gen. de Bono's forces are now contemplating an advance upon Makale; it also seems that preparations are being methodically carried on the same as in the case of Gen. Graziani's march into Tripolitainia.

But precise details are not obtainable. Is it true than an Italian column is surrounded in Aoussa territory and had been fed by planes? That Italian forces in Ogaden are suffering from persistent rains and great heat? The temperature is said to be reaching 45 degrees centigrade (113 degrees Fahrenheit) in the daytime and makes it impossible to operate tanks.

Can Haile Selassie Weld People in the Fire of War?

On the other side, what will be Abyssinia's wish, what its power? Will the Negus, as his Geneva representative, Tecla Hawariate assured, succeed in welding his people in the fire of war? Or will the Abyssinia feudal system bring out decomposition which the Central Government's utmost striving will be unable to check? No one knows.

Ethiopia now has the right to buy arms. Can Ethiopia pay for them? If we are correctly informed there already are difficulties in war material orders where cash payment is required. Deprived of arms, will Ethiopia be content using guerilla tactics, prolonging the war and awaiting behind the shelter of the mountains for the return of the rainy season and its attendant fevers? No one knows and in such an unprecedented and complex campaign in which Italy must solve the water and gasoline supply problem, not a military or political expert can make a reasonable, logical prediction.

The duel between these countries is not the only vital problem. The question is to know how throughout the war and during the diplomatic negotiations of the League, that will act as an essential guardian of peace, also what will happen to the traditional friendship of England and France on whom in Geneva all eyes were turned, all hopes converged.

It is easier than before to define France's attitude after Hoare's (Sir Samuel Hoare, British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs) speech in which he said "we will apply the covenant in all parts and simultaneously endeavor by all means to arrange a peaceful settlement."

That is exactly France's attitude. Is French opinion as favorable to this line of action as English opinion? It would be disloyal to guarantee this. In our country this question has come to be regarded by certain people as a matter of national politics.

"Supporters of Pact Threatened With Death."

Right parties have sided with Italy, raved and ranted because it has the form of Government which they would like to see applied to France.

Those faithful to the League have been heaped with the foulest abuse. I know this from experience. And as individual liberty is not so efficiently protected in France as it is in England, as in this respect we are far behind England—I write this having carefully considered every word—as we have allowed the free ways of war times to degenerate into rowdiness, as Paris is a backmailer's heaven, as those of us who have unswervingly stood by the pact have often been threatened with death, even in print. A certain number of newspaper men in France are nothing but madmen left at large.

Thus it is that we are treated to the strange comedy which must have astounded public opinion in other countries. At the time of the protocol in 1924 in accordance with Pascal, who declared while might must be just, justice must be strong, we are the ones who clamored for sanctions. Then our English friends refused sanctions and invoked the moral conception, which has since changed. Now in 1935, when English opinion is almost unanimous, the French seem to hold back.

Forces of Democracy In France Back League.

Though the section of French opinion opposing sanctions is vociferous, though it has means the democrats lack, foreign nations must know that the overwhelming majority of Frenchmen, all the forces of democracy, stand faithfully by the League of Nations pact. Together with England we are striving to bring new order to international relations. We will never allow ourselves to revert to the hideous past. And we sincerely congratulate our London friends for not adopting their Ministers' "line of least resistance." We, as undoubtedly they, think this first attempt to apply the pact will present great difficulties and be incomplete. We will solve the difficulties little by little, and block the fissures, this is a dress rehearsal: The important part is that it will be gone through with.

We must look the facts in the face; certain difficulties have arisen during the last few days between England and France. Explanation became necessary. Both undertook it with concern for the truth and a desire not to limit oneself to vague assertions but to reach the solid ground of reality and facts.

Interpreting Agreement On Sanctions by League.

We must grasp the crux of the disagreement. Paragraph 3, Article 16, says:

"Members of the League of Nations agree to give one another mutual support in the application of economic and financial measures in order to limit as far as possible losses which may result from this application. Also, to lend each other support in resting any special measure against them by the rebel state."

England naturally wanted to know our French interpretation of the sentence treating of mutual assistance. I am convinced the English entertain disproportionate fears of an Italian attack and the Italians an unreasonable fear of an English attack.

I have absolute confidence in the statements of the British Government on this subject. But this Government wanted to be sure. It had a right to be. Explanations turned this point. Concerning the conclusion it has reached, Hoare's three sentences will be sufficient: "The French answer was one which we absolutely expected. This answer is perfectly satisfactory and solidarity of the two countries is established. France interprets Article 16 as we ourselves interpret it."

New Duties in Common For England and France.

If this ever was an incident, it is closed. France and England now have a common and double duty:

First, to give an example of perfect subservience to the pact. The future even more than the present is at stake in this present situation.

Second, endeavor to put an end to the war.

England and France agreed to refrain from military sanctions. Hoare said: "No such measures were contemplated by our political leaders."

No war, then, but boycott. For example, Italian ships may not remain more than 24 hours in an English port if carrying war materials. On Oct. 20 from Geneva the General Secretary of the League of Nations informed the various governments of the measures to adopt in applying article 16. This lengthy document minutely describes the measure; for example, it is forbidden to import into countries which are members of the League, materials other than gold and silver bullion from Italy, even if contracts exist.

Answering Questions Raised by Sanctions.

A multitude of questions arose on this point. Can the application of sanctions by a country which had signed a commercial treaty with Italy invalidate the treaty? This answer is negative as the pact is held to be a form of law superior to any treaty.

What will be the result if an Italian, having contracted with a subject of the country applying the sanctions, suffers from the fact that the conditions of the contract cannot be fulfilled? It will be seen that an entirely new chapter of international law must be worked out.

In practice the complications are enormous and the co-ordination committee must be congratulated for its sincere and fruitful efforts; it is the duty of believers in peace the world over to give every help without attacking Italy and solely to honor a solemn international pledge.

Other important tasks, include an endeavor to reach immediately a settlement of the Italian-Ethiopian conflict conforming to the League's principles. Will it be easy? Honetsy compels us to say no. At least, for the present. A section of the Italian press asserts it will be impossible to satisfy the Rome Government while respecting Ethiopia's independence, which the pact guaranteed. Attempts have been made to establish distinction between Abyssinia proper and her colonies, which have been called the Abyssinian marches.

In exchange for concessions in its colonies Ethiopia would get the port of Assal. Nothing at present indicates a solution in this direction.

Sees Need for Improved Italian-British Relations.

If relations between Italy and Great Britain were bettered, that would be the first im-

House Committee Soon To Open St. Louis Hearing On Mortgage Bond Losses

Refinanced Properties in Which, Frequently, Small Investor Was Squeezed, Subject of Congressional Inquiry.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.

WITHIN a week or ten days the House Committee investigating the tragic results of the collapse of the real estate boom of the '20s will go to St. Louis to hold hearings on refinanced properties in which small investors lost heavily. Although he is a minority member of the committee, Representative Everett McK. Dirksen (Rep.), of Pekin, Ill., has taken an active part in pushing the investigation, insisting that the facts be brought to light even when they seem to involve high officials in private and public life. It is probable that Chairman Adolph J. Sabath (Dem.), of Illinois, will go to St. Louis to conduct the hearings and with him Dirksen and Representative Claude A. Fuller (Dem.), of Arkansas, another member of the committee.

Of some $10,000,000,000 or $11,000,000,000 of real estate bonds outstanding, it is estimated, according to Dirksen, that nearly $8,000,000,000 are in default. It was at the committee's hearing in New York that Dirksen became convinced of the need for some form of control over the development of real estate, he says. In the world's largest city speculative building of office buildings and apartments is on a basis of such fierce competition that the interest of both the investor and the tenants—the consumer—is wholly lost sight of, the committee found.

Effect of New Skyscrapers.

Each new skyscraper eclipses the one just preceding it, draws off tenants from its predecessor, blights a neighborhood and causes a whole series of bankruptcies. The Empire State Building, according to Dirksen, has paid neither interest nor principal on its outstanding obligations since its completion. Rockefeller's Radio City, it has been charged by real estate owners and builders, has made use of all the far-flung Rockefeller interests to persuade tenants to take office space. Real estate men say the result has been the ruin of lesser buildings.

"Thousands of people who were depending on interest payments on their bonds, with which to carry on, were deprived of this purchasing power, and in many instances were forced to accept relief," Dirksen says. "It was a sizable factor in aggravating the effect of the depression. The capital market for long-term real estate financing was suddenly destroyed and now stands as a great barrier against every artificial effort to breathe new life into housing and construction enterprises so that additional labor might be employed and the long lines of unemployed shortened.

Small Investor the Loser.

"Since its inception, the present Federal Housing program has accounted for but $35,000,000 of modernization and improvement of property. As for new and large undertakings, they are so few it is scarcely worth while to consider them. Confidence in the real estate bond market has been destroyed and it will be a long time before an elastic market is again built up."

The small investor has been the consistent loser, Dirksen points out. The investigation has piled up volumes of testimony about the practices of so-called bondholders' protective committees and other salvage groups which consume the remains of the investment in trustee's fees, fees for the trustee's attorney, receiver's fees, attorney's fees for the receiver, fees for a management corporation and so forth.

Dummy Corporations.

"In other cases," Dirksen says, "dummy corporations have been set up to bid these properties in at a fraction of their value, thereby wiping out the bondholder's interest. Once these properties are obtained by such sharp dealing and all taxes and expenses retired, the first move of the new owner is to raise the rent to a point far beyond the actual investment which he has in the property and once more we start on the road to disorganization in the real estate field."

Thinking in terms of the need for order, for restraint, Dirksen advances the following idea: "Today, if you want to start a railroad, a bus system, or install a gas or electric distribution system in some municipality, you must first obtain a certificate of necessity and convenience from the Interstate Commerce Commission or from the Public Service Commission of the State in which the municipality is situated. There must be shown a clear need for the additional facilities or the certificate is denied.

Suggests Regulation.

"In a public hearing it must be demonstrated that additional capacity is necessary. The reason for these restrictions must be apparent to all. It seeks to stop ruinous and cutthroat competition, to protect the investment of security holders and to prevent the disorganization of business enterprises that are invested with a certain public interest.

"Surely no one will contend in this highly complex country where millions of people are wholly dependent upon rental properties as a place for habitation, that they are not invested with a public interest and that, therefore, a certificate of necessity should be made mandatory before any one, be he contractor, promoter, speculator, builder or house of issue, be permitted to build large apartment structures and sell the securities to the public. It should be necessary to show clearly, before a certificate of necessity is issued, that there is need for additional housing and that there is a reasonable prospect for continued returns to the investor. Had such a regulation been in effect 10 years ago, we would not today have the spectacle of four million thrifty citizens, robbed of their life's savings by the wholesale default in the realty bond market."

Suggests State Law.

Dirksen is convinced that the states could work out the details of such a regulatory law so it would stand up under a court test.

In 1919 Congress passed a law creating a rent commission which had authority to determine what was a "reasonable" rental in the District of Columbia. Under the law a tenant whose lease expired was permitted to keep his house or apartment at the old rental, or at a slight increase, the amount of which was to be determined by the commission. Thus landlords were prevented from taking unfair advantages of Washington's serious housing crisis which was cited by Congress in justification of the law.

A landlord brought suit to oust a tenant on the ground that his property was being taken without due process of law and that therefore the rent law was unconstitutional. In an opinion written by the late Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes the law was sustained by a majority of the United States Supreme Court.

Justice Holmes' View.

Referring to laws, previously held constitutional, limiting the height of buildings, Justice Holmes said:

"But if, to answer one need, the Legislature may limit the height, to answer another it may limit rent. We do not perceive any reason for denying the justification held good

Tragic Cycle.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

TODAY all eyes are turned on the events in far-away Ethiopia, where Mussolini's marauding Fascists are pillaging and killing the hapless blacks of Haile Selassie. Criticism of Il Duce's drastic steps has grown from indignation to deep hatred in many cases.

Here we have history repeating itself, and the ultimate consequences not far away. The brilliance of Napoleon Bonaparte became his weakness. The mania to conquer, to elevate himself in the eyes of the world as the supreme human being, led him to his downfall. This germ that brings a craving for more power and fame is the weak point of most great leaders who are gifted with uncontrollable brilliance.

The case of the Hohenzollern Emperor, although he undertook his project in a manner not similar to that of the St. Helena exile, falls into the same classification. His dreams were a trifle too big to realize.

Now, 16 years later, this Roman, arrogant, the father of a new party, a new country, displays his all-mightiness by attacking the black innocents for no good reason at all. He has an excuse, but it is a poor attempt to achieve plausibility. Just one man's vanity and greediness can change a world of peaceful routine into a pit of hell. Napoleon's mistake changed the whole map of Europe and brought much grief to his beloved France.

Only time can tell what Mussolini's hasty move will result in. Let us hope time will cut off the present crisis and its ultimate consequences.

IT is beautiful in the hills around Washington, but there is always one place I like to be in the fall, and that place is the Ozarks of Missouri. How I would like to make a trip out there now—catch a few small-mouthed bass and live among the falling leaves for about 10 days!

Following Mark Twain's Advice.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ISN'T it just possible that the large increase in the St. Louis population is due to the advice of one of Missouri's best-loved sons? Greeley said, "Go West, young man, and grow up with the country," but our old friend, Mark Twain, said (see "Life on the Mississippi"). "If you have a dam fool, and you want to realize more on him than you can anywhere else, ship him to St. Louis."

When one stops to think of it, it is a wonder there is enough room in the city to house the native-born, particularly when St. Louis has been unable to extend its city limits to accommodate the few remaining people upstate that still expect to profit by Mark's advice. Over 100,000 St. Louisans have moved out into the county during the past several years. Who knows but that the future may yet unfold the City of St. Louis as a "fool's paradise," what with the native-born moving into the county while the folks back home continue to act on Twain's suggestion when marketing their own home production. I owe my own success in life to wise parents who read his advice. RAISED IN THE STICKS.

IF, as is stated, certain recent indorsements pre-determine the result of next year's Democratic primary elections, would it not now be in order to plow under about three-fourths of the usual crop of politicians?

Why the Pickets Are There.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WITH reference to the letter in your column on Oct. 24, signed "One on Relief," complaining of the pickets at the relief station at 1439 Chouteau, I will say that the pickets are there for a reason.

When you go to apply for a job you must be neat looking, but how in the world can you look neat when your feet are on the ground, your clothes are all ragged and you are half-starved?

I also am on relief. I went to the clinic and I happened to see a statement by my social worker saying that I get $15 a month in groceries, for two; and $3 a month for clothing. But the truth is that in the five months I have been on relief the only clothing we have received has been two used dresses for my wife. What happened to the $3? I asked for clothing and was told there were no funds.

What happens to the sales tax, the gasoline tax, the bridge money and the funds from the United Charities?

The pickets have a good reason for being there. The only way we can change the situation is by organizing and staying organized. If people don't believe this statement, let them go to 1439 Chouteau and listen to the applicants asking for rent, more food and clothing.

EDWARD DODSON.

THE PENSION DEADLOCK.

If further proof were needed of the depths to which the legislative process has sunk in Missouri, it would be the disgraceful situation which has grown out of the attempt to apply the old age assistance statute enacted by the last session of the Legislature.

The direct result of the slipshod way in which this measure was drawn and approved is that while it is only a few months since the legislators left Jefferson City there is now a growing movement for a special session to overhaul the law in the light of actual needs.

Attorney-General McKittrick, whose opinion has been sought by administrators of the law, is leading the call for assembling the legislators. He looks on the pension system now provided as unworkable. Mayor Dickmann and the St. Louis Old Age Assistance Board, headed by Dr. R. Emmet Kane, hold the same view, as does the Central Trades and Labor Union of St. Louis. In St. Joseph and other parts of the State a special session is being urged.

Let us look at the arguments for and against a special session. First among the former is what is said to be inadequate appropriation. The promise held out to the State's indigent aged was a pension of a maximum of $30 a month. This was based on an estimated 12,000 persons in the State who would be eligible. That this was a woeful miscalculation is indicated by the fact that with no applications being received in St. Louis, upward of 70,000 applications are now on file in the State. Attorney-General McKittrick, Dr. Kane and others say this means that the number of applications accepted will probably be so large as to reduce each person's monthly share to $3 or $4 if no more than the already appropriated $2,500,000 is available during the remainder of 1935 and 1936.

The next argument for a special session concerns the administrative defects of the law. Provision was made that each member of the State Eleemosynary Board should receive $50 a month more, but none was made for the payment of local office forces. Here in St. Louis, applicants were received by a staff of unpaid volunteer workers through September. Then came the appointment of politically sponsored investigators, and Dr. Kane and his associates, viewing this as insult added to injury, closed the office.

According to Mr. McKittrick the law makes no provision for paying the 50 investigators chosen to pass on all the applications in the State. Be that as it may, it is obvious that 50 investigators are not enough to handle all Missouri, and that the assignment of four investigators to St. Louis is nothing short of ridiculous! If one trained investigator does well to investigate and pass on four applications a day, 50 untrained investigators certainly could not handle more than 200 daily. This means that many applicants would be long dead before their eligibility was even so much as inquired into.

A third reason for calling the Legislature is presented by the age differences in the Missouri and Federal systems. The Missouri requirement is that the applicant must be 70 years old. The Social Security Act, passed by the last session of Congress, authorized an appropriation of approximately $50,000,000 to assist the states in caring for dependent persons of 65 or older, such grants to be made on a 50-50 matching basis, and the Federal share not to exceed $15 a month. While the filibuster of the late Senator Long killed the appropriation to carry out this act, the money doubtless will be made available soon after Congress convenes in January.

Mr. McKittrick reasons that it would be better to have a special session submit an amendment to the Missouri Constitution, changing the age limit from 70 to 65, so it can be voted on in November, 1936, than to wait until the next regular session of the Legislature in 1937. In the latter event, unless a special election should be held, the State could not bring its age limit into conformity with the Federal law until November, 1938.

Leading the opposition to a special session are Gov. Park and Senator Donnelly of Lebanon, president pro tem of the State Senate. Their position is that no one will know until all the applications have been investigated how many Missourians will be eligible for pensions and that until this is determined no one will know how large an appropriation is needed.

While it is true that there are purely political reasons why the Governor would not want a special session at this time, it is also true that his objection is not without its good points. That is, unless the legislators have a better basis for estimating the number who will be eligible for pensions than they had last spring, it would be useless to call them together. Dr. Kane and others, however, say that this can be reckoned on the basis of applications already filed.

Thus, the matter of a special session is an open question. That such a session is to be avoided if possible goes without saying. Even if the session confined itself to the subject of old age assistance it could not be held for less than $10,000 to $20,000 and it would probably cost much more, since the Missouri Legislature is a notorious time waster. But the cost is not the most important consideration. What assurance is there that the revised law would be an improvement on what we now have?

It may develop that a special session is the only way out. But it should be turned to only as the last resort. Meanwhile, every effort should be made to make the law, such as it is, work with the means at our command, such as they are. Once again the Legislature has failed Missouri—this time in particular, it has failed the aged poor of the State. Once again we see the need for fundamental reform in State Government, whether it be the Kansas Legislative Council or the Nebraska one-chamber Legislature, or some other device.

The old age pension deadlock literally shouts to us that we cannot go on as we have been in Missouri.

A HOMING PIGEON.

Ephemeral foam angles her prow, her screw chatters incessantly to the sea, as the Manhattan knocks her way to New York. Aboard is Jimmie Walker, once Mr. Broadway, "a fellow of infinite jest," but now "Alas, poor Yorick." To what is he returning? No personal political ambition yips at his meditative heels, he confesses, but he has not lost interest in public affairs, and in that vast solitude that somehow surrounds a ship, he thinks it likely he will make a speech or two in the campaign next year.

The occasion will be curiously awaited. To listen to a sophisticate spinning his posthumous wise-cracks—for that is about what it would be—might have a dreary touch of novelty. It was Cartoonist Fitzpatrick who waved the world's farewell to Jimmie Walker in the sobriquet "The Man Who Was Yesterday." That is all. There is no today on his calendar.

"POPULAR CLAMOR" IN NEW JERSEY.

After being in force only 117 days, New Jersey's 2 per cent sales tax law was knocked out at a special session of the Legislature, called for that purpose. Only three votes were cast against the measure in both houses, and the bill was signed by Gov. Hoffman, who had advocated the tax as the only way to finance emergency relief. The Governor signed the bill with reluctance. "I am signing this bill in red ink," said he, "because it means an unbalanced budget and maybe hungry people."

What happened was that the sales tax aroused a popular revolt in New Jersey. The subject has been hotly debated for years and, when the tax was actually put into effect, opposition to it rose to a fever pitch. Gov. Hoffman accused the Legislature of yielding to "popular clamor," but when "popular clamor" is so soundly based as it was in this instance, it would be a denial of democracy for the Legislature to refuse to act.

We say soundly based for two reasons: One is that the sales tax is an odious, oppressive form of taxation, bearing most heavily in proportion upon those with the smallest income. It is an upside-down income tax. It can never be justified except in the greatest emergency and after all juster forms of taxation have been employed. That brings us to the second reason, namely, the fact that New Jersey has no State income tax. For so rich a State as New Jersey to enact a sales tax before it passes an income tax is certainly to justify "popular clamor."

Funds for relief sufficient to last until the end of January are available in New Jersey, so that plenty of time remains to place before the 1936 Legislature an income tax proposal. Gov. Hoffman may have the pleasure of signing such an enactment with black ink.

AS THE ENGLISH SEE ENGLAND.

We have heard from high sources about England's fine progress toward recovery. Senator Borah referred to it not long ago. He credited it to the country's managed currency. Col. Knox, as we all know, has become almost lyrical in discussing England's happy circumstances, and, when gazing at the wreckage of the home land, shakes a head as doleful as old King Lear's.

Well, what are they saying in England? The Labor party, in a campaign blast, remarks:

> At the end of four barren years the country faces the grim spectacle of 2,000,000 without work, with an army of well over a million and a half on the poor law, and with a deepening tragedy in distressed areas.

The announcement further charges the National Government with lavish generosity to industry after industry, but "not a single constructive step has been taken to improve the lot of the people."

We needn't accept this severe arraignment of the party in power as gospel. There is politics in it, just as there is politics in the asseverations of our own politicians, on both sides.

Politics is politics, "from Greenland's icy mountains to India's coral strand."

"THE NAME IS ST. LOUIS."

The St. Louis Chamber of Commerce talked about itself the other night. Its president, Thomas N. Dysart, had the floor. He feels the organization has done a pretty good job. High lights in the review were the National Dairy Show and the American Legion convention which the chamber helped importantly to bring here. The sum of its activities was presented in the assertion that the city's business and industrial record for the first nine months of 1935 is consistently better than that of any other section of the country.

That statement might be accepted as local pride expressing itself in the language of boosterism. But an impartial and expert witness has been heard who supports the claim and goes on to tell us nice things about our town which we hadn't suspected.

Ralph B. Wilson, vice-president of Babson Reports, Inc., says St. Louis is "the economic center of North America." How come? Aviation is the answer. Commercial distance today is measured, not as formerly in units of miles, but in units of hours. The old centripetal force is at work, drawing all localities toward a common midpoint. "And the name of that focus is St. Louis."

A few Babsonian statistics: General business in St. Louis is 19 per cent above a year ago, and about 45 per cent from the depression's low. The prospects are bright for continuous improvement. Next January is likely to be 25 per cent ahead of last January.

Mr. Wilson insists that "general business is much better than many realize and far better than some are willing to admit." He backs his words with figures.

May we now lay a wreath on the depression, voice the hope feelingly that, now that it is dead, it will stay dead forever? Not yet. Like the Ancient Mariner, unemployment remains obstinately present, an unwelcome guest. Business, so Gen. Hugh Johnson says, has made a 60 per cent recovery, and jobs have increased by 16 per cent, and, on that calculation, we shall have 6,000,000 unemployed when the country has come all the way back.

That is the problem to be solved before prosperity can be asked to take a bow.

THE VETERANS AND FREE HOSPITALIZATION.

One aspect of the Government's bounty to veterans often overlooked was emphasized by Gen. Hines, Veterans' Bureau Administrator, in a recent New York speech. It is free hospitalization for ailments having no connection with military service. According to Gen. Hines, of 39,444 men receiving hospital care, only 11,511 are "suffering from diseases or injuries attributed to military service."

While civil hospitals are hard pressed for lack of funds to continue operation, veterans' hospitals are loaded with cases which do not properly belong there. In the fiscal year 1934-35, the cost to the taxpayer of operating the latter was $39,855,873. If the veterans' hospital system were confined, as it should be, to war-connected disabilities, this bill could be cut perhaps 75 per cent.

The Government owes no debt to men who emerged from the service with no physical or mental impairment, unless it can be urged that the only patriotism is patriotism for a price. Yet it has paid billions of dollars in benefits to such men, and will continue to do so until the taxpayer rises in revolt.

A Compelling Narrative

THROUGH FORBIDDEN TIBET. By Harrison Forman. (Longmans, Green & Co., New York City.)

IT is seldom that a blurbster's superlative may be accepted as signifying much more than a salesman's effort to high-pressure prospective customers; but the blurb writer for the book here considered was simply stating an obvious fact in describing Harrison Forman's Tibetan adventure as "one of the most amazing of our time." When one considers the difficulties experienced by various elaborately organized expeditions into the still mysterious country on "the roof of the world," this devil-may-care American's exploit, absolutely "on his own," would seem impossible if it hadn't happened.

Even after reading the author's circumstantial account of his adventures, it still remains less than clear how he managed not only to win his way through that vast "forbidden land," but also to make friends among the people. The natives themselves were sufficiently impressed to name him "Protected of the Gods." Perhaps the headlong, happy enthusiasm with which he entered upon the adventure, and the consequent loss of that intense self-regard which is the source of fear and the curse of most men, did somehow act as a powerful protective agency. There may well be more than Sabbath sentiment in the ancient saying, "If I lose myself, I save myself."

It happened thus. Forman had spent some years in China selling military planes to the Chinese Government. With the end of the Shanghai fighting (in which the author participated), business languished, and Forman organized a well-equipped expedition with 20 men, the purpose of which was to open a motor trade route to Chinese Eastern Turkestan. The expedition ended in defeat by bandits in the Province of Kansu, not far from the border of Tibet.

Then Forman, chancing to hear from a young American missionary about a mountain—Amnyi Machin, said to be higher than Everest—somewhere near the headwaters of the Yellow River, suddenly realized that he was under compulsion to go there and have a look. In company with the missionary and a young Russian, he set out in search of the mountain. In a fight with bandits, both of his companions were killed and he was on the point of returning to the coast when he was overwhelmed by a brilliant idea! Why not go alone? Part of him knew it couldn't be done; but the stronger part didn't care if it couldn't. So with a "here-goes-nothing" spirit, Forman set out alone with a rifle, a pair of pistols, ammunition, a small moving picture camera, and one of the "still" variety. The remainder of his equipment was slight indeed, being limited to the capacity of the horse he rode.

He tells us of the glorious sense of release and uplift, amounting to something like ecstasy, that he experienced when he headed his horse into the vast lonely country; and it seems that he never quite lost that exuberant sense of life at flood throughout his long and hazardous journey. With a knowledge of the Chinese tongue to aid him, he soon began to pick up the Tibetan language.

His first comrade on the road was an old holy man who was on the way to some sort of shamanistic convention, and the two became fast friends. Later he fell in with three harum-scarum young Tibetan warriors, and the result seems to have been not wholly unlike love at first sight. At any rate, the four adventurers were soon like old pals, and it is good to feel the rollicking spirit of comradeship, as the author reveals it, that grew up between these men of widely differing cultures, and to note how it developed under the stress of danger into that blood-brotherhood which transcends race and is perhaps as fine a relationship as men may know.

There were several desperate little battles with bandits and, as the author describes them in his careless, laughing way, they sometimes make one grip the book and want to shout. From the last of these encounters only the author escaped, apparently by sheer luck.

But the narrative is not devoted wholly to adventure. By virtue of his happy audacity, Forman managed to get rather on the sacred inside of things. There is a picture of him taken with a "Living Buddha" who had never before seen a white man; and the bare fact of the picture alone would signify the unusual intimacy which the author was able to bring about somehow. He was a guest in various lamaseries, where he lost no opportunity to learn, and he was the guest of a "woman Buddha" under circumstances describable as fantastic.

With the aid of his friend and traveling companion, the old holy man previously mentioned, he attended a meeting of shamans in a sacred grove, being disguised as one of them, and observed some phenomena which, as the author thoroughly realizes, seem in the telling what any well-constituted Westerner would call hopelessly "goofy;" but Forman, like others before him, isn't at all convinced that he was wholly deluded.

Incidentally, Forman knows how to write—which, first of all, means that he sees vividly, feels deeply, has something with life in it to say, and says it—not by way of showing anyone that he is a "writer," but by way of sharing with others the thrill of his own deep interest in what he saw and felt.

SUNRISE TO EVENING STAR. By Marina King. (Funk & Wagnalls Co., New York City.)

WHEN a person has come to the evening star and looks back to the sunrise and tells the story of the 70 years between, it is likely to be a very dull story—or a very interesting one. The story that Marina King tells of her 70 years in South Africa is the very interesting kind, for 70 years in South Africa did not kill Mrs. King's joy of living or dull her delight in telling about it.

It is the story of a brave woman who carried on when it was difficult and sometimes dangerous to carry on, supported by an unfailing spirit of adventure and sense of humor. It started with a journey as a child from Cape Colony to Natal by ox-cart, and ended with an automobile trip across Africa when she was 74, partly to confound the doctors who said she had a weak heart, but mostly because she wanted another adventure.

In between, there was prospecting and farming and hotel-keeping in the gold fields, brightened by occasional letters from Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, and infrequent returns to the social life of London.

GIRL SCOUTS IN THE OZARKS. By Nancy Nance. (Alfred A. Knopf, New York City.)

THE lively doings of a group of Girl Scouts, vacationing in the Ozarks, and the lore of the hill folk—their customs, cookery and traditions—are cleverly twined together in this book by a thread of plot which includes a real adventure. The pervading atmosphere of simple friendliness and wholesome outdoor activity will doubtless dissipate any incredulity that an otherwise admirable scout leader would tacitly acquiesce in the use of her troop as "bait" to help capture a band of criminals, or any surprise that the heroine should be the youngster who took long chances and eventually got the whole group into danger (even though innocently). Besides, it was her scout training that helped her out of her scrape.

The dialect is handled skillfully; the beauties of the Ozark region are invitingly portrayed, and frequent references to such delicacies as hickory-cured ham, fried pies, cracklin' cornbread, wild honey and freshly caught fish would tempt a gourmet.

The illustrations, by Raymond Bishop, are striking in their woodcut simplicity.

WHEN T. J. Maloney set about assembling "U. S. Camera, 1935," his aim was to produce an American annual worthy of American photography. American cameramen supplied him with photographs worthy of the aim. The result is a volume of about 200 pages that worthily reproduces the camera-men's productions and worthily attains the editor's aim.

The idea was, as expressed by M. F. Agha in the preface, that a country which has more skyscrapers, saxophones and tap dancers might be found to have bigger and better photographers, and it was found to be even so, and the book is the proof that it is so. The collection brings together the best achievements of the year in the varied fields of photography. There is no text except brief introductions to the different sections. The photographs tell their own story, and tell it well.

ident's plan, according to Dr. McBain, now appears to be to obtain a more or less complete series of pronouncements by the Supreme Court on New Deal legislation. Whereas during the first two years of the administration, action by the court was purposely avoided, the idea now seems to be that the way out of the constitutional dilemma is to get one decision after another as rapidly as possible.

As the author puts it: "We shall then see where we stand constitutionally. We shall know more about what can and cannot be done under the fundamental law as it is written and expounded. If the harvest of unconstitutionality is abundant, let one or more constitutional amendments be proposed. Let the people thus decide the fate of the New Deal."

Cites President's Letter.

That President Roosevelt has at no time declared his intentions in so many words, Dr. McBain is careful to make clear. But, he asserts, the program was the same as set forth in the letter sent last June by the White House to Representative Hill of Washington, chairman of the subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee, before which the Guffey-Snyder coal bill, since enacted, was then pending. This was the letter in which the President in effect urged the establishment of a "little NRA" in the bituminous coal industry, notwithstanding "doubt as to constitutionality, however reasonable."

This Columbia University political scientist is not among those who were greatly exercised at this seeming disregard for the constitutional principle on the part of the President. Granting that the President has solemnly sworn to "preserve" the Constitution, Dr. McBain reasons that recommending a measure of questionable constitutionality may very well be a proper step in anticipation of an amendment. And as for proposing an amendment, he reminds us that there is nothing "unethical, unconstitutional or unpresidential" about that. Does not the Constitution itself provide for its own amendment?

Asking why this is "not a perfectly justifiable course to pursue," Dr. McBain concedes that it is one which is unfamiliar to the American people. But that should shut no doors, he holds. "The fact that it has little if any historical precedent is of no importance" as he reasons. For "if history produced nothing but repetitions, life would be a dull episode and ordered society a stagnation."

Why Many Would Hesitate.

Here the author comes to the crux of the problem as he sees it. For "there are those . . . who will admit the experimental fitness of some or all of the New Deal legislation but who will, nevertheless, be hesitant to support an amendment to constitutionalize it." This attiude is not necessarily the result "either of a constitution complex or of patent perversity," he explains. To quote him:

"The fact is that it would be extraordinarily difficult to phrase an amendment adequate to the New Deal requirements thus far disclosed that will not confer upon Congress far larger powers than are at the moment in the offing for exercise. The problem is not like that of drafting an income tax or prohibition amendment. Each of these dealt with a single and relatively simple subject of power.

'Biggest Constitutional Issue Since 1787 Convention'

ident's plan, according to Dr. McBain, now appears to be to obtain a more or less complete series of pronouncements by the Supreme Court on New Deal legislation. Whereas during the first two years of the administration, action by the court was purposely avoided, the idea now seems to be that the way out of the constitutional dilemma is to get one decision after another as rapidly as possible.

As the author puts it: "We shall then see where we stand constitutionally. We shall know more about what can and cannot be done under the fundamental law as it is written and expounded. If the harvest of unconstitutionality is abundant, let one or more constitutional amendments be proposed. Let the people thus decide the fate of the New Deal."

Cites President's Letter.

That President Roosevelt has at no time declared his intentions in so many words, Dr. McBain is careful to make clear. But, he asserts, the program was the same as set forth in the letter sent last June by the White House to Representative Hill of Washington, chairman of the subcommittee of the House Ways and Means Committee, before which the Guffey-Snyder coal bill, since enacted, was then pending. This was the letter in which the President in effect urged the establishment of a "little NRA" in the bituminous coal industry, notwithstanding "doubt as to constitutionality, however reasonable."

This Columbia University political scientist is not among those who were greatly exercised at this seeming disregard for the constitutional principle on the part of the President. Granting that the President has solemnly sworn to "preserve" the Constitution, Dr. McBain reasons that recommending a measure of questionable constitutionality may very well be a proper step in anticipation of an amendment. And as for proposing an amendment, he reminds us that there is nothing "unethical, unconstitutional or unpresidential" about that. Does not the Constitution itself provide for its own amendment?

Asking why this is "not a perfectly justifiable course to pursue," Dr. McBain concedes that it is one which is unfamiliar to the American people. But that should shut no doors, he holds. "The fact that it has little if any historical precedent is of no importance" as he reasons. For "if history produced nothing but repetitions, life would be a dull episode and ordered society a stagnation."

Why Many Would Hesitate.

Here the author comes to the crux of the problem as he sees it. For "there are those . . . who will admit the experimental fitness of some or all of the New Deal legislation but who will, nevertheless, be hesitant to support an amendment to constitutionalize it." This attiude is not necessarily the result "either of a constitution complex or of patent perversity," he explains. To quote him:

"The fact is that it would be extraordinarily difficult to phrase an amendment adequate to the New Deal requirements thus far disclosed that will not confer upon Congress far larger powers than are at the moment in the offing for exercise. The problem is not like that of drafting an income tax or prohibition amendment. Each of these dealt with a single and relatively simple subject of power. Its purport and its implications were fairly clear upon its face. (Even so, each of them gave rise to some difficult questions of construction).

General Phrasing Necessary.

"But here we encounter a far more comprehensive and far more complicated subject of power. Experimental and varied as the New Deal laws are, it would certainly not do, even if that were possible, which it is not, to draft an amendment or amendments that would authorize nothing more or less than these specific laws. Almost indispensibly, any proposed amendment would have to be in the form of a generally phrased extension of the powers of Congress.

"Now, general phrases carry not only foreseen but also unforseeable implications—often a whole congeries of implications. Witness, for example, the constitutional history of such phrases as the regulation of commerce, or due process of law. Even so apparently innocuous and specific a grant of power as that 'to establish postoffices and post roads' involves, as we have discovered in the course of our history, a whole range of problems in the realm of social, economic and political philosophy—from birth control, through airmail contracts, to the spoils system.

"Truly, the power of words to hatch power is nowhere more clearly demonstrated than in words granting constitutional power; and despite the fact that such words are also sometimes inhibitionally construed and applied."

Cites Child Labor Decision.

Moreover, even when Congress attempts to employ a general power-conferring phrase as the basis for exercising such power in a specific direction it is running the risk of opening the way for implications of vast purport. In support of this Dr. McBain cites the case of the first Federal child labor law, which sought to abolish child labor by excluding from interstate commerce products made with child labor.

Speaking for the majority in a 5-to-4 division of the Supreme Court in 1918, Mr. Justice Day frankly stated its fear on this very point. He said in his opinion: "The far-reaching result of upholding the act cannot be more plainly indicated than by pointing out that if Congress can thus regulate matters entrusted to local authority by prohibition of the movement of commodities in interstate commerce, all freedom of commerce will be at an end, and the power of the states over local matters may be eliminated, and thus our system of government be practically destroyed."

In retrospect, Dr. McBain looks on the fear of Mr. Justice Day and his four colleagues on the bench that Congress might end all freedom of commerce as "exaggerated if not indeed a bit hysterical." But, he hastens to say, they were right in asserting that if the child labor law were upheld, the powers of Congress would be greatly enlarged. This for the reason that "nearly all labor and factory legislation would have passed over to congressional control, not to mention the possible extension of national authority into other fields of law."

Centralization Movement.

But this stand against centralization has hardly retarded, certainly not stopped, the movement to concentrate more and more power in the national government. Dr. McBain writes:

"For many years the sphere of national power has been gradually expanding, almost never contracting. The repeal of national prohibition is the only important instance of recession. This movement toward centralization was fairly catapulted forward by the New Deal. Any generally phrased constitutional amendment will firmly entrench this centralizing tendency and will almost certainly invite its further increase. What does this portend? Manifestly, a fundamental change in our Federal system of government—a change no less fundamental because it is quantitative rather than qualitative."

Distinguishing between Federalism in theory and Federalism in practice—"we are the only great nation that regards such a matter as general crime or marriage and divorce as an issue of merely local or state concern"—the author continues:

"Now despite our political Federalism entailing a large degree of political decentralization, we have become economically nationalized. Mining, manufacturing, marketing, transportation, communication, labor, finance, are all organized largely upon a national basis. It is not true to say that in this development state lines have been completely ignored. They could not be ignored as long as the states held the considerable powers that are reserved to them by the Federal Constitution. . . It is simply a fact, however, that as a result in part of common sense and in part of Federal constitutional restrictions the States have erected at their boundaries no barriers that economic nationalism could not easily escalade."

Experiments in States.

Anomalous though this development of economic nationalism under a government of political particularism may be, Dr. McBain finds that it has not been without certain benefits. "In a country so vast and diversified as ours the advantages of a considerable amount of local self-government, no matter how artificially geodetic state boundaries appear to be, are too manifest to require exposition," he writes. "Most of the social and economic reforms we know have started not in Washington, but experimentally in one or another of the states."

The author would remind us, however, that there are practical limitations to the powers which the states may individually exercise over a nationally functioning economic system. Certainly these limitations are reached, he points out, when the need arises for "anything in the nature of a broad-scale, politically controlled, economic planning."

Since most of the key New Deal laws have been rejected by the judiciary or are suspect on the score of constitutionality, Dr. McBain admits that it is tempting to state that the constitutional issue which is brewing is an issue of national versus states' rights. He believes that the issue will unquestionably take this form if it goes before the people in the presidential campaign next year.

To reduce the issue to this simple statement, we are warned, is to over-simplify it. It would not be enough to give Congress the power to regulate all commerce instead of merely interstate and foreign commerce to meet the requirements of the New Deal legislation, as some suppose. For, as the author points out, this ignores the fact that the courts have already given a restrictive meaning to the word "commerce." As defined by the judges, mining, manufacturing and farming, for instance, are not commerce, either interstate or intrastate.

Due Process Clauses.

But what is still more important in Dr. McBain's opinion, this view of the needs of the situation does not take into account the two clauses which provide that no person shall "be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law." The first of these clauses is in the fifth amendment, adopted in 1791, only two years after the Constitution proper went into effect, and is directed against Congress. The second, which is in the fourteenth amendment, ratified in 1868, is aimed at the states.

Under our system of separated powers it is a function of the judiciary to say what is due process and what is not. What Dr. McBain thinks of the way the Supreme Court has exercised this power can be judged by his observation that through court decisions these due-process clauses "have been built into powerful bulwarks against economic and social legislation."

This leads us to a basic consideration. To quote again:

"That these clauses must be considered in connection with any proposal to constitutionalize the New Deal, or any similar political program, may be seen by glancing at a few of the Supreme Court's pronouncements under them. In the Schechter case, for example, the specific points of control which were contested were the power of Congress through the medium of the poultry code to fix minimum wages and hours of labor and to regulate sales. To void the law it was sufficient for the Court to say that the Schechters' business was not interstate commerce and therefore not subject to congressional control.

"But even if the business had been interstate commerce, would this law have been due process? For Congress in exerting its power over interstate commerce cannot ignore the due-process prohibition. Unless the Supreme Court is willing to overrule previous decisions, the only answer to this question is a rather emphatic no."

Labor Relations Act.

Turning to the Wagner-Connery Labor Relations Act, Dr. McBain assumes for the purpose of his discussion that this vigorously opposed measure clears the commerce hurdle. Will it then, he asks, stand the test of due process? For his answer he goes to the 7-to-2 division of the Supreme Court, which decided the case of Adair vs. the United States in 1908. On that occasion, Justice Harlan, speaking for the Court, found Congress without power to make it a criminal offense for a common carrier to discharge an employe for belonging to a labor union.

After reviewing the Social Security Act in the light of the 5-to-4 decision of the Supreme Court last May, invalidating the Railroad Retirement Act, the Columbia political scientist comes to the conclusion that "any proposal to constitutionalize the New Deal program by the amending process must include not only an increase of the positive powers conferred upon Congress, but also a decrease of the limitations upon those powers that have been derived by the Supreme Court from the due process clause.

"In other words, to accomplish that end, something will have to be done to that mighty monitor of the Constitution, Due Process of Law."

That there are those who will say that the picture he has painted on the basis of the Supreme Court's past pronouncements is darker than it need be, Dr. McBain is ready to admit. It is undeniably possible, he says, "that some of its erstwhile determinations of constitutional meanings and applications, some of its hitherto doctrines will be glossed or superseded when the time comes." He prefers to be on the safe side, however. For it is by no means certain that the court will do this. The saner thing, when considering the need for and the possible character of constitutional changes, is to rely only upon what we know to be the law as it has been handed down to us to date, he says.

Administration's Course.

Has the administration given much thought to the difficulties ahead of its "inchoate plan to re-pattern the Constitution to fit the New Deal"? Dr. McBain answers his question with a "probably not." He writes in conclusion:

"To appreciate something of the magnitude of these difficulties, however, one does not have to agree with Mr. Walter Lippmann that merely to propose a constitutional amendment would necessarily be political suicide for the Democratic party, admitted though it be that the popular temper of 1936 will not be that of 1932. So far as the campaign of 1936 is concerned, not the least of the practical difficulties to be encountered will be that of speeding up Supreme Court decisions to the end of clearing for action the topography of the constitutional terrain.

"Meantime, however, if it be even possible that a proposal to amend the Constitution will be an issue of the campaign, the best brains the administration can command should be already hard at work. Perhaps they are."

REPORT BY HEALTH SOCIETY

Spent $18,000 on Educational Activities in Last Fiscal Year.

The Tuberculosis and Health Society spent $18,298, or 19 per cent of its income, on educational activities during the last fiscal year, according to J. Ferd Oberwinder, president, in making public part of the audit report.

The educational efforts were directed toward children, adults, industrial workers, general medical practitioners and the executives of the society, Oberwinder said.

MARKET ST. TAX CASE TO SUPREME COURT

Five Parties Appeal to U. S. Tribunal Against Benefit Widening Levies.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26. — Five taxpayers assessed a total of $17,469 in benefit taxes for the widening of Market street, St. Louis, have taken an appeal against the bills to the United States Supreme Court.

They alleged that taxpayers would be charged doubly for acquisition by the city of the two city blocks along Market street, facing Union Station, for the site of Union Station plaza. These two blocks were condemned in connection with the condemnation of other property for the street widening.

The appeal asserted that $2,453,493 of the benefit taxes levied in the condemnation proceedings were charged as benefits from establishment of the plaza, although damages for cost of the property in the plaza site were paid from a $2,600,000 bond issue item of 1923. Taxpayers also must pay off the bonds, the suit pointed out.

It was alleged also that actual cost of property in the entire case amounted to $3,708,576, but that benefit assessments were $4,278,969, giving the city a profit of $498,393, which, the appeal asserted, was illegal.

Appellants and the amounts of their benefit assessments were: National Lead Co., $7318; National Veneer Package Co., $2926; Checotah Real Estate Development Co., $1600; Rebecca P. Dusenberry, Belle P. Bryant and Elizabeth P. Peck, as trustees of the Charles H. Peck estate, $4486, and Frederick D. and Lucy J. Hampson, $1139. Separate actions in the Missouri courts were consolidated for the appeal to reduce the expense of printing briefs.

It was expected that the Supreme Court would grant or deny a hearing within a few weeks. The city has not yet filed an answer.

The suit, seeking to reverse decisions of the St. Louis Circuit Court and Supreme Court of Missouri upholding the benefit levy, attacked the special taxes as arbitrary, "a plain abuse of the taxing power," discriminatory and confiscatory.

in the foregoing cases to a law limiting of property rights now in question if the public exigency requires that. The reasons are of a different nature, but they certainly are not less pressing. Congress has stated the unquestionable embarrassment of government and danger to the public health in the existing condition of things (the housing shortage). The space in Washington is necessarily monopolized in a comparatively few hands, and letting portions of it as much a business as any other. Housing is a necessity of life. All the elements of a public interest justifying some degree of public control are present. The only matter that seems to us open to debate is whether the statute goes too far. For just as there comes a point at which the police power ceases and leaves only that of eminent domain, it may be conceded that regulations of the present sort, pressed to a certain height, might amount to a taking without due process of law."

Upheld by Court.

Housing regulations passed in New York State were also upheld by the Supreme Court in a similar case that grew out of New York's war-time housing shortage. In both cases a minority of the court, Justices Van Devanter, McReynolds and the late Justice McKenna, dissented in an opinion written by McKenna.

"If such exercise of government be legal, what exercise of government is illegal?" McKenna demanded. "Houses are a necessary of life but other things are as necessary. May they, too, be taken from the direction of their owners and disposed of by the Government? Who supplies them, and upon what inducement? And, when supplied, may those who get them under promise of return, and who had no hand or expense in their supply, dictate the terms of retention or use, and be bound by no agreement concerning them? . . .

"But, passing that, and returning to the Constitution, it will be observed, as we have said, that its words are a restraint upon power, intended as suc in deliberate persuasion of its wisdom as against unrestrained freedom."

Clearing Blighted Areas.

State laws to regulate housing with the regulatory power invested in a special housing authority or in present public service commissions might include, Dirksen suggests nuisance taxes to compel the destruction of blighted properties as soon as they become uninhabitable.

"I am well aware," Dirksen says, "of the many details which present themselves if a regulatory body were empowered to direct the future development of housing, but these details seem to me to present no serious obstacle. Such a commission could be made a part of the State Public Utility or Commerce Commission, which now exists in virtually every state, or it could be set up as a separate entity, the State Housing Authority, administered by experienced men who hold office for a long period, and who are well paid. Rental rates could be based on a sound theory of prudent investment or upon the best practices that obtain in the administration and amortization of large unit properties.

Central Authority Proposed.

"Power to supervise not only the building of large-unit properties based upon clear need, but to supervise and standardize the issuance of real estate securities should be concentrated in a single commission or authority because of the close inter-relationship between the interest of the bondholders and the tenants.

"Doubtless, there would be some departure from the practice that now obtains in the utility field with respect to the duty that is imposed on such utilities to serve all. The rental of property could be invested with a public interest and still preserve the basic characteristics of private control."

These are merely suggestions, Dirksen says. He is seeking to formulate in his own mind some form of control over a basic human need. And many others in Congress are concerned with this same problem. If the present measure of 'recovery' should increase to the proportions of a mild boom, with the stimulus of inflation, certainly rents would shoot upward, for the population has increased and there has been virtually no building during the depression. States must act quickly, Dirksen says, if they are to be prepared to check such a movement.

portant gain. Rome rumor says Suvich (Italian Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs) recently informed Drummond (British Ambassador to Italy) of the early withdrawal of one of the three divisions in Libya. We may learn in the near future that the two countries have agreed to a mitigation of naval and military measures on both sides.

We will endeavor not to say anything that might offend or humiliate Italy and make it difficult for this country to accept a reasonable solution.

But in spite of certain maneuvers, we will not allow friendship for Britain to be attacked and we will defend by all means within our power the integrity of that still rather fragile charta, the pact; it embodies hopes for a new world and voices the ideals of millions of men who in 1914 and 1918 died the victims of the foulest of all plagues, since it is still a voluntary one.

NAPOLEON LETTER FOUND

Sent From Dresden to Duke of Otranto May 11, 1813.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MOSCOW, Oct. 26.—A letter written by Napoleon Bonaparte to Joseph Fouche, Duke of Otranto, has been discovered in the Kharkov Central Scientific Library here. The letter, sent from Dresden, is dated May 11, 1813.

One paragraph expresses Napoleon's optimism: "The victory won at Lucena enabled me to repulse the enemy at the Elbe River, and permitted my troops to approach the Oder River. I wish to inform you of my intentions to immediately occupy the Kingdom of Prussia." In October, 1813, Napoleon suffered a defeat at the battle of Leipzig and did not succeed in capturing Prussia.

"Turandot" Thursday First of Four Operas

Puccini Work to Have Initial St. Louis Performance in New Convention Hall — Jeritza in Lead.

FIRST St. Louis performance of Puccini's "Turandot" will mark the opening of the St. Louis Grand Opera Company's fall season at the Municipal Auditorium Thursday evening. Three other operas are to be presented—Wagner's "Tristan und Isolde" on Saturday evening and "Tannhauser" on Nov. 4, Gounod's "Faust" on Nov. 6.

The new 8000-seat convention hall at the Auditorum is being rushed to completion for the performances. It will provide a stage with a 70-foot width and 100-foot depth. Seats on the main floor where the "golden horseshoe" of 56 boxes is located, are being placed on a ramp to insure an adequate view of the stage.

"Turandot" was written expressly for Maria Jeritza and Puccini, in Vienna, personally coached the singer in the role she will have here. Jeritza was Princess Turandot when the opera was introduced in this country by the Metropolitan a few years ago. Twenty-one performances have been given in New York, several in San Francisco and Chicago. The St. Louis Grand Opera Company, which has leased stage investiture and costumes for all its performances from the Chicago Civic Opera Company, will use the original "Turandot" costumes and scenery which were purchased from the Metropolitan.

"Turandot," in Italian, tells the story of a Chinese princess, besieged by admirers, who propounds to them three riddles. Any suitor who can answer all three may win her hand, if he fails his head will be cut off. Victims are legion when an unknown prince arrives, answers the riddles and claims her hand. The princess, Turandot, tries to escape from her bargain but her father, the emperor, insists on its fulfillment. Then the prince proudly states that if she can guess his name, he will release her himself. Turandot is unsuccessful in her search for the name until her emissaries capture Liu, a young Persian maiden who loves the prince and comes to the city with him. To avoid telling his name, Liu kills herself. Turandot determines to execute the prince but finally guesses his name is "Love" and saves him.

GIUSEPPE BETONELLI, young tenor, who translated his Oklahoma name of Joseph Benton into Italian for an operatic career in Italy and who has sung with the Chicago Civic Opera Company, will be the prince. Elda Vettori, St. Louis soprano, takes the role of Liu, which she has had at the Metropolitan. The principal arias are the "Proud Lords, Now Hear Me," sung by Liu; "All Are Wakeful," by the prince, and Turandot's "In This Fair Land." Other principals in the cast are Clem Laschoski, Norman Cordon, Joseph Cavadore, Lodovico Oliviero and Wilfred Engelman.

At next Saturday night's performance of "Tristan und Isolde," Paul Althouse and Margaret Halstead will be the two immortal lovers, Cordon, Carl Schiffeler, Engelman, Sonia Sharnova and Cavadore the other principals.

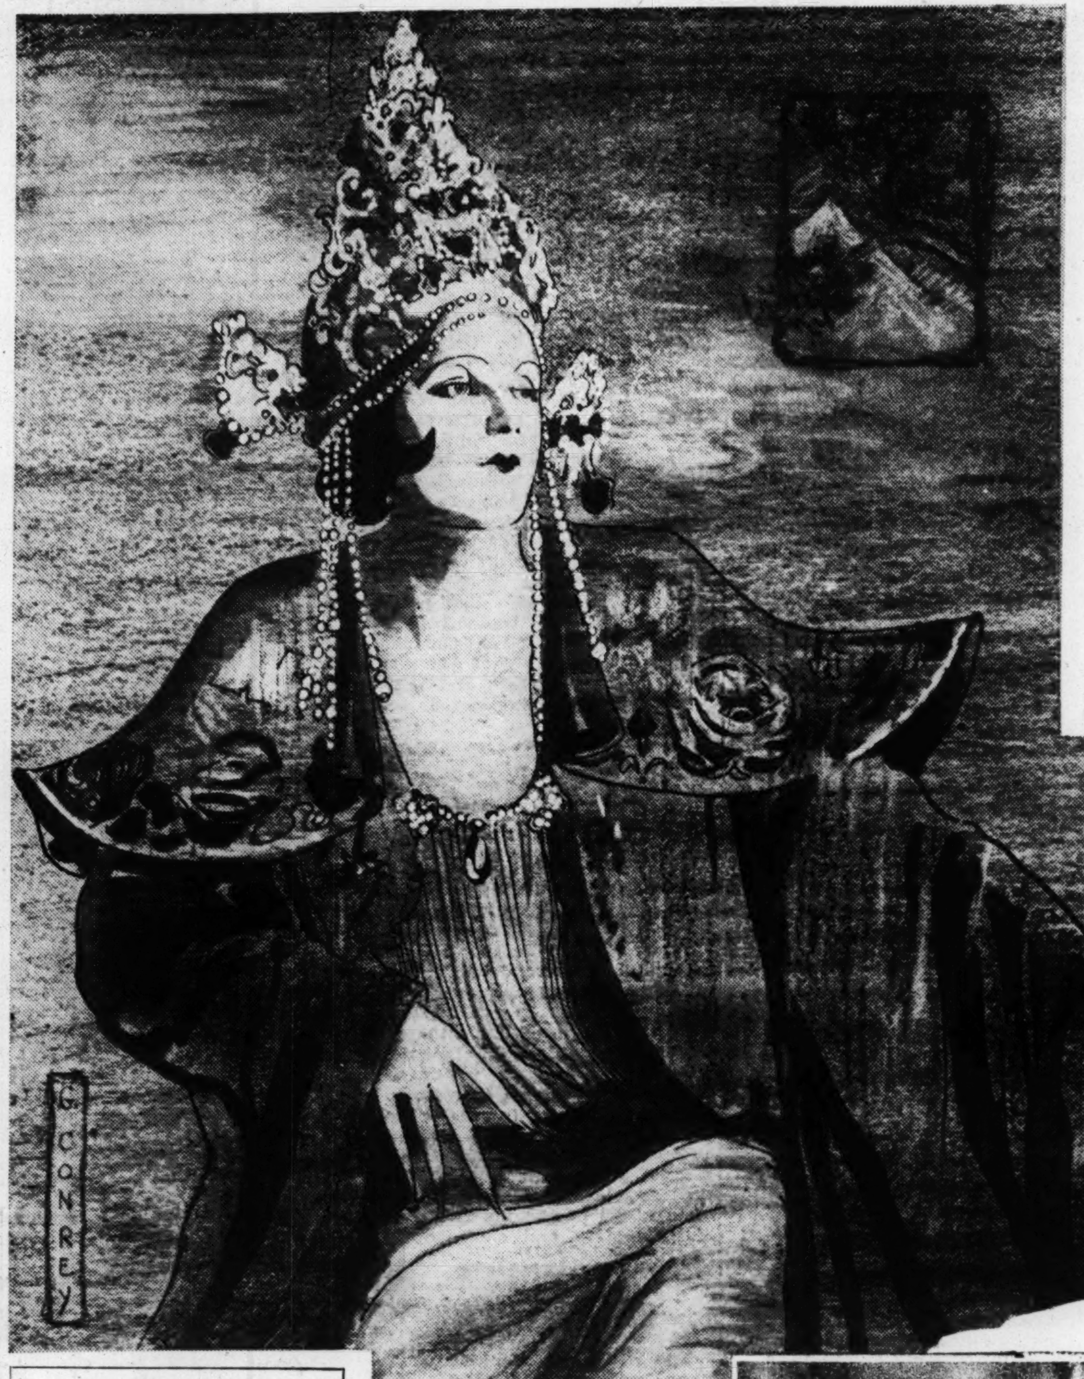
The cast for "Tannhauser" is Cordon, Althouse, Schiffeler, Cavadore, Engelman, Oliviero, James Wolf, Jeritza and Halstead; for "Faust," Giovanni Martinelli, Desire Defrere, Oliviero, Lucy Monroe, Colette d'Arville and Helen Ornstein. The orchestra of 70 will be directed by Gennaro Papi for "Turandot" and "Faust," by Ernest Koch for the two Wagnerian operas. The chorus is composed of 150 St. Louis singers under training since last summer, the ballet of 50 St. Louis girls trained by Rita De Laporte, who will also appear as soloist.

Gilbert-Sullivan Repertory

THE repertory of the Civic Light Opera Company, in its Gilbert and Sullivan revivals at the American Theater the week of Nov. 11, will consist of "The Mikado" on Monday and Thursday evenings and Wednesday matinee; "The Pirates of Penzance" on Tuesday and Saturday evenings; "H. M. S. Pinafore" and "Trial by Jury" Wednesday evening and Saturday matinee; "The Yeoman of the Guard" Friday evening.

Among the principals are Frank Moulan, principal comedian at Municipal Opera in 1919, 1921, 1922 and 1924; William Danforth, another comedian of the first opera summer in 1919, and Anne Yago, who sang contralto roles in Forest Park in 1927. Moulan appears as Ko-Ko in "The Mikado," Jack Point in "The Yeoman of the Guard," Major-General Stanley in "The Pirates of Penzance," Sir Joseph Porter in "H. M. S. Pinafore" and the Judge in "Trial by Jury."

Fred MacMurray and Carole Lombard in "Hands Across the Table," Orpheum Theater.



Maria Jeritza in "Turandot," St. Louis Grand Opera Company.

Tibbett Out-Howls Pekingese Heckler

"Fifi," a "part Pekingese" employed in the new Lawrence Tibbett film, "Metropolitan," took offense at the star's singing during an operatic scene recently and started wailing. The sound recorder wept over his spoiled work and Director Richard Boleslawski tore his hair. Tibbett himself came to the rescue. He began howling, dog-fashion, and made "Fifi" so jealous she curled up and went to sleep.

Nelson Eddy Told to Get Haircut.

Everything is perfect, technically, with "Rose Marie," according to Inspector W. C. Grennan of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, except Nelson Eddy's bushy blonde hair. Grennan has put an okay on Nelson's uniform, revolver, boots and salute, but he says the hair is just too Hollywood. So far Eddy has refused to cut it short.

Movie Actors "Pie Faces."

Real "pie faces" have appeared on the lot where Harold Lloyd is making "The Milky Way." Filming a barber shop scene, the director found that real lather dried too quickly under the bright lights. Somebody suggested the kind of meringue that goes on pies. It was found to be a splendid substitute, hence the "pie faces."

Symphony to Play Beethoven 'Seventh' On First Program

BEETHOVEN'S Symphony No. 7 in A major, will be the principal work on the program for the first two St. Louis Symphony Orchestra concerts, Friday afternoon, Nov. 8, and Saturday evening, Nov. 9.

Vladimir Golschmann, conductor, has selected for the remainder of the program Gluck's Overture to "Iphigenie en Aulide"; "L'Apprenti Sorcier" (The Sorcerer's Apprentice), Dukas' famous Scherzo, the Introduction of Moussorgsky's opera, "Khowantschina," and the Prelude to Wagner's "Die Meistersinger. Golschmann, who has returned to the United States from a vacation in Europe, is expected in St. Louis in four or five days. Rehearsals of the 86 musicians begin a week from tomorrow.

The "Seventh Symphony," which follows Gluck's Overture on the program, has not been played here in two years. Of the nine monumental works which Beethoven wrote, it is the one possessing most of that flamboyance of creation which the modern world terms "showmanship." The four brilliant movements, filled with merriment, poetry and tenderness, are concluded by a bacchanalian finale. The symphony, performed first on Dec. 8, 1813, for the benefit of Austrian soldiers wounded in the Napoleonic wars, took Beethoven from the ranks of penniless musicians and made him a famous composer.

The Gluck Overture is considered the composer's most perfect instrumental piece. Richard Wagner, who wrote its conclusion, derived many of his revolutionary theories from the composition. Dukas' Scherzo is played in tribute to the composer, who died in Paris last May at the age of 70. It opens the second half of the program and is followed by the Moussorgsky and Wagner selections.

No soloist will appear at the first two concerts, which follow the custom of presenting only the conductor and orchestra at the opening of the season. Sergei Rachmaninoff, famous Russian composer-pianist, will appear at the second pair of concerts, Nov. 15-16.

Little Theater Plays Postponed.

Dates for the opening of the two Little Theater plays, "The School for Husbands" and "Wunderkind" have been set back. "The School for Husbands" will open on Nov. 14 and "Wunderkind" on Nov. 18. Three performances of "The School for Husbands," in addition to those during its regular two weeks' run, have been scheduled as benefits for sororities. The Little Theater will give a special performance of "Her Master's Voice," one of its 1934-35 plays, Wednesday, for the Phi Delta Theta Mother's Club.

Allen Jones to Be Back for Opening Of New Picture

ALLEN JONES, former lead-tenor at Municipal Opera and now a featured player in Hollywood, will return to St Louis for the opening of his new picture, "A Night at the Opera" at Loew's State Theater next Friday.

Jones and Kitty Carlisle have the romantic leads in the picture, in support of the new combination of three Marx Brothers—Groucho, Harpo and Chico. Jones' screen character is that of a young singer who never has had his chance because of professional jealousy. His three mad friends play havoc with an opera performance until he is put into the lead.

Arriving in St. Louis Wednesday, Jones will make stage appearances at all feature performances Friday but will sing only from the screen. Between 10 a. m. and 11 a. m. he will receive autograph hunters in the theater lobby.

Full-Size Arsenal Kept on Studio Lo

What is said to be the largest arsenal on the West Coast is to be found, not at a military post, but at the Twentieth Century-Fox studio. The arms and equipment, which could be prepared for use in a day, include 5603 pistols, some 15,000 rifles, 34 machine guns, 19 heavy artillery pieces and various arms purchased from surplus stores of 18 foreign governments.

Each piece is cleaned at least once a month with a special oil and preservative. The three men in charge of the stores are experts in handling of thea weapons and teach movie players the art whenever necessary. Rochelle Hudson at present is learning how to use a sub-machine gun in "Show Them No Mercy." Various items are rented to rival companies. Field guns cost $75 weekly and army rifles may be obtained for $1 a week each, in large quantities.

Y. M. H. A. Club Picks Three Plays.

The Dramatic Club of the Y. M. H. A.-Y. W. H. A., under the direction of Harry R. McClain, will present three plays this winter, the first of which is "Birthright," by Richard Maibaum, set for Nov. 30 and Dec. 1. "Counselor-at-Law" and "Cradle Snatchers" are the other two.

Lewis Novel to Be Filmed.

Sinclair Lewis' new novel, "It Can't Happen Here," has been bought for movie production. The book deals with the rise of an American dictator, who goes from Vermont to the White House at the head of an organization known as the "Minute Men."

Washington U. Play Contest.

One-act plays selected in a prize contest from the works of the class in English 16 at Washington University, will be staged in the auditorium of the University City Junior High School Friday evening. A $50 award will go to the best in actual production. The plays are "At Twenty Paces," by Clara Tarling, based on incidents connected with the duel of Gratz Brown and John Reynolds in St. Louis in 1852; "Greek Meets Greek" by Milton Mill, a satire on fraternity "rush week," and "Feeding Souls," by Hymen Dobin, tragedy of the Southern Illinois coal mines.

"La Ballerina" in Color.

"La Ballerina," a romantic comedy set in Mexico, D. F., has been scheduled for production in full color. The same studio also has "Encore," a modern romance, ready for porduction.

Reinhardt Film Venture Not Test of Shakespeare

Cast of "Midsummer Night's Dream" Below Best Standards of Hollywood — Picture Has Own Merits.

By COLVIN McPHERSON.

SECOND thoughts on "A Midsummer Night's Dream," reviewed in Friday's columns, serve only to confirm the impression that the picture at the Shubert will matter far less as Shakespeare than as Reinhardt. Viewing both the play and the players, it must be said that "A Midsummer Night's Dream" is not a test of Shakespeare on the screen, however, many serious speeches may be made to that effect. Shakespeare, the fetish of week-day study groups, is all Greek to the mass of movie-goers and is likely to remain that way until some genius can take the attitude, already reached by critics, that the works of the Elizabethan dramatist are not sacred to the memory of Booth, Mantell and Sothern and Marlowe, and may be interpreted, without blasphemy, in the best manner of a new generation. "A Midsummer Night's Dream" deserves a world of praise for bringing up the subject of Shakespeare again. It probably will begin a cycle of Shakespearean films, and in that list there may be the screen version which will translate Shakespeare into terms of today. That does not necessarily mean the mutilation of Shakespearean poetry but rather a comprehensive grasp of Shakespeare as material for beauty. Reinhardt's effort is hopeful. With the best actors and actresses in Hollywood he might have turned the trick himself, but his resources were hardly those of a good second team. Yet Reinhardt, a genius in the theater, has something else to give the screen. Aided by the photography of Hal Mohr and the special film effects worked out by Fred Jackman, Byron Haskin, H. F. Koenekamp, he has given it an inspiration. In playing with fanciful imagery, the motion picture is on its surest ground. Erich Korngold's arrangement of the musical score opens its claim to the library of the world's symphonic music. "A Midsummer Night's Dream" truly represents a cultural gain in these respects, whatever it does for the Elizabethan drama.

BARBARY COAST. The descent to the lusty, roistering and tinpanny "Barbary Coast," at Loew's, is not so far as one might imagine. In setting a scene of San Francisco's Gold Coast days, Hollywood again demonstrates its particular ability. Virtually the whole scene is done in the fog, mire and wickedness of the waterfront. The result allows the same escape into a romantic world. Written by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur, "Barbary Coast" has their broad strokes. Edward G. Robinson, as the sinister Louis Chamalis, powerful public enemy, Miriam Hopkins as "the Swan," the come-on gal at his gambling palace, Joel McCrea as the young miner who tosses away a fortune at the Swan's roulette table, have dialogue that they can use to good advantage. The Hecht-MacArthur creation of a stubble-beard varmint who calls himself "Old Atrocity" is masterful and Walter Brennan, in the role, almost steals the show. "Barbary Coast" is no hokey melodrama but a vivid and tense picture of a lurid community. "Here Comes The Band," which serves to prolong one's stay at Loew's, offers Ted Lewis in a hopeless jumble of the war, amateur hours on the radio, song composing, love and the obstruction of justice.

HANDS ACROSS THE TABLE. This immodest, frank, game-playing generation is pictured in "Hands Across The Table," at the Orpheum. The problem for today's lesson is: In case a manicure looking for a rich man meets a penniless young man looking for a rich girl to marry and they fall in love, what can be done about it, except to have them marry? Carole Lombard is the manicure, Fred MacMurray, the moneyless member of the 400. In keeping with the manners of this generation, they live for a time in unchaperoned but absolutely blameless bliss at her apartment. Comes the decision and Fred will go to work as a milkman or something, Carol will give up the idea, for the time being, of swathing herself in sables. Lombard has some sparkling comedy lines, which she handles with the greatest of ease, and her entire work has an emotional content that elevates "Hands Across the Table" the few degrees it is above the ordinary. The best scene, the pair imitating a trans-Atlantic telephone call, the worst the finish where the lovers, in search of two-bits that has rolled into the street, hold up traffic for blocks. "Freckles," which plays up an angle of bank robbers hiding in the tall timber, is the second picture.

TRANSATLANTIC TUNNEL. The British film, which heads the Ambassador bill has a competent cast—Richard Dix, Madge Evans, Helen Vinson, Leslie Banks, George Arliss and Walter Huston (in distinguished bit roles) and various British film luminaries. It is built around an absorbing idea, the construction of an underwater passage between the two great English-speaking nations. The film is attended, consequently, with a great deal of propaganda for closer relations between the countries. Tunnel scenes are highly imaginative and of awe-inspiring proportions. Year after year is consumed in the construction, allowing opportunity for an extended story about the domestic difficulties of the Dix-Evans household. The major disaster is encountered when the "radium drill" smashes into a submarine volcano. Interest lags often. "Stormy," the second film, is an average Western picture, about a vagabond and the wild horses who held him to the mesa. It is noteworthy in that it announces its setting before the picture starts informing the audience that the backgrounds are those of the Painted Desert. Hollywood producers, please copy.

A FEATHER IN HER HAT. The mother story at the Fox will fail to arouse those who have seen "The Sin of Madelon Claudet," "Madame X" and the many others on the same theme. The setting in this case is London, the mother Pauline Lord, the playwright son Louis Hayward. "Music Is Magic" is more wasted motion, with the setting in Hollywood ,and the struggles those of Alice Faye. Perrennial film patrons will find it interesting for the reappearance of Bebe Daniels, in the role of an actress who has passed her zenith. Miss Daniels' performance, in its comic spots, is not a great different from that of Gracie Allen. She sings two songs, rather well, which recall her "Rio Rita." Eventually this strange plot has her give up her place as star of the show to Miss Faye.

The Missouri Theater, going first-run for just this week, offers Jane Withers in "This Is the Life." Of less merit than "Ginger," the film still fails to obscure the fact that Jane is a grand little actress. She is cast as a highly paid child star in vaudeville. Longing for the pleasures of normal children, she runs away with John McGuire, young fugitive from justice, who has stumbled into her dressing-room.

WHEN KSD and the WEAF network begin the weekly broadcasts, at 8:30 Tuesday night, of the New York Hippodrome circus spectacle, "Jumbo," the performance will be for radio. It will take place on the Hippodrome stage, with all the performers in costume, before an audience of 4500 persons, but those attending will be there on invitation and the show will not be open to the general public afternoon or nights on the days of the broadcasts.

BRINGS GIRL REVUE TO KSD

NILS T. GRANLUND.

WHOSE Broadway chorus girl revue will become an 8 o'clock Tuesday night feature on KSD, starting this week and replacing Ben Bernie's program, which shifts to the WJZ network.

The radio performance will be given by a cast of 100, including Jimmy Durante, Gloria Grafton, Donald Novis and Arthur Sinclair, a male chorus and a large orchestra. The authors of "Jumbo" are Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur, the former Chicago reporters, who turned playwrights and movie producers. MacArthur is the husband of Helen Hayes, the actress. They are writing the script for the broadcasts. The producer of "Jumbo," "Billy" Rose, will direct the radio presentations.

Lucy Moore, the soprano, will not take part in Ted Hammerstein's program on KSD on Nov. 4, because she expects that night to be singing the role of "Marguerite" in the St. Louis Auditorium production of "Faust."

Harry von Zell, one of the ace network announcers, is to replace Edmund B. ("Tiny") Ruffner on Fred Allen's Town Hall Tonight program the evening of Nov. 6.

Granlund's Revue on KSD Tuesday.

TOM HOWARD and George Shelton, the comedians, are billed for the first broadcast by KSD, at 8 p. m. Tuesday, of Nils T. Granlund's Broadway girl revue, which will replace Ben Bernie's program at that time. Granlund will continue to act as master of ceremonies, giving ambitious chorus girls "breaks" on the air and featuring also Harry Salter's orchestra.

Ben Klassen, the tenor, who is singing in Jan Peerce's place with Harry Horlick's Gypsies orchestra Monday nights on KSD, for five years was featured by Pacific Coast stations. Since June, he has had his own program from the Radio City studios in New York. He is a native of Lincoln, Neb.

Dorothy Stone, daughter of Fred Stone, and Oscar Shaw are billed for Ted Hammerstein's show on KSD tomorrow night.

Reports have it that Lennie Hayton and his orchestra will go off KSD'S Saturday night Hit Parade on Nov. 9, and that they will be succeeded by a fast-tempo, brassy dance orchestra. Hayton probably will head another network series.

Gilbert and Sullivan's "Yeomen of the Guard" will be sung by the NBC Light Opera company at 10 a. m. tomorrow on KSD.

Tania Lubov, who has joined the Court of Human Relations cast, came to this country with her mother when a child. Her father, an officer in the Czar's army, barely escaped from Russia with his life during the revolution and joined them three years later. She studied law in Chicago, but finally became an advertising model and developed skill in posing and dancing that won her a place on the stage.

Conrad Thibault will sing "I Got Plenty of Nuttin'," from Gershwin's folk opera, "Porgy and Bess," during his program with Frank Crumit at 9 p. m. Wednesday on KSD.

WGN to Request 500,000 Watts Power License

Chicago Station's Decision First Move Toward Making a Reality of FCC Engineers' Proposal for Real Super Power Broadcasting System.

THE first step toward a system of super power radio stations in this country, contemplated in the proposal of the engineers of the Federal Radio Commission that the broadcast structure be rearranged, has been taken by WGN. The Chicago station, which now has a 50,000-watt transmitter, announces that it will file an application for a 500,000-watt license entailing an expenditure of $500,000 for the necessary equipment. This is the power now used by WLW, Cincinnati, on an experimental basis.

Indications are that other stations will file similar applications, among them, presumably, WMAQ, Chicago, the mid-West key station for the WEAF network, and WBBM, Chicago, which serves in a similar capacity for the CBS network. That the NBC will not ask for super power for WEAF and WJZ, N. Y., or that the CBS will be content with less power for its New York key, WABC, is improbable. Other stations that may seek 500,000-watt licenses include WHAS, Louisville, Ky.; WSM, Nashville, Tenn.; WSB, Atlanta, Ga.; WBAP-WFAA, Texas; KFI, Los Angeles; KOA, Denver; KNX, Los Angeles, and stations in Seattle, Wash.; Portland, Ore., and Salt Lake City, Utah.

What action, if any, the FCC will take on the proposal that about 25 of the 40 cleared channels be specified for 500,000-watt power; that the other 15 cleared channels be given over to 50,000-watters operated simultaneously; that increased

Dr. Townsend In Two Broadcasts.

TWO broadcasts from the "first annual Townsend Plan convention" in Chicago are scheduled this afternoon. The CBS network, presumably including WBBM (770), plans to carry addresses by Dr. Francis E. Townsend and R. E. Clements, founders of the plan, from 1:15 to 1:45. Clements is to take as his topic, "Savings vs. Pensions," while Dr. Townsend will discuss "New Age Demands." Another broadcast, set for 3:30 on the WEAF net, including WMAQ (670) is planned to bring an address by Dr. Townsend on the topic, "The New Age Demands New Measures."

Plans are being made for a broadcast by the CBS network of the return of James J. Walker, formerly Mayor of New York. New Hudson Models Entirely Different in Their Appearance

Five New Engineering Developments in 1936 Cars Displayed in St. Louis.

Hudson sixes and eights for 1936 are being displayed by Hudson and Terraplane dealers in the St. Louis district. The cars, announced as in the low price feld, are designed to provide size and style features exceptional in their price field.

In appearance the new models are entirely different from their predecessors. The new sloping front grille, the V-type windshield and the entirely new styling of the hood, body and rear contours are examples of the latest expression of the body designers' art.

Five new engineering developments appear. Radial safety control, a new front end design permits new and softer front springs, which produces what Hudson has named the rhythmic ride. It also results in a new control which Hudson calls tru-line steering.

Another new feature is the automatic draft elimination by means of which all air coming into the car is controlled and screened. The other improvement is duo-automatic hydraulic braking in which a complete hydraulic braking system is backed up by an emergency mechanical system which is ever on guard to take up the work of braking should emergency arise.

Different Interiors.

Inspection of the new models reveals entirely different interiors. Seated at the steering wheel, the driver has a new layout of control units. There is an improved adaptation of the electric hand, which has proved successful in Hudson cars in 1935. There is a V-type windshield and a new easy release for the parking brake. Greater seating comfort is provided.

Under the new ventilating system all air permitted to enter the body must pass through the draft eliminator. This is a screening cloth much on the same order as the bag used on a household vacuum cleaner. The screen is placed over an opening in the floor just above the rear axle. The effectiveness of the system is shown by the fact that the screen cloth balloons upward the instant a vacuum is created in the body by the ventilating system.

Structurally, the body has been improved by the use of a one-piece steel top instead of the flange type employed in last year's cars. This complete steel body, manufactured in the Hudson Motor Car Co.'s own body shop, is produced on presses which are the last word in sheet metal development. Entirely new equipment was added to produce the body. The die used for the steel roof panel alone weighs 147,000 pounds.

Radial safety control derives its advantages from the fact that the front axle, in its rise and fall, moves in a true circular path. This is so because the centers about which the front axle swings are definitely fixed by two drop-forged torque rods. The introduction of these torque rods immediately removes from the springs all duties of driving the front end and of absorbing brake torque. In other words, practically the entire duty of the front springs is to provide suspension for the car and consequently, they can be designed primarily and without compromise for suspension, thus permitting a softer ride.

Another advantage of this kind of construction is exactness in steering. Radial safety control makes it possible not only to design the steering according to strict theoretical accuracy, but to maintain this accuracy on the car in practice. Hence the name, tru-line steering.

Chassis are longer, wider, stronger and more rigid for 1936 than even in 1935. With three inches added to the wheel base and with the tread at the rear increased from 56 to 57½ inches, a broader and longer foundation for the body is provided.

The big six engine, with a bore of 3 inches and a stroke of 5 inches, produces 93 horse power at 3800 r. p. m. with a 6.25 to 1 compression ratio. The eight has a bore of 3 inches and a stroke of 4½ inches and produces 113 horse power at 3800 r. p. m. with a compression ratio of 6 to 1. In addition, there is available a 7 to 1 head as optional equipment at extra cost. With this head the big six develops 100 horse power and the eight develops 124 horse power.

A new anti-percolating device on the carburetor prevents boiling of the fuel in the float bowl. This eliminates difficulty in starting in hot weather or at extremely high altitude. Generator characteristics have been improved to provide a satisfactory charging rate at all speed ranges, to take care of the increased demand on the battery because of radio and other accessories.

Chevrolet Has All Its Plants Building New Models for 1936

The Chevrolet Motor Co., preparing for the introduction of its 1936 models on Nov. 2, has reopened all its manufacturing plants and its 10 assembly plants, and will have built more than 65,000 units by the end of October. Schedules for November and December call for a greatly increased production.

The introductory day for the 1936 Master de luxe and standard models, Chevrolet officials say, will find every one of the company's 10,000 dealers stocked with display cars and in a position to take orders for immediate deliveries.

The company expects that sales in November and December, months that heretofore have been dull, will be brisk under the impetus of the new model announcement and the large automobile shows, formerly held after Jan. 1. The former show dates were not conducive to large selling, coming as they did in the coldest months of the year. This year's shows will open with two whole months of pleasant weather remaining, and it is the industry's belief that many motorists will buy new models at once.

Employment is increasing rapidly in Chevrolet plants, as the supply of units and bodies for the new models increases daily. The change over from 1935 models to 1936 models was completed early in October, after a brief shutdown during which plants were realigned for increased production.

W. E. Holler, vice-president and general sales manager for Chevrolet, says: "There will be no shortage of models this year. We have not only got under full sway long in advance of the auto shows, but we have, in addition, the advantage of a 25 per cent increase in our production capacity, both in assembly plants and in our factories making engines, transmissions, axles and other units.

Hupp Production at Capacity Turning Out Models for 1936

Officials of the Hupp Motor Car Corporation, elated by the Federal Court decision which established control of the company by the present management and board of directors, today made public information about the company's progress in recent months and with plans for the future.

At one of the most successful distributer meetings ever held at the factory, the new models were displayed. William B. Hurlburt, vice-president and director of sales, said: "Orders for more than 3000 cars were placed by the distributers in attendance, with probably a third of their number still to be heard from. The bank of orders on hand is larger than at any time in the last five years and the factory is assured of a production schedule that will tax its capacity for the remainder of the year."

President Vern R. Drum states that production has started of the new models and that sample cars will be in the hands of all distributers and dealers early in November, with a constantly rising volume thereafter.

An advertising campaign is to begin with the national announcement on Nov. 2 the greater part of which will take the form of newspaper advertising.

Pontiac Co. Factory Working Two Shifts Producing New Cars

Orders for new 1936 cars are pouring in daily and the total production of 1936 model Pontiacs has reached the 19,000 mark with the factories working at two shifts a day, A. W. L. Gilpin, vice-president and general sales manager of the Pontiac Motor Co., reports.

The recent announcement of the 1936 Pontiac line followed the shortest between-model shutdown period in the history of the company.

"Our total production during the last two weeks has been running at 800 cars per day, which has given us over 4000 cars each of those weeks," says Gilpin. "That makes a total of 18,907 of the 1936 model. Added to our total production of 1935 models since Jan. 1, Pontiac has built 144,040 cars this year.

"Sales and deliveries are keeping pace with production. In the United States alone during the first nine months this year, our retail deliveries amounted to 113,388 cars, leaving the difference between that figure and the 1935 model production total of 125,133 to be accounted for by deliveries in Canada and the rest of the world.

"Orders on hand for 1936 Pontiac cars to be delivered in the first 30 days are approximately 35,000, which represents a dollar value to the purchaser of $28,000,000."

Maj. Bowes' Amateurs Touring Unit Engaged For St. Louis Auto Show

Will Be Exclusive Entertainment Feature—All of 1936 Cars Expected to Be Exhibited.

Expectation is that the display of new automobiles at the annual St. Louis Automobile Show in the Arena the week of Nov. 10-16 will include virtually all the new models of the various lines.

While some of the factories have already introduced their cars for 1936 and dealers are showing them, they have not, as a rule, been able to display all of the new body types, and many of the factories have not put any cars on dealers' floors. So the first comprehensive exhibit of the 1936 models will be at the Auto Show.

Since the 1931 Auto Show, space for displaying automotive accessories has been lacking, but this year there will be a varied showing of accessories, radio, electric refrigeration, air-conditioning, oils, greases and other lubricants, tires, batteries, automotive tools, service shop equipment, oil burners, airplanes and Diesel engines.

The new trucks and commercial cars will be exhibited as well as tractors.

As an exclusive entertainment feature, the Show Committee has engaged Maj. Bowes' radio amateurs who are on tour. Maj. Bowes' amateur unit show will give two performances each day of the Auto Show—a matinee at 2:30 and a night performance at 7:45 o'clock. There will be 12 acts in each performance.

Lines of Oldsmobile for 1936 Improved, Front End Redesigned

New Models, Shown Here, Have Numerous Comfort, Style, Engine Features.

Two 1936 models, the Oldsmobile six and the Oldsmobile straight eight, are on display by dealers in St. Louis and vicinity.

Principal among the features in the new Oldsmobile are:

Super-hydraulic brakes, self-equalizing and self-energizing.

Knee-action wheels, permitting the same comfortable ride for passengers in the rear seat as is given those in the front seat.

Solid steel "turret top" body by Fisher, providing protecting walls of steel above, below and on every side.

Safety glass standard equipment in all models.

Center control steering, giving an ease of handling impossible under any other steering system.

Ride stabilizer, which "straightens out the curves" by eliminating car sway while rounding turns at high speed.

Engine Details.

Hardened aluminum alloy pistons, electrically treated to make them far harder and more durable than those fashioned from ordinary aluminum. These pistons reduce oil consumption, minimize carbon deposits, lengthen bearing life, and greatly lessen the possibility of scoring cylinder walls.

Smooth engine perfomance, materially improved by the use of the lightweight pistons in conjunction with an especially heavy counterweighted crankshaft, and tri-cushion engine mountings of rubber bonded to steel. The Oldsmobile six engine develops 90 horsepower, that of the eight 100 horsepower.

Increasd gasoline economy through an improved method of spark control.

An anti-percolating device which prevents gasoline in the carburetor float bowl from being forced out of the carburetor bowl after a long run in hot weather.

Weight distribution so that all passengers ride comfortably between the axles.

All silent syncro-mesh transmission, with quiet, easy shifting in all gears.

New Body Lines.

Striking new design, sweeping in one graceful curve from bumper to bumper, marks the 1936 Oldsmobile.

Oldsmobile in 1936 presents an entirely new treatment of the front end without sacrificing Oldsmobile's identifying characteristics.

The massive 1936 die cast radiator grille adds greatly to the appearance of the new front end.

Headlamps, mounted high, likewise add distinction. The effect is rounded out by the heavy, sturdy bumpers and bumper guards.

On the eight, graceful parking lamps are mounted on the front fenders.

The long, graceful hood is carried to the grille and a new louvre design does its part to enhance the appearance of a car already beautiful.

The solid steel "turret top," the V-type windshield, the streamlined rear contours, the graceful lines of the doors—all blend harmoniously.

AUTO EDITOR GIVES STYLIST 1936 CAR NEWS

Jeanne DeNault (Stylist at Oppenheim & Collins, Buffalo): "Mr. Cole, I'm trying to get a line on next year's car styles. Have you heard anything about any particular car that will be especially good looking?"

Marvin H. Cole (Automobile Editor, Buffalo Courier Express): "When you've been an automobile editor for 12 years, as I have, you hear all sorts of things about each year's cars. This year's new Dodge is certainly something to look at. Dodge cars have always been a 'lot of automobile', and the Dodge name has always stood for ruggedness and dependability . . . but for out-and-out good looks, the 1936 Dodge is the best looking, handsomest, and smartest Dodge I've ever seen."

New Chevrolet Cars Shown to Dealers At St. Louis Meeting

Trucks and Commercial Types for 1936 Also Introduced at Session Here.

In a meeting at the Municipal Auditorium on Tuesday, T. H. Keating, regional manager, C. E. O'Meara, zone manager, and a staff of assistants introduced the new 1936 Master de luxe and standard passenger cars and trucks to the dealers, sales managers and salesmen of the St. Louis zone.

During the morning session, Keating and his aides discussed the features of the new cars and the sales program for the ensuing year. "The reception accorded the new features of both passenger cars and trucks by the dealers and their organizations foretells a great year for Chevrolet," O'Meara said.

After luncheon, a short business session was held and the dealers and salesmen were shown a full line of the new Master de luxe and standard passenger cars and trucks. Service and mechanical experts were placed throughout the display to discuss the new features of the car and answer queries.

"The enthusiasm of the dealers and salesmen over the new Chevrolet confirmed our impressions when we saw the new car in Detroit last week," O'Meara said, "all of them gave their heartiest approval to the 1936 Chevrolet slogan, 'The Only Complete Low-Priced Car.'"

Continuing, O'Meara stated, "all dealers will have a representative stock of the 1936 Chevrolet Master de luxe and standard passenger cars and trucks for announcement day, Nov. 2, and will be able to make immediate delivery of all models."

Heaters for Autos Already in Demand, Goodyear Reports

"Judging from the number of automobile heaters we have been selling the past few weeks, car owners of this city must be looking for a cold winter, says C. M. Van Eppa, manager for Goodyear Service. "Even though we haven't had any really cold weather, chilly mornings and evenings have convinced motorists they would better check their cars in preparation for winter driving. When a driver goes out to the garage to get his car these mornings, the chill in the air to make him think about buying a heater. At any rate, our service men have been kept busy making heater installations.

"Driving a car is a lot different than a number of years ago. Formerly, when driving in cold weather, it was necessary to bundle up in a heavy overcoat and then use a warm blanket or robe to help keep out the icy drafts, but now, by simply turning the heater switch, the car is flooded with warm air and the driver and passengers ride in summertime comfort.

"One of Goodyear's heater models is proving exceptionally popular by reason of an important safety feature. It has a control knob located on the dash, immediately in front of the driver, and the vanes on the heater may be moved to deflect the heat in any desired direction by merely adjusting the knob. This means that the heat can be directed on the windshield without the driver having to take his eyes off the road or without his having to lean over and touch the heater itself.

"In addition to getting a new heater, now is the time for car owners to check other important items to prepare for winter driving, including tires. Tires with good traction are especially important at this season, as skiddy streets are just ahead."

Comfort Inside.

Luxurious interior fittings mark the new Oldsmobile models. More comfortable seats and cushions, new and handsome upholstery, hardware which accentuates the simplicity of the interior design, and a Brazilian Rosewood finish instrument panel give the new Oldsmobile leadership in luxury and comfort.

The cars are extremely roomy, with wide, comfortable seats both front and rear, and provide ample head and leg room.

Other conveniences in the 1936 cars are:

Convenient grouping of the instruments directly in front of the driver.

Mounting of the handbrake on the dash just to the left of the driver, thus eliminating an opening in the floor board and keeping out dirt and noise.

Elimination of another floor board opening by mounting the starter pedal on the dash just above the accelerator, making it more easily reached by persons of short stature.

In the 1936 Oldsmobile the floor boards in both front and rear compartments are flat and level, so that a passenger sitting in the center of the seat has as much leg room as those on either side of him.

In addition, the foot rest of the rear compartment is placed in a special recessed space under the rear of the front seat. This eliminates stumbling over the foot rest as was done for the rear seat passengers.

The license number on the motor car of William Allen White, editor-author of Emporia, Kan., is 13-1313. "No one," the "Sage of Emporia" explained, "will steal a car with a number like that."

Rubber-Cushioned Body on the 1936 Plymouth Now Shown in St. Louis

New Models Look Larger and More Massive—Are Longer and Roomier.

Roomier, rubber-cushioned bodies and double-strength frames combine with new safety developments in automobile headlighting to distinguish the 1936 Plymouth models, which are now on display by dealers in the St. Louis area.

Larger and more massive in appearance, the new cars are longer and an inch lower in overall height than previous models. Two score design and engineering changes have been incorporated into the new models. Smart streamlines slope back from the stylish new radiator grille to accentuate the long, low contours of the body.

The characteristic Plymouth sailing ship emblem on the radiator crown is enclosed in a tear-drop outline. This same tear-drop design is carried out in hood louvre decorations and headlamp lines. The windshield is larger and slopes back at a more acute angle, cutting down wind resistance.

Rich, comfortable interiors provide four and a half inches more passenger space lengthwise and about two inches more elbow and shoulder room. A rear compartment foot rest, built into the back of the front seat in the two de luxe four-door sedan models, has the effect of adding about three inches more leg room to the already lengthened interiors. Bright new shades and modernistic patterns are used in the upholstery and trim. All instruments are grouped within the face of a large airplane-type speedometer, so the driver can see all indicators at a glance.

Even Stronger Frame.

The rigid-X girder steel frame, the "backbone" of the car, has been entirely redesigned. Outside rails and cross-members have been increased in depth from five to five and one-half inches. The cross-member intersection, nucleus of the frame, has been made into a single unit. Tests show the new frame to be twice as rigid and resistant to twisting forces as other production frames.

Plymouth's safety steel body, as well as the frame, has been strengthened as the result of new developments in metal shaping and now welding practices. The body fits down over the frame to form an integral unit. Thus, the frame adds strength to the body and the body strengthens the frame.

For the first time, the Plymouth body is cushioned on rubber. Composition rubber pads are placed between the body and frame to insulate the body from all road noises. Body rumble is eliminated even on cobblestone pavements. There are more than 400 rubber parts, 50 pounds of rubber, in the new Plymouth, not including the rubber in the big airwheel tires and tubes.

New Headlights.

New headlight developments, incorporated in the new model as "safe vision" lighting, reduce headlight glare and provide more penetrating beams for driving through fog and rain. The headlights have two beams, an upper beam for clear road driving and a lower beam for meeting other cars. The non-glare feature is incorporated in the lower beam which deflects the light not only down, but to the right, out of oncoming driver's eyes and on the right side of the road curb line. Headlight glare annually causes thousands of highway accidents. The National Safety Council attributes 6700 accidents in 1934 to glaring headlights.

The 1936 Plymoth models, like 1,400,000 Plymouths before them, have self-equalizing hydraulic brakes with both shoes at each wheel hydraulically actuated. Centrifuse brake drums, combining the strength of steel with the ideal braking qualities of cast iron, add to the safety of the braking system. Stepped wheel cylinders are designed to cut brake relining wear to a minimum.

Ride, Steering Improved.

Plymouth's balanced-weight, synchronized-spring-action, ride has been improved materially for the 1936 model. The tapered-leaf front springs are mounted in a new way. Instead of being shackled at the rear, they are shackled at the front. A steering shock eliminator is mounted at the rear of the left front spring to absorb road shocks.

The ride stabilizer, which adds to the car's steadiness, has been perfected with a new and better mounting.

Plymouth's "soft" tapered-leaf springs are made of a special spring steel which combines maximum flexibility with tensile strength. The springs have 10 thin leaves, tapered at the ends to distribute the stress uniformly.

The six-cylinder 82-horsepower L-head engine has all of the major performance and ecenomy features introduced in the 1935 Plymouth at the first of the year. Full length water jackets extend the entire length of the cylinders, insuring uniform cooling with consequent reduction in oil temperatures and longer effective life for the oil. Directional water circulation, accomplished by a tube inserted through the block, maintains uniform engine temperatures. Openings in the tube are so placed that water is forced with equal velocity to all exhaust valve seats, the hottest points in the engine.

Calibrated ignition permits operation of the engine with maximum spark advance for full high compression economy under all driving conditions without knock, although ordinary fuel is used. Exhaust valve seat inserts reduce the necessity for valve grinding to a minimum. An unusually heavy crankshaft, perfectly balanced both at rest and in motion, adds to the life and smooth performance of the engine.

The "floating power" engine mountings absorb engine vibrations and prevent them from reaching the passengers. The engine is not only cushioned on rubber, but the weight, or balance, of the engine itself is utilized to counteract the forces which set up vibration.

Plymouth bodies, fenders and small sheet metal parts are rustproofed. A newly developed enamel paint, replacing lacquers previously used, prolongs the life of the exterior finish. The 1936 Plymouth comes in three "business" and seven "de luxe" body types, all on 113-inch wheelbase.

Head-on View of New Ford V-8

Improved streamlining of the front end of the Ford V-8 for 1936. The horn is set into the fender apron behind a chromium grille, and the graceful contour of the fender is carried to the edge of the new radiator grille. The new hood louvres may be seen behind the headlamp. The "V-8" insignia is of new design.

Added to Laundry's Fleet

The 1936 De Luxe Plymouth

Deluxe four-door touring sedan of the new Plym outh line for 1936, with completely restyled body lines and "tear drop" motif in radiator emblem and head lamp outlines in harmony with the streamlined fenders and sloping windshield.

New DeSoto Cars Designed as Result of Elaborate Survey

De Soto's 1936 line designed by "public opinion," Byron C. Foy, president of the De Soto Motor Corporation, declares.

Dissatisfied with the old "hit-or-miss," "guess - what - the - public wants" methods of creating a new automobile, Foy and his associates last summer made a nationwide survey of dealer preferences. Believing that the dealers and salesmen reflected the public pulse, Foy and his men held a series of meetings in the key cities of the country.

Traveling by plane and train day and night for 60 days, the De Soto men literally covered America in their search for the "perfect car."

Every detail of the new car was covered from radiator design to interior fitments. Votes were taken on 165 questions, and sent back to De Soto headquarters in Detroit where they were analyzed and the results tabulated.

"It was well worth all the time and trouble it took," Foy said. "We found a lot of things that we believe have enabled us to build a better car. A car that will honestly reflect the desires of this great carwise dealer body."

Predicts Greater Speeds.

Sir Malcolm Campbell, who set a new auto speed record of 301.12 miles an hour, believes that someone sometimes will drive a car 400 miles an hour. "Anything I can he says. "Sometime someone else he says. "Eometimes someone else will break my records."

Book on Safe Driving Being Distributed by International Harvester

Following up the impression on motorists created by J. C. Furnas' article, "—And Sudden Death," in Reader's Digest, the International Harvester Co. has published for free distribution a 64-page, pocket-sized booklet entitled, "I Drive Safely." This booklet is available to all drivers of motor vehicles sufficiently interested in improving their driving to apply for copies. Hundreds of motor truck fleet operators already have applied to the company, 606 South Michigan avenue, Chicago, for copies for distribution to their drivers.

"I Drive Safely," a book of instruction for drivers of trucks and busses is attractive in typography and illustrations, with terse treatment of its subject matter arranged under chapter headings for quick reference and review. It leaves nothing unsaid for any one seriously desiring to contribute to street and highway safety.

Pointedly illustrated for a ready grasp of safe driving fundamentals, some of the subjects treated are: speed, brakes, hilly roads, carbon monoxide, rules of the road, railroad crossings, safety loading factors, steering, tires, congested traffic, lubrication, slippery roads, vision, mechanical equipment, lights, pedestrians, garage accident hazards, and miscellaneous safety factors to which a separate chapter is devoted. Proper maintenance of the motor vehicle is also outlined in nontechnical language.

Among the early applicants for supplies of the booklet have been a number of police departments who plan to distribute the booklets in the interest of safer driving.

'Six Per Cent' Auto Financing Plan by G. M. A. C. Announced

Simplification of the System of Time Payments Its Chief Feature.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—A new type of motor car financing plan, effecting lower cost to the buyer, is announced by the General Motors Acceptance Corporation.

The new plan will be known as the General Motors Acceptance Corporation 6 per cent plan. Simplification of the system of payments is its chief feature.

"To the best of our knowledge," the announcement said, the plan represents by far the lowest cost national plan for the purchase of new cars in the United States today." It eliminates carrying charges and service charges.

Explaining the calculation of monthly payments, the announcement says, "A prospective new car buyer has only to take the unpaid balance due, add to this the amount of his insurance, and multiply the result by 6 per cent.

"The resultant figure is the entire cost of financing the unpaid balance and insurance for 12 months. For payment periods longer or shorter than 12 months the cost is one-half of 1 per cent per month.

"This flat percentage is not interest. It is simply a convenient multiplier by which the cost may be computed."

The plan includes fire, theft and accidental damage insurance written by General Exchange Insurance Corporation.

Average Motorist Spends $8.80 in Gasoline Tax.

Last year, the total gasoline tax in the United States amounted to approximately $170,000,000, which was paid by the drivers of the 25,000,000 cars on the road duriing 1934 and amounted to $8.80 per driver.

Aviation School Adds Instructors

The Robertson Aviation School has appointed two new instructors: Lieut. J. W. Geppert, of the United States Naval Air Reserve, will be chief instructor of the pilot's ground school. Lieut. Geppert, a naval aviator, received his training during the World War at Miami and Pensacola, Fla., and was an instructor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and also at Miami in naval aviation.

Walter R. Kirsten will be assistant chief instructor of the mechanic's school. Kirsten has been an instructor in airplane and engine mechanics for six years.

FORMER GOV. LANGER TO GO ON TRIAL TOMORROW

North Dakota Ex-Official Charged With Forcing Relief Workers to Contribute Funds.

BISMARCK, N. D., Oct. 26.—For the second time in 16 months, former Gov. William Langer of North Dakota must step before a Federal Judge Monday to answer charges of conspiracy to obstruct an Act of Congress by soliciting funds from Federal relief workers.

On trial with Langer will be three political associates — State Senator Oscar Erickson, Chairman of the Republican State Central Committee; Frank Vogel, former State Highway Commissioner, and R. A. Kinzer, former secretary of the State relief organization.

It will be Erickson's first trial on the charges. At the time of his indictment last year, illness prevented his trial. Convicted at his first trial June 17, 1934, Langer appealed. The Circuit Court of Appeals ordered the case back for a retrial.

Although the conspiracy trial is looked upon as their biggest hurdle, new charges against the four loom in the background, charges of perjury.

The group was indicted only recently on the perjury charges, which grew out of an affidavit of prejudice filed by the defendants against Federal Judge Andrew Miller, who presided at the first trial.

As a result of the affidavit, a new Judge—Federal Judge A. Lee Wyman of Sioux Falls, S. D.,—will preside over the impending court fight.

Two former defendants will be important Government witnesses against Langer at the coming trial. They are Oscar Chaput, former business manager of the Leader, Langer-inspired political weekly, and Harold McDonald, one-time solicitor for the publication. The two have already pleaded guilty to the conspiracy charges and are awaiting sentence. At the trial, the Government contended employes "contributed" funds for the Leader under threats their jobs would be endangered if they did not.

AUSTRALIA'S OUTLOOK BRIGHT

Budget Surplus, Cut in Taxes and More Jobs.

By the Associated Press.

CANBERRA, Australia, Oct. 26.—Australia reports a definite economic improvement, with several financial sunbeams for the future.

As a result of a surplus of approximately $3,500,000 in the budget for 1934-35 there is to be a reduction of from 5 to 6 per cent in the special property and income taxes. In addition, the assistant treasurer reported a favorable trade balance of $185,000,000 for the fiscal year. A continuous decrease in unemployment, from 30 per cent in 1932 to 17.8 per cent in the second quarter of 1935, was offered as a further sign of recovery.

Niagara Falls' "voice" roars to a soprano note nearly three octaves above middle C on a piano, CBS engineers discovered when they took sound measurements during the first broadcast from Buffalo by Edward d'Anna's band.

"Murder in Room 212" will be performed in the Grand Hotel period on the WJZ net at 5:30 this afternoon. Anne Seymour and Don Ameche are still playing the "leads."

Navy Program At 1 P. M. Today.

THE method used by the U. S. Navy Department in Washington to communicate with warships and naval stations all over the world will be demonstrated during the program at 1 p. m. today on KWK and WJZ net. Jessica Dragonette and Beatrice Lillie will be the headlined entertainers, with Frank Black's orchestra, and John B. Kennedy will conclude the Washington part of the broadcast.

After an introduction in Washington by John B. Kennedy, Assistant Navy Secretary Henry L. Roosevelt will invite the public to visit navy yards and warships. He will introduce Rear Admiral Joseph K. Taussig, Acting Chief of Naval Operations in Washington, who will make a brief talk, then engage in a two-way exchange of greetings with U. S. naval outposts at Samoa, Guam, Manila, Honolulu, Dutch Harbor, Alaska and Panama. Some of the stations will reply in code, to be translated as it is received in Washington, but Admiral Taussig will talk by radio-phone with the commanding officers at Manila and Honolulu.

Admiral Taussig next will call the roll of navy yards in the United States. Each navy yard will reply in code as its name is called.

Then Admiral Taussig will engage in a two-way conversation with commanding officers of navy yards in New York, Chicago and San Francisco. The U. S. Marine Corps will then extend its invitation from Washington.

Following this, Admiral Taussig will talk to the commanding officer aboard a submarine in the Hudson River and to pilots of a squadron of marine bombing airplanes over Bolling Field, Washington. These pilots then will make a 4000-foot power dive, with the roar of their motors being picked up on the field by NBC parabolic microphones.

power be allowed on some of the regional channels, and that wave lengths be set aside for 100-watt stations in the 1500 to 1600 kilocycle band, thus far is a matter only for speculation.

If the FCC decides to entertain such a proposal for revamping the broadcast set-up, it will be a long time before the necessary hearings, law suits and arguments can be gotten out of the way.

Officers of WGN estimate that an increase of power to 500,000 watts would extend the station's area of good service from the present 75 miles to a radius of 300 miles or more, and that its programs would be received from well to fairly well in virtually every part of the country.

Artophone Corporation Distributes Radiobar.

THE Artophone Corporation of St. Louis, has been appointed distributor of the Radiobar, a cocktail bar for the home equipped with a Philco radio set. The appointment was made the past week by B. S. Tucker, national sales manager for the Radiobar Company of America. Tucker said that sales of Radiobars in the first eight months of this year increased 800 per cent over the corresponding period of 1934 and that they were continually increasing.

When closed, the Radiobar is a fine cabinet radio set. When the top is opened it becomes a well-equipped cocktail bar with stocks of liquors, equipment for mixing drinks, a mirror and a chrome metal, liquid-tight mixing bar.

Whether the bar is opened or closed, the Philco all-wave set in the cabinet is always ready to be tuned to the broadcast band or to foreign short wave programs, police calls, aircraft and the amateurs.

There are ten Radiobar models. All the cabinets are designed and styled for attractive appearance in any home. They come in various woods, and one is done in antique white of modernistic design.

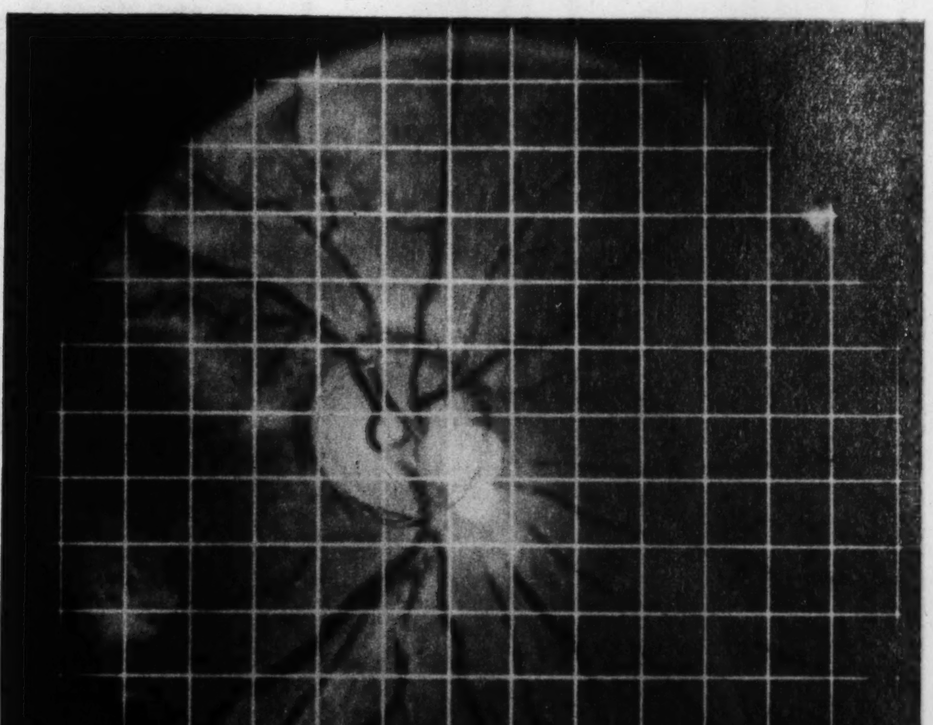
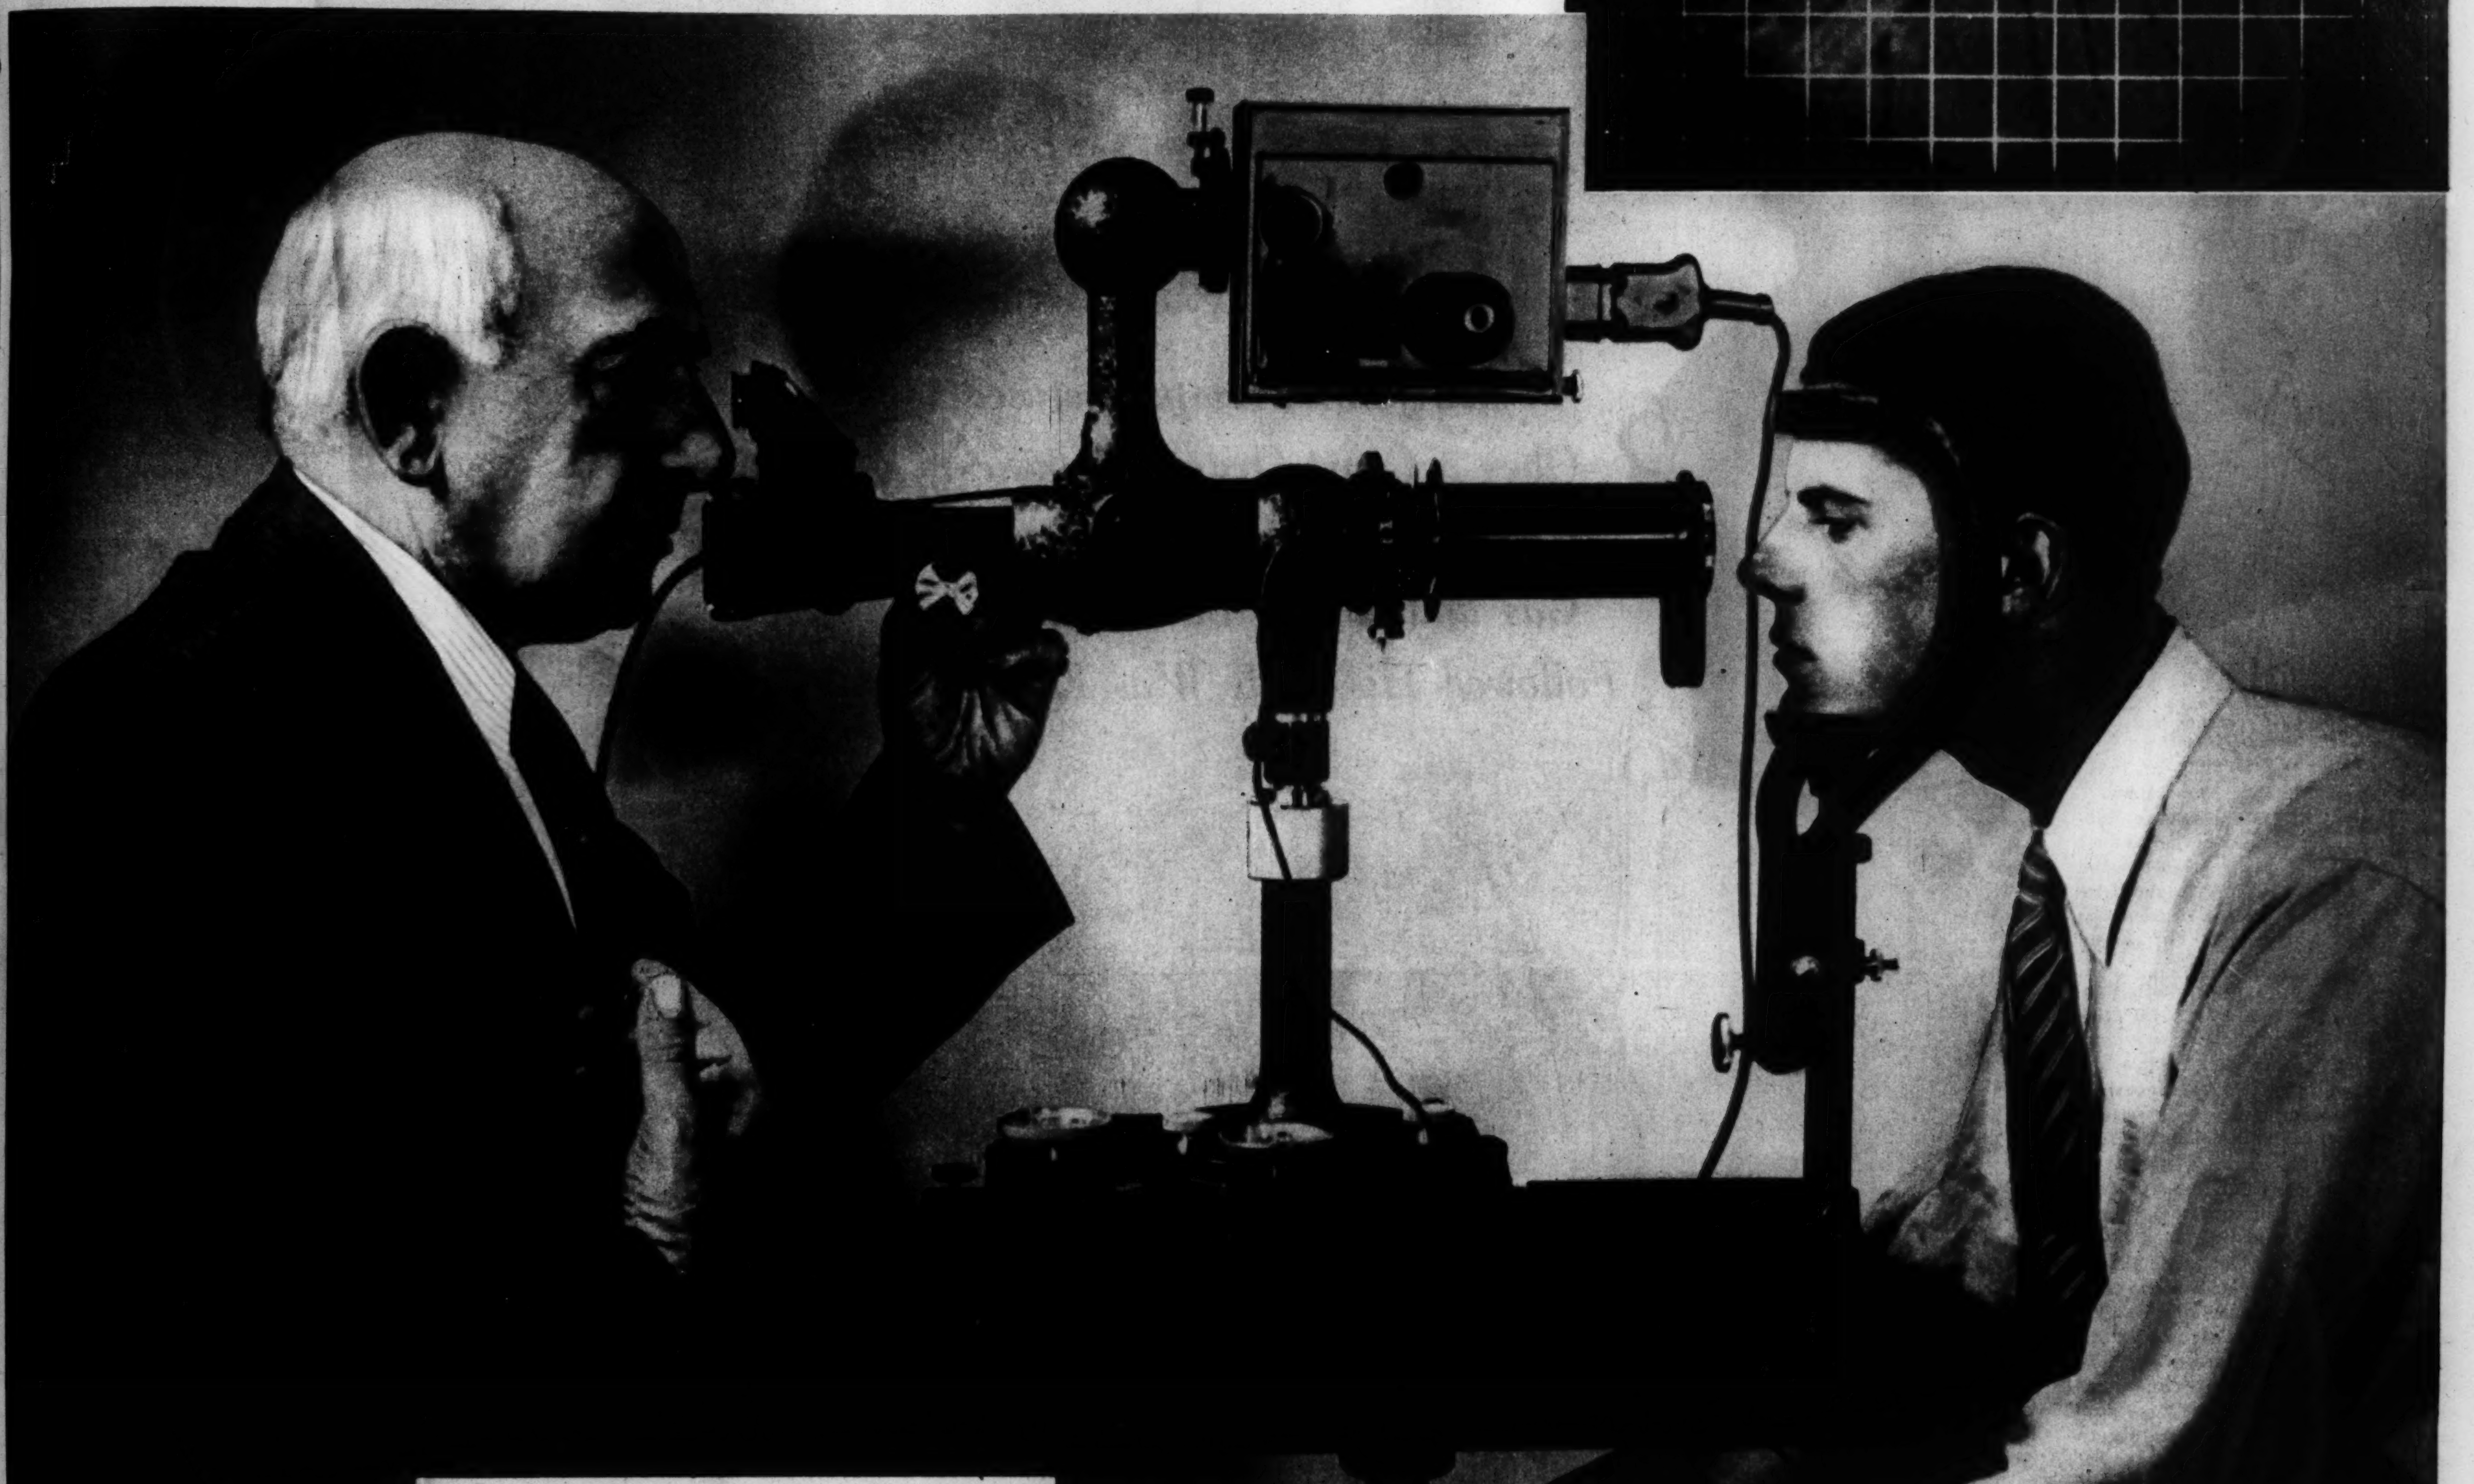
IDENTIFYING CRIMINALS BY THEIR EYES

New Method, Worked Out by Dr. Carleton Simon, Based On the Fact That the Retina of the Eye Has an Unchanging Pattern of Veins Peculiar to Each Individual.



Photograph of the retina, with screen superimposed, made by Dr. Simon with his specially equipped camera. Note the pattern made by the branching veins.



Dr. Simon focussing the subject's eye through the retinal camera.

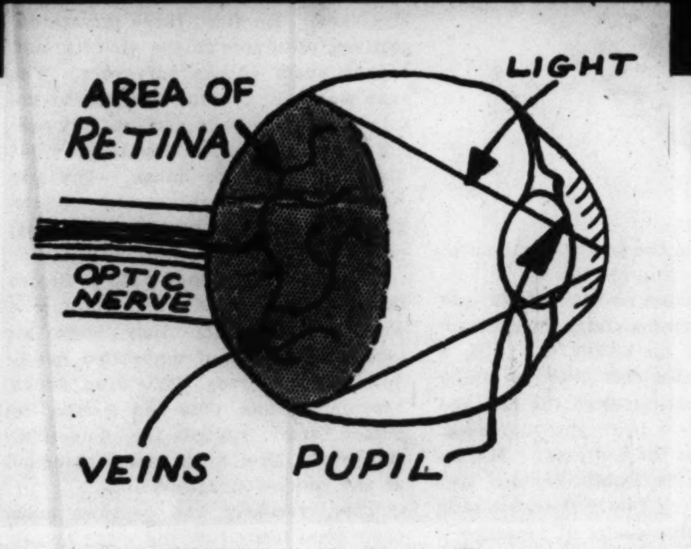


Diagram showing the eyeball and the retina at the rear. The photograph of the veins on the retina, which is aken through the pupil of the eye, gives an identification that Dr. Simon says cannot be disguised.

By JACK ALEXANDER

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

NEW YORK.

THE menace of plastic surgery and fingerprint alteration to the science of criminal identification has been met, many authorities believe, by Dr. Carleton Simon, New York criminologist.

This diligent researcher has found that nature has put another stamp upon every individual marking him apart from all other individuals—an extra clincher over and above his whorls and facial peculiarities. It is the pattern of veins and arteries in the retina of the eye.

A desperate outlaw may obliterate his fingerprints by several reliable methods; he may have his face changed to that of an entirely different person by an unscrupulous surgeon; but if he wants to eliminate the lacy retinal pattern, his only recourse is to gouge his eye out. The telltale tracery is at the back of the eyeball and the eyeball is, roughly, an inch deep. The cleverest surgeon would hesitate to touch this pattern with a view to changing it.

Dr. Simon's discovery is science's answer to the recent exclamation of Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine after he had witnessed an operation on a man's fingertips.

"The entire system of criminal identification," said Valentine, "will have to be reorganized."

The New York, Boston and Detroit police departments have performed experiments with the Simon method and reported favorable results. So has the Department of Justice. Before long, it is believed, police of different cities will exchange retinal photographs just as they now exchange fingerprints. Dr. Simon has worked out his technique to a point where a standard form, with standard symbols and measurements, may be used.

His discovery is not intended to supplant fingerprinting or the Bertillon system of physical measurements. It will merely supplement them. There will be no need, for instance, to use his system on every small-time criminal. The existing system takes care of them. But against the desperate outlaw—the Dillingers, the Klutases and the Van Meters—it very likely will be one of law enforcement's strongest weapons. Such criminals almost invariably resort to trick surgery or fingerprint obliteration when the "heat" is on.

Strangely, Dr. Simon's specialty is psychiatry, not ophthalmology. He just happened to hit upon the eye when he was casting about for a new kind of telltale marking. He knew that the eye was a dangerous organ to tamper with and that eye specialists had photographed the retina thousands of times for purposes of diagnosis. So he took time out to read up on visual matters and collected retinal photographs—thousands of them—from the world's laboratories. After scanning almost topless stacks of them, he reached a tentative conclusion that he was on the right track.

His next step was to press into service, on his own initiative, the photographic equipment used by the eye specialists. In this he was aided by Victor M. E. Koch, vice-president of the firm of Carl Zeiss, Inc., of Jena, Germany, makers of scientific instruments. Koch put at Dr. Simon's disposal any special equipment he needed.

THE retinal camera was what the researcher needed most. In principle, this is similar to the ophthalmoscope, the instrument an eye specialist uses to squint into the recesses of the patient's eyeball. In addition, it takes a photograph of what the specialist sees. Armed with this, Dr. Simon took thousands of pictures of his own. They confirmed his previous conclusion.

It came down to this: a criminal might have his broken nose straightened, his chin lifted, his fingerprints burned or sliced away, his drooping eyelids raised, his flapping ears pinned to his skull, his telltale moles removed; he might bulge out his mouth with false teeth, change his dental chart with gold fillings, dye his hair, raise or discard a mustache, erase his tattoo marks and buy a pair of glasses—but he couldn't pluck out his eye.

The retina is photographed through the pupil. Dr. Simon demonstrated to the writer with an ophthalmoscope that the pupil is not opaque, as it appears to the naked vision, but is quite transparent. It is through the pupil that the camera sees clear back to the retina at the rear of the eyeball. Under the beam of light cast by the ophthalmoscope the pupil becomes a beautiful, vivid red. And through it the arteries and veins are plainly visible.

"It doesn't require any special skill to photograph the retina," Dr. Simon explained. "It is an easy mechanical procedure.

"But, even with this established, there still remained an important step of making the pictures useful in criminal identification. It was necessary that various differences in individual eyes be noted in numerical values. The irregular patterns created by the branching of the blood vessels had to be charted, measured and classified.

"After much experimentation, I devised a transparent screen, which was divided up into square meshes, each one of which measured 2½ millimeters on a side, or approximately 3-32 of an inch. The screen was fitted into the photographic plate holder and placed in front of the emulsion side of the plate. The resulting segmentation permitted measurement of various points in relation to each other, as they appeared on the photograph. At first I tried a smaller mesh, but had to discard it because it blurred the retinal image. The whole image, you know, is only 30 millimeters, or about 1 3-16 inches."

In all the calculations the optic nerve terminal, a round spot about in the center of the photograph, was used as a hub, or central point. The blood vessels stem from this terminal, known as the cup or papilla of the nerve, and divide as they spread through the retina. And here is the core of the whole Simon system of identification. Age or disease may twist the veins somewhat, but their position and relation to one another never alters; the geometrical pattern remains until death.

Charting the pattern is much like solving a problem in navigation. Using the papilla as a fixed point, Dr. Simon drew vertical and horizontal axes through it, dividing the pattern into quadrants. Then upon this he superimposed a 360-degree protractor which also centered upon the papilla. Thus, he was able at once to determine exactly the angle at which the veins radiated from the papilla and to record, in standard terms, the location of any part of any vein.

HE selected a single eye, the right, to be photographed. Since there are few one-eyed criminals, there seemed no point in photographing both eyes.

There are four veins forming the pattern. Medically, they are the nasal veins and the temporal veins, the former lying closest the nose, the latter lying closest the temple. There are two of each. The one above the horizontal axis is called the superior nasal (or temporal) vein, the one below it the inferior nasal (or temporal) vein.

To standardize the terminology for fixing positions, Dr. Simon made a twofold division of the photograph (see illustration): all values below the horizontal axis, minus; those above, plus; all values on the nose side, nasal; those on the temple side, temporal.

Thus, the first branch of a superior nasal vein, if it occurred two squares to the right and a square and a half above the center, could be precisely located in figures as "N 2 plus 1.5." A further designation in figures would be provided by the angle shown on a protractor by a line passing from the hub through the branch.

Every branch of every vein may be similarly designated in figures, so that the main points of an entire retinal chart can be expressed with precision in a simple formula. Dr. Simon is engaged in perfecting this code with the double objective of a workable classification of retinal photographs and a means of reducing retinal "descriptions" to formulas that can be telegraphed when occasion arrives.

"It's as easy as finding a given point on the high seas is to an experienced navigator, but it requires less technical knowledge," he explains.

"The anatomical knowledge required and the general schematic outline is not any more complex or confusing to a layman than is the fingerprint system, which also has its bifurcations, radial and ulnar terminations, cores, deltas, loops, whorls, composites, arches and other technical expressions."

Dr. Simon holds first rank among criminologists. From 1920 to 1926 he was an honorary Deputy Police Commissioner here. He resigned when James J. Walker was elected Mayor. During his incumbency, Dr. Simon organized a special bureau to cope with the narcotic traffic. Approximately 16,000 violators were arrested, and 90 per cent convicted during his term. For many years he has been an outstanding proponent of the theory that criminality is marked by definite facial characteristics.

He is criminologist for the International Association of Chiefs of Police and for the New York and New England Associations of Chiefs of Police. He first entered the public eye when he was selected to dissect the brain of Leon Czolgosz, President McKinley's assassin.

When John Crempa Refused to Obey a Court Order, Deputies Came After Him With Tear Gas and in the Battle That Followed His Wife Was Killed.

SCOTCH PLAINS, New Jersey.

"THIS is where Public Service sent their cold-blooded killers to shoot innocent citizens who sought to defend their home."

A crude cloth sign, daubed with this inflammatory epitaph, for a few days marked finis to a rustic comedy which ended in tragedy. Aroused farmers hung it up outside the two-story shingle home of John Crempa, war veteran, whose eight-year feud with the powerful Public Service Electric and Gas Corporation culminated in the fatal shooting of his wife by deputy sheriffs. The sign did not last long. The vanguard of the thousands of irate visitors who came to denounce the utility tore it to shreds. The stringy ribbons were taken home as souvenirs. So were twigs and whole branches of trees on the Crempa property—and anything else that might serve as a memento of the bloody battle. The home of gusty, stubborn John Crempa, with its leaden slugs imbedded in the walls and porch supports, has become a shrine; a symbol of the individual citizen's refusal to buckle under to a dominant utility.

It is also a high water mark for clumsy work by the utility and public authorities. Crempa was belligerent and troublesome; he also thumbed his nose at an order of a duly established court of his State. He was, in short, a tough customer. But the seven deputies who tear-gassed the Crempas from their home and then fired a withering blast at them were, to put it mildly, heavy-handed and trigger-quick. And Public Service, which might have gained by a peaceable settlement, lost heavily in public favor.

The deputies are all charged with first-degree murder in warrants sworn out by the Crempa survivors. So great is the scandal that Governor Harold G. Hoffman himself has urged quick grand jury action by Union County authorities. At his suggestion, Supreme Court Justice Clarence E. Case has called back into session the panel which recently adjourned.

Meanwhile, in Chancery Court, a condemnation award of $800 awaits Crempa, if he sees fit to claim it. This is what the court awarded him over a year ago as damages for the passage of Public Service's power lines over a corner of his land. For a year Crempa refused to accept it and by force and guile stood off deputies who tried to serve him with a contempt summons. It was the final determined effort of the posse to serve this piece of paper that brought on the tragedy. Crempa's price for the land varied every time someone tried to dicker with him. It finally reached the fantastic figure of $150,000.

Crempa is still defiant, though saddened by the loss of his wife, Sophie, 40 years old. A few days ago he said: "I hope the blood of my wife will do some good for human rights and for justice." He has retained Samuel J. Leibowitz, well known New York lawyer, to see that someone is punished for the affair. Crempa himself had his little finger on the left hand shot off during the raid. He got three slugs in the leg, too.

"Killers! Murderers!" is what the townspeople hurl at the deputies who now guard the deserted Crempa home. Crempa and his children, Camelia, 19, and John Jr., 17, are staying with neighbors.

CREMPA is not a farmer, but he owns an extensive tract. He is a mechanic and former tailor and he served in the army during the World War. He is of Polish birth, as are most of the residents here.

His quarrel with Public Service began in 1927. The utility, which serves a great power and transportation empire, decided to extend the distribution lines leading from its Kearney-Marion-Essex plant. The extension, in two sections, was to run 11 miles from Athenia to a Roseland distributing station, thence for 23.4 miles to Metuchen. Here it would link with existing lines to Burlington and Camden.

Hundreds of condemnations were obtained without a feud comparable to that of the Crempas. Many landowners made cash settlements without forcing the utility to resort to the courts. Under Jersey law, when an application for condemnation is received, the Supreme Court appoints a commission of three. After taking testimony, the commission decides upon the amount of compensation. The amounts varied widely in the Public Service case, depending chiefly upon whether the lines merely passed above the property or whether towers were erected on the land. In the Crempa case, there were no towers placed on the tract. It was the wires overhead that infuriated Crempa; that and the $800 the commission commanded him to accept.

He took stock of his situation. He found that one neighbor had foxed the utility out of $12,000 by pretending to be building a large residence. This neighbor tossed up a flimsy foundation and had complete architect's plans ready to exhibit when his case came up. The plans showed that the wires would cross over the projected house and that a tower would mar the view. Another neighbor found that three towers would have to be erected on his land. He got $6000 for each tower. True, other men took sums ranging from $100 to $500 and pocketed them gladly. Crempa was no such sucker, in his own estimation.

John Crempa's house at Scotch Plains, New Jersey, scene of the tear gas attack and slaying.

Craftily he awaited the opening of the line. When the power began surging through—through the shiny copper cables crossing an edge of his land—Crempa devised a slingshot contraption, weighted on either end with a rock. He hurled this over the shiny cables and short-circuited the line and threw the whole town into darkness.

He was cited for contempt. His attorney asked the Public Service lawyers in Chancery Court if they would consent to a suspension of sentence if his client would agree to leave the line alone.

"Will you desist?" asked the Chancellor.

"NO," SNAPPED Crempa. He went to jail for six months. Crempa emerged from jail more embittered than ever. In the past two years, according to the authorities, he made more than 20 additional attempts to short-circuit the line. The first few were successful. The others were frustrated when the utility installed a watchman on its right of way, equipped with a telephone. When Crempa emerged from his home and started for the back lot, the watchman summoned reserves by telephone. The reserves drove Crempa back.

Workmen sent to repair the line near the Crempa land were escorted by State police. Again, about a year ago, a contempt charge was made. But deputies were unable to serve the summons.

Sometimes the doors were barred tight and sometimes Crempa strode out and menaced the visitors with a shotgun. Chancery Court became impatient for the holdout's arrest, but specified that he was to be brought in without the use of clubs or firearms. Sheriff C. Wesley Collins and his men returned again and again, to be driven off the property by the armed Crempa, while neighbors jeered the deputies.

Camelia Crempa.

Last June Collins resorted to a strategem. He hired three private detectives, strangers in the vicinity, and togged them out as surveyors. The ruse worked. Crempa, angered at the intrusion, ran out to protest. But, seeing the men were not deputies, he left his weapon in the house. The trio jumped him and bore him to the ground. But the triumph was a short one.

Crempa set up a loud outcry. Before the detectives could hustle him to a waiting automobile, they were attacked by scores of embattled neighbors and relatives. Wielding sticks, brooms, skillets, pots and stones, the citizen army routed the detectives. Readers of New York papers chuckled at the unique situation.

Then, recently, the deputies made their final bid. Just the night before, they had captured John Crempa Jr. at a riding academy in a nearby town and clapped him in Union County Jail in Elizabeth. The younger Crempa was charged with contempt for aiding his father.

Sheriff Collins did not go along on the last expedition but sent seven of his deputies—Millard Jett, Charles Ramley, Joseph Coakley, James Gabrielson and the Carolan brothers, Richard, Vincent and Edward.

Accounts of the attack on the Crempa home differ in some details. But all agree that when Crempa refused to come out, tear gas bombs were hurled through the window panes and that when Crempa, his wife and daughter staggered out on the front porch, they were met by a deadly fusillade. Mrs. Crempa died instantly.

In defense of his posse, Sheriff Collins asserted that they fired after first being fired upon. Crempa insists that none of the occupants had a gun when they emerged, but that when he saw his wife fall, her abdomen riddled with shotgun slugs, he ran back inside and returned with his army automatic. It jammed when he tried to fire it, he says. His daughter, Camelia, also tried to use it unsuccessfully, Crempa says. But at least Mrs. Crempa was unarmed, so Prosecutor Abe J. David declared after an investigation.

"My wife and I were blinded by gas," Crempa said a few days after the shooting. "We started to go out the front door. My wife was first, me pushing her to help her get away from the gas, Camelia was in back. As my wife struck the porch, I heard shots. I saw her drop.

"I yelled: 'Don't shoot! You've got my wife!' But the deputies, lined up in front of the house, kept on shooting. I ran back into the house and got my gun from a drawer in the living room. I said to myself: 'If I'm going to die, I might as well die with a gun in my hand.' But it jammed and I threw it away.

"I ran off the porch with my hands in the air. 'I surrender!' I shouted. They got me in the left leg with three bullets. As I fell, they shot my little finger off. Then Camelia grabbed the gun, but it was still no use. Wouldn't work."

Four of the deputies put Crempa and his daughter in an automobile and drove off.

"I didn't know yet that my wife had been killed," Crempa continued. "I begged them to call an ambulance for her. But one of them said: 'To hell with her! Let the neighbors take care of her.'

"AS WE drove away, Jim Gabrielson told me: 'We had a grand old time. We fired over 100 shots.' I asked to be taken to a hospital, but they laughed at me. Every town we passed through they tooted the horn and waved and shouted. It was like a wedding party.

"At the jail, they sat us down on a bench. I was bleeding badly. My left shoe was full of blood. I asked for a doctor and Deputy Warden Thompson told me: 'It's all right, John. Keep your shirt on.'

"I asked them to take off the handcuffs so I could do something about the wounds myself. But they stood there for 15 minutes, smoking and joking, before they took the handcuffs off. Then they put Camelia in a cell and took me to the hospital with chains on my legs."

It was a week before the Crempas—father, son and daughter—were able to bail themselves out of custody. John Jr. didn't know that his mother was dead when he walked out of his cell. Friends who greeted him solemnly did not tell him. They took him to the hospital where his father lay wounded. The pair embraced, but little was said. It was not until they were on their way home in a borrowed car that Crempa told his son that his mother awaited him at the end of the ride—in her casket.

Mrs. Crempa's funeral, twice postponed because of the enforced absence of her family, was held amid mutterings by throngs of angered neighbors. Communist agitators tried to capitalize on the occasion, but had scant success. The milling crowd was not interested in theory. After the brief service in the home, the casket was carried in silence to St. Stanislaus Catholic Church, in Plainfield.

The woman, a martyr in the eyes of her survivors, was buried in Hillside Cemetery. But the affair was far from buried with her.

How Mrs. Gloria Wainwright Had to Wage Two Spectacular Court Battles to Recover Her Son and Daughter From Mrs. Grey Worswick.

Mrs. Worswick and the two disputed children, Eve DeBrath and Eric DeBrath.

OAKLAND, California.

IT IS not surprising that the struggle over 10-year-old Eric DeBrath and his sister Eve, who is 7, has been long and difficult, extending over several months and through two trials. There was such a multiplicity of nice questions—legally speaking—involved in deciding whether their mother, Mrs. Gloria Wainwright of Papeete, Tahiti, or Mrs. Grey Worswick of Alameda, California, in whose care the children had been placed more than two years ago, should have the custody of them.

Was it more reprehensible for a woman to be associated with the poem "To a Lady's Hips" or to borrow from a man a book entitled "From Fly to Madonna, or Love Life in Nature"? Is it a greater disqualification for guardianship to have had "close platonic relations" with two men while married to a third, or to have received gentleman callers while dining in bed? How should testimony that one claimant allowed men to kiss her as she reclined on her couch be balanced against testimony that the other added to the splendor of a South Seas sunset by appearing in a pink chiffon negligee? Or evidence that one woman let the children go to bed dirty against testimony that the other had her chauffeur bathe them?

There were also the fundamental problems of how much weight should be given the preferences of children of the ages of Eric and Eve, whether more consideration should be given the welfare of the children or the rights of the mother.

Two Judges, pondering such questions, came to different conclusions. One jurist thought Mrs. Wainwright should take Eve and Mrs. Worswick, Eric. But the other, in a decision handed down the other day, placed both the children in the custody of their mother. Whereupon Mrs. Worswick apparently gave up the fight, going into temporary retirement to escape "curiosity seekers," while Mrs. Wainwright made preparations to take her youngsters triumphantly back to Tahiti.

The seeds of the strife were sown in 1932. Mrs. Wainwright was then Mrs. Eric DeBrath, wife of an English hotel keeper in Papeete. The hotel was not flourishing and neither was the DeBrath marriage. Mrs. DeBrath said her husband drank too much and associated with native women. She wanted to get a divorce, but she feared it would be difficult to look after the children properly during the marital break and afterwards, with financial prospects very uncertain.

Into this troubled situation came Mrs. Worswick of Alameda, a chance tourist. She stayed at the DeBrath hotel and soon became very friendly with Mrs. DeBrath. She listened sympathetically to the other woman's accounts of her unhappy lot, and seemed to be concerned about the children. Presently, out of the friendship of the two women a solution for part of the domestic difficulty developed. Mrs. Worswick would take Eric and Eve back home with her and care for them while their mother was trying to get her affairs in better shape. "We went to a French notary," the mother later recounted, "and executed a document entrusting Eric and Eve to her. But I never gave them up for good."

THE boy and girl came to California with Mrs. Worswick, and entered a life considerably more luxurious than the one they had left behind in Tahiti. Their new custodian was a divorcee, with a comfortable income of about $1000 a month. A native of San Francisco, she had received most of her early education in Paris, and had married in London at the age of 17. Her divorce was granted in 1927; since then she had traveled a good deal.

With her children thus provided for, Mrs. DeBrath—who is, incidentally, the daughter of an English barrister—divorced the hotel keeper and, after a time, married another resident of Tahiti, Cyril Wainwright. In January of the present year she came to California to see the children. "I noticed then," she has since related, "that my children were growing away from me. When I returned home I wrote Mrs. Worswick asking her to send me my children for the summer. I could well afford to care for them again. However, she herself descended upon me to inform me that I could never have them back. I was shocked and horrified when she told me the children were hers and that she would balk at nothing to keep them."

Both women then hurried back to California. They traveled on the same boat, but they didn't see each other on the voyage, Mrs. Wainwright said, as she was a cabin passenger and Mrs. Worswick traveled first class.

Late in the spring, they arrived at Alameda, and the mother complained that the other woman wouldn't let her see Eric and Eve—wouldn't even tell her where they were. Said Mrs. Worswick:

"I devoted two and a half years to Eric and Eve. In Tahiti they were frail and they had no family training or educational advantages. Now they are healthy, bright and lovely. I don't want this to develop into another Gloria Vanderbilt embroglio, in which the children suffer, and that is why they are kept in seclusion."

Faced with Mrs. Worswick's determination to keep the youngsters, Mrs. Wainwright appealed to the law, seeking to regain them through habeas corpus action. The divorcee countered by asking the court to have her made permanent legal guardian of the boy and girl. Early in June the case went to trial here, before Superior Judge Fred V. Wood.

Eric and Eve were produced in court in compliance with the writ of habeas corpus. It was the first time Mrs. Wainwright had been able to see them since her arrival, and she greeted them affectionately. But they didn't seem to share her joy in the reunion. And when they were asked which woman they wanted to live with while the trial was in progress, Eric said promptly that he wanted to stay with "Mother Grey" and Eve said, "She's nice to me. I adopted her." But their mother argued that it wasn't fair to her to let them remain in the other woman's home, where, she charged, they were being coached to talk against her, and after a few days the Judge ordered them placed in the Alameda County Detention Home until the trial was over.

The trial quickly developed into an attack by each woman on the character of the other. Mrs. Wainwright, of course, advanced her natural right to possession of her own children, and her ability to provide for them.

Mrs. Wainwright and her sister, Mrs. Sylvia Chaldecott.

MRS. WORSWICK devoted some attention to supporting her claims that the boy and girl had more affection for her than for their mother, and that Alameda provided a better environment for them than Tahiti. But both sides seemed to direct their fiercest efforts toward trying to show that the rival claimant was unfit morally to have custody of the youngsters.

There was a good deal of testimony of this kind against Mrs. Wainwright. Some of it concerned a poet, Edward Bascom. One of his literary accomplishments was a poem bearing the frank title "To a Lady's Hips." Mrs. Wainwright denied it was dedicated to her, although she admitted Bascom was a friend of hers. He was one of two men, she said, with whom she had had "close platonic relations" before her divorce. She admitted that her new husband, Wainwright, had been previously married to a half-caste, but denied that he had lived with this woman's sister after his divorce. She also denied that a native had tried to mistreat her little daughter.

One of Mrs. Wainwright's star witnesses against Mrs. Worswick was Mrs. C. S. Ramsay-Hill, wife of a movie actor and daughter of Gouverneur Morris, the author. Mrs. Ramsey-Hill testified: "While I was in Tahiti, I was driving along a road at sunset one day and saw Mrs. Worswick in company with Edward Bascom standing on a lookout point attired in a pink chiffon negligee. I was startled, to say the least, to see her in such attire with the man who was habitually leaving poems of a somewhat lurid nature on the hotel veranda.

"I know that Mrs. Wainwright, on the other hand, bore an excellent reputation in Tahiti, and her children always appeared well cared for."

Mrs. Helen Mode, a former cook for Mrs. Worswick, had a number of uncomplimentary things to say on the witness stand about her ex-employer. The divorcee, she said, "habitually dressed and undressed before the children and habitually beat them. She threatened them with severe punishment if there should be one tear during their mother's visit."

Another cook, Mrs. Nancy Burbank, also testified against Mrs. Worswick. "Mrs. Worswick," she said, "begged me not to testify that Waldo Colby, the chauffeur, bathed the children. . . . I have seen her visit his room in a thin and enticing night garment."

Mrs. Janice Hodd, the housekeeper, said the chauffeur made brief visits to his employer in her bedroom.

In explanation of some of this evidence, Mrs. Worswick said she made a practice of dining in bed, and that she therefore received in her bedroom from dinner time on. She said that a friend, Joseph Swim, formerly of the State Narcotic Bureau, about whom there had been testimony, frequently had his dinner on a tray along with her. Both she and Swim asserted their association was quite proper.

AN acquaintance of Swim's had testified that the former narcotic agent had a marked interest in erotic literature and that he often took books to the Worswick home. Swim said it was true he lent books to Mrs. Worswick, but they were mostly books on travel and religion. The only one he ever lent her that might be considered "sexy" was "From Fly to Madonna, or Love Life in Nature."

One of the minor sensations of the trial was an effort by 12 Oakland club women to aid the cause of Mrs. Wainwright. In a signed statement, they said it was barbarism to keep the children from their mother. The Judge read the statement and pronounced the women in contempt of court, but an apology ended the incident.

On June 29, Judge Wood gave his decision. It was that the children should be separated, Eric staying with Mrs. Worswick and Eve returning to her mother. The Judge said:

"The mother in the past has shown but a sporadic love and affection for her children. She has not satisfactorily accounted for the fact that for two years and a half she has left these children in the care of another woman.

"She herself displayed the least emotion of any mother who ever sought custody of her children in this court—a woman who can smile while reflections are being made upon moral character.

"The boy Eric is sensitive and decided in his opinions. I do not believe that the mother can ever regain his love and respect, if she ever had much. She, and she alone, is to blame for this situation. She gave up her boy to indulge in ephemeral pleasures, while another woman endeared herself

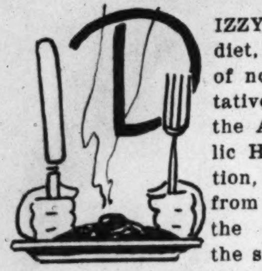
FIGHTING 'DIZZY IDEAS ABOUT DIET'

The American Public Health Association's Attack on Food Fads of the Last Several Years as Being Silly and—in Many Cases—a Menace to Health.

By ELLWOOD DOUGLASS

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff



DIZZY ideas about diet, in the opinion of no less authoritative a group than the American Public Health Association, have passed from the realm of the ridiculous to the stage of a public menace. And the ideas that it brands not merely dizzy but dangerous are not the old superstitions, but the most recent and romantic, the newest and most nightmarish, presented in so fascinating an array of scientific jargon that "Even physicians, nurses, teachers, medical students and dieticians are numbered among the victims."

From being "food-conscious," the association finds, we have become more than a little food-silly. It may only have deprived us unnecessarily of something we like, or led us unnecessarily to stuff on something we abhor. But quite too often it has led to attempted "diet cure': of illnesses that had nothing to do with diet, or wrong-headed self-denials that laid the body wide open to lurking infections—and that list begins with tuberculosis.

The association, as the chief authority in its field, was confronted by something it could not ignore. The result, at its annual meeting this month in Milwaukee, was a report by a committee of eminent scientists, headed by Dr. David Breese Jones of the United States Department of Agriculture, which, backing up every fact it cited with impregnable scientific testimony, shelled out the newest and nuttiest food fallacies and blasted them one by one.

In the bombardment, one of the heaviest ever inflicted by a major scientific association, it had occasion to point out several simple facts that every schoolboy learns—and has to forget before he can swallow even the most alluring and prevalent nonsense about diet. Fundamental among them were such uncomplicated items as the fact that a well person has no more use for a sick man's diet than for his medicines; that food products ordinarily called "starches" or "proteins" actually are not 100 per cent pure starch or protein; that foods undergo complicated changes in the process of digestion; that abnormal body chemistry is more likely to come from abnormal body functioning than from normal diet; that one of the digestive juices produced by the body itself is hydrochloric acid; that, though the body needs a little of all the vitamins to function normally, a lot of any one or two of them won't make it supernormal; simplest and most easily overlooked of all, that a "normal" diet is really normal, and not some fantastic creation that has to be worked out with a slide rule and a knack for fiction.

AND profitable fiction, the report makes clear, is a chief concern of the promulgators of freak diets, although "some of them," it concedes, "may be honest but ignorant and misguided enthusiasts and fanatics."

Its first target is the fallacy that proteins and starches are incompatible and should not be eaten at the same meal, a theory for which the pseudoscientific basis is the fact that starches digest in an alkaline and proteins in an acid medium.

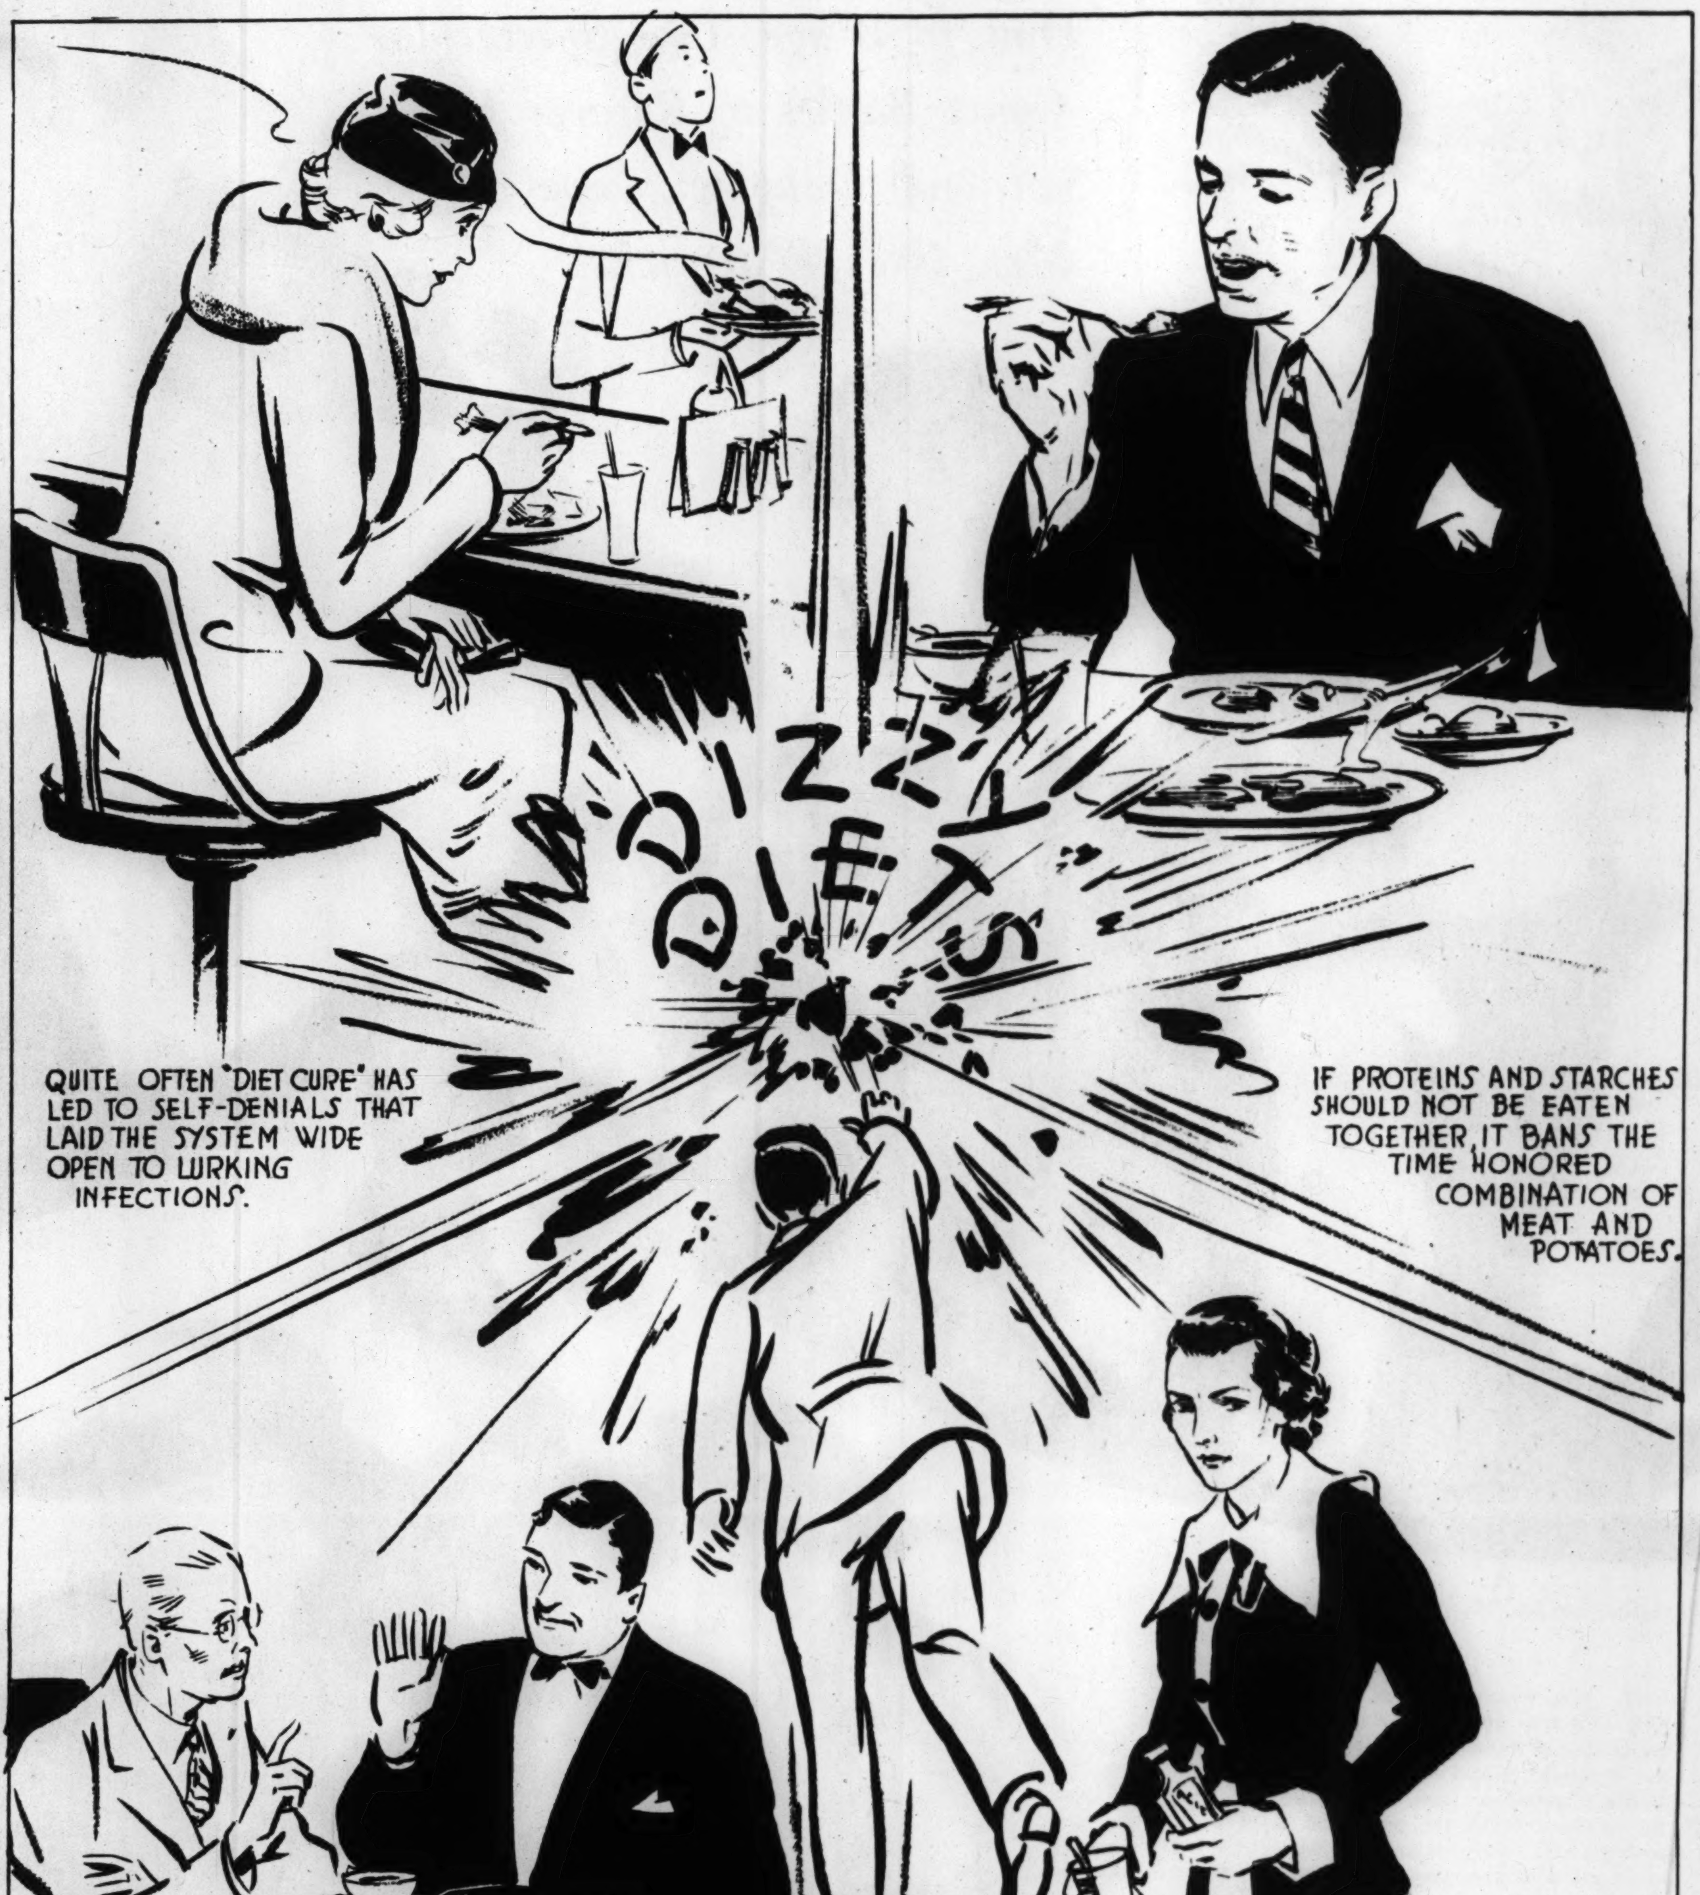
"One can look in vain through the writings of authorities in textbooks and journals for any scientific experimental data in support of this idea," comments the Public Health Association committee. "This absurd system would ban the time-honored combinations which for generations have been recognized as wholesome and healthful, such as meat and potatoes, bread and milk, bread and cheese."

Funnier than that, it would cut from the diet nearly all the cereal foods, wheat, rice, rye, barley, oats and corn, bread, pastries, macaroni and the like—and beans and peas as well—since each contains starch and protein together.

But the report does not stop with that appeal to common sense. It cites page and paragraph of noted authorities who found in actual tests some indication that the stomach completed its part of the digestive function more quickly when the diet included both starches and proteins; and, in another study of an extended variety of chronic invalids and 200 healthy men, demonstrated "The complete inaccuracy of the statement that proteins and carbohydrates (starches) are incompatible in the stomach."

The only thing the authorities found to excuse the notion is the fact that many people eat too much anyhow, and cutting down a little on carbohydrates doesn't hurt them. But many others do not eat too much, and the researcher issued a solemn warning:

"The unqualified acceptance of such a teaching can lead to the occurrence of serious malnutrition as well as to a lighting of tuberculosis and old infections."



QUITE OFTEN "DIET CURE" HAS LED TO SELF-DENIALS THAT LAID THE SYSTEM WIDE OPEN TO LURKING INFECTIONS.
DIZZY DIETS
IF PROTEINS AND STARCHES SHOULD NOT BE EATEN TOGETHER, IT BANS THE TIME HONORED COMBINATION OF MEAT AND POTATOES.
A WELL PERSON HAS NO MORE USE FOR A SICK MAN'S DIET THAN FOR HIS MEDICINES.
ONE OF THE MOST POPULAR AND UP TO-DATE NIGHTMARES ABOUT DIET IS "ACIDOSIS"

Dr. David Breese Jones

Some faddists go the protein-starch fallacy one better by insisting that one should eat only one kind of starch or one kind of protein at a time, adds the report. Its comment is, "This is obviously so devoid of all scientific reasoning that it merits but a mere passing reference."

There are two jokers in that deck, explains the committee. The first is that any starch one eats winds up in digestion as the same simple sugar, glucose. It makes no difference if he chooses one "starch" food or an assortment.

The other is that some proteins lack indispensable nutrition elements found in others, so that a diet without a variety of them is incomplete. Cereal grains, for example, lack two amino acids of which meat, milk, eggs and nuts are excellent sources, so that, the report comments, "Instead of an incompatibility we have a supplementation."

An arch-fiend of the most popular and up-to-date nightmares about diet is "acidosis"—a term that, the committee points out, probably wouldn't be half so fearsome if anyone knew precisely what it means. Going for its definition to an exalted medical commission, the report, citing such well-known authorities as Dean Marriott of Washington University School of Medicine, lays down these points with the most deliberate emphasis:

Acidosis is rare.

It is usually a condition attending specific diseases, such as diabetes or kidney diseases, involving a fault in the body's chemical processes.

One scientist has established that the body reaction remains unchanged through a wide range of acid or alkaline diets.

Two others have demonstrated that a long-continued excess of acid-forming foods led to no apparent injury.

Another finds no good evidence that large and steady consumption of alkaline foods does any particular good.

For its definition, the report cites a recent decision of the American Medical Association Committee on Foods: "Acidosis is a name for a morbid condition of diminution in the reserve supply of fixed alkali in the blood and body fluids.

"Most people have no conception of the true meaning of the word and are quite likely to confuse it with gastric hyperacidity or 'acid stomach,' or to conceive of it as 'acid blood,' a condition which would be incompatible with life."

Arthritis is a favored playground of the diet quack. "We are told," the report continues, "to omit 'acid fruits and vegetables'; to partake of only one type of food substance at a meal; to alter the acid-base balance of the diet; to use a low protein and carbohydrate diet.

"Carbohydrate restriction is based on a dietary rationale, the correctness of which has not been satisfactorily demonstrated by scientifically controlled experiments.

"The commonly so-called acid fruits, such as oranges, tomatoes and grapefruit, contain weak organic acids which are easily oxidized in the body. These acids are chiefly present as salts of inorganic bases which are left in the blood as alkaline carbonates—and really serve as available alkali to the body.

"The fallacy and inadequacy of these claims has been recently pointed out by Bauer: 'One need make no effort to maintain a basic (or alkaline) diet in an arthritic person any more than in a normal one. . . . The prescribing of a low protein diet is a relic from the days when rheumatoid arthritis was confused with gout. There is no justification for the limitation of proteins in the dietary of a patient with rheumatoid arthritis. There are many reasons why it should be liberal.'

"Another fallacy which finds a prominent place in the armamentarium of the nutritional quack is that acid fruits should not be eaten at the same time with carbohydrate foods, including breads and cereal products, potatoes, squash and sugars of every kind. These foods, we are reminded, require an alkaline medium for their digestion, and without the alkaline reaction of the saliva they would never be digested at all.

"This view ignores the well-known fact that only a part of the carbohydrate digestion occurs in the mouth and stomach as a result of the action of ptyalin in the saliva, and that there are active amylolytic enzymes in the intestines where carbohydrate digestion proceeds to completion. In fact, starch digestion can proceed favorably in a medium that is practically neutral.

"The relatively small amounts of the weak organic acids in fruits can have little or no significance upon any interruption of starch digestion in the stomach where the hydrochloric acid of the gastric juice is many times stronger than the fruit acids."

ORDINARY table salt has been blamed by various "experts" for Bright's disease, cancer, tuberculosis, high blood pressure and a variety of other diseases, and, the committee remarks, has actually been considered by conscientious physicians to some extent in treatment of high blood pressure—without, however, any significant evidence to show that salt has anything to do with it. Two scientists found no change despite large variations in the amount of salt taken by patients with high blood pressure. Another found no improvement from "a so-called 'salt-free' diet," and the only reservation any of them could make was that, when high blood pressure was complicated by kidney disease, perhaps it was best to limit salt "to that contained in the food as it reaches the table."

Another hangover from the days when gout was confused with other forms of arthritis is the fear of dark meat or of any meat but fish or fowl. It springs from the fear that foods rich in purines yield uric acid, "with resulting gout, rheumatism and acidosis." But actually dark meat, except liver, sweetbreads and kidneys, contain no more purines than white, and fish and fowl contain as much or more than beef, veal, lamb and pork.

Even physicians still prescribe raw eggs for invalids. But, says the report, "it has been proved by numerous investigators (seven of them are listed) that the white of eggs is much less digestible when raw than when cooked. There is even evidence that raw egg-white, when fed to experimental animals, will invariably produce toxic symptoms."

"Among the dicta of faddists and food charlatans are many so fanciful and absurd that to the person of ordinary intelligence they need no refutation," says the committee. "As illustrations of such fallacies may be mentioned the following: 'Tomatoes cause cancer; meat makes one sensuous and belligerent; mixtures of incompatible foods explode in the stomach; fish is a good brain food; garlic purifies the blood; cream should not be eaten with lobster, strawberries or pickles; fish and celery should not be eaten together; dead foods should be avoided.'

"MANY different systems of dieting and treatments are advocated for weight reduction, some of which are merely scientifically unsound, others are positively harmful and dangerous. Many, eager to conform to the current prevailing fashion of being slender, adopt short cuts to reduction advertised by food promoters and those interested only in their own personal gains, and do themselves harm, bringing on weakness, nervous irritability and anemia. Particularly to be deprecated is the use of salts and dangerous drugs.

"In reduction treatment the first consideration is curtailment of calorie intake, with the object of accomplishing a gradual loss of weight without sacrificing the amount of protein, vitamins and mineral salts required for normal body needs, nor even of the calories needed as a source of energy for body temperature and for production of work. Many reducing menus are erroneously based on elimination from the diet of individual foods, such as potatoes, rice, cereal products and butter.

"In order to assure an adequate balance of food factors essential for health and normal nutrition, it should be remembered that it is not the kind of food that should be restricted, but rather the quantity. As Mendel has aptly stated, 'Sanity in diet calls for moderation in eating rather than exclusion of any wholesome food. Even the slenderest persons need some energy for their daily undertakings.'"

A SEVENTY-YEAR-OLD CHORUS GIRL—AND STILL ACTIVE

NEW YORK.

NOW that voluntary retirement has removed the hirsute and magnificent Guillio Gatti-Casazza from his suzerainty over the Metropolitan Opera company, no one alive—with the possible exception of Mme. Lucrezia Bori—is so intimately associated with its tradition and history as Maria Savage. But her relation to the glamourous establishment that lies between the points of the diamond horseshoe is totally unlike those of its famous protectors and managers; her bond of attachment is rather that of ward than that of guardian. Literally, she is a hanger-on; but she is more than that—a sort of institution within the institution. She is the most venerable member of the cast.

This month Mme. Savage celebrates her twenty-seventh year as a singer in the chorus of the opera. She is 70 years old and has never sung a leading role there. Some of her biggest parts have been "bits" and "walk-ons." And yet her association with the Metropolitan is so intimate that she transcends her roles. She has known all of the greatest stars, she knows all the operas on the regular repertoire. Tall, spare and dynamic, this old lady has become an important fixture. When the new director, Edward Johnson, started ridding the company of its dead wood, dismissing some of the oldtimers who had outlived their usefulness, "Maman" Savage was assured that she would not be among those let out. Perhaps it was only a sentimental whim to keep her on now that her voice had begun to lose its purity and her figure its erectness; but more likely she was kept because of her importance to the morale which clings to operatic traditions. She is the bond between Gatti-Casazza's opera and Johnson's; between the era of Melba, Caruso, Mary Garden and Geraldine Farrar, and the new day of Flagstad, Lily Pons and Lawrence Tibbett.

And so her still powerful, correctly disciplined voice will continue, for at least another season, to form part of the choral background, that limbo just within the none too discriminating threshold of consciousness of the bulk of the Metropolitan audience. Vaguely seen and barely heard, she will continue to play the tragic character of the old mother in "William Tell," the dignified old noblewoman in "Der Rosenkavalier" and the comic traveler with a bird cage in "Mignon."

"I have so often held a bird cage in my hand that I sometimes think they will put one on my tombstone when I die," she says, laughing.

Mme. Savage lives in a Riverside Drive apartment with an auburn-haired daughter, May, also in the chorus. Their penthouse terrace is bright with flowers, vegetables and weeds, the latter flourishing because "they look so pretty I cannot bear to destroy them."

The three rooms are jammed to overflowing with souvenirs and curios. Autographed pictures of Lily Pons, Melba, Gigli, Mary Garden and other operatic celebrities adorn the walls. One closet is filled with neatly labeled boxes. They contain her stage costumes, including the wigs that Farrar gave her, pearls from Tetrazzini, the bracelet of Sybil Sanderson.

"A wonderful woman, Geraldine Farrar—I wish we had more like her," remarked Mme. Savage. "She had so much justice, so much fairness. She was kind to everyone. She gave me these presents on the night of her farewell performance. Ah, but that was a night long to be remembered. She sang 'Zaza' and received a wonderful ovation."

Proudly, the elderly chorus singer displayed the opal ring which was Caruso's gift. She told the story connected with it.

The tenor at one time was the recipient of several sinister Black Hand threats. The company was rehearsing one afternoon at the Brooklyn Academy of Music. Strangely enough, the words he had to sing as he made his entrance were "Murder, assassin!" The coincidence aroused a feeling of apprehension in the entire company.

"We were all afraid for him," she explained. "As we stood in the wings I saw two funny-looking fellows near him. Later I learned they were detectives. But then I did not know who they were or what they might do. I ran up and pinned a brooch on him for good luck. It had a motto, 'In Hoc Signo Vinces,' 'With this sign you will win.'

"Fortunately, nothing did happen. A few days later, he asked me if I wanted the brooch back. I told him it was his to keep. And then he presented me with this ring. I kissed his hand. He shook his head and said:

"'No, Maman, no. It is I who should kiss your hand.'

"Of all the opera stars I have known I think Caruso was the one I loved best."

Mme. Savage tenderly cherishes the cheap little pink cotton dress that Jeanne Eagels wore in the first act of "Rain." She had a long and intimate association with the lovable, reckless and ill-fated actress. Their friendship began when Ivor Novello's mother brought Jeanne in as a pupil. Maman for years has eked out her slender income by teaching diction and dramatic interpretation.

"SHE loved me, that little Jeanne," says Mme. Savage. "She used to consider herself my daughter. Once she said, 'I wish I had really been your daughter, Mama Froggie—but then, if I had been your daughter, I would not be Jeanne Eagels.'

"'Mama Froggie' was her pet name for me. She would cry like a baby when I scolded her. She would fly into rages and then come back, begging forgiveness. Temperamental? Oh, surely, but she had a big heart. She would spend money so fast, so fast, and I would spank her for that.

"I remember the first day I saw her. We were not wealthy then. We had a tiny, make-believe Christmas tree in the corner. It was a pathetic tree, really. But Jeanne came in and made out it was the most beautiful thing she had ever seen. It was a wonderful piece of acting."

Mme. Savage characterizes Lily Pons as "a darling, who wins the hearts of everyone backstage." She knew Mary Garden well, too. She chuckles, relating how the chorus girls at rehearsals used to tickle the plump tenor, Melchior, in "Parsifal." Despite her white hairs and the dignified pince-nez, she has a youthful, lively sense of humor.

Maman has had an unusual and colorful career. Born Maria Metten, in the small town of Namur, Belgium, she sang at local functions as a child. Her father, who was Chief of Police, strongly opposed her ambitions to become an opera star. Against his wishes she made her debut in the leading role of "La Favorita."

It was a local triumph. She still treasures a faded clipping from the Namur Revue of November 20, 1887, describing her performance in glowing terms. Exalted, beaming, her arms filled with congratulatory bouquets, she came home—to find the doors locked against her.

"My father thought that I had disgraced the family name," she explained. "He has been dead now for many years, but my brothers continue to hold this belief.

"To this day they will not have a costume picture of me in their homes. They are shocked because my daughter has followed in my footsteps.

"Does this seem strange? But there was some foundation for their attitude, when I was a girl. In those days the pay was very small. The girls had to furnish their own costumes and makeup. Without help from someone it was difficult to exist. Many had 'protectors.' Their reputation, you understand, was not always good."

The disinherited daughter borrowed some money, went to Brussels, then to Paris, and next to London, where she got a job at Covent Garden.

There she met and married Morris Savage, sub-manager of the Imperial Bank. He was transferred to Persia. For three years they lived in a palace at Teheran. Mme. Savage bore him three children—two daughters and a son. They went back to London—and one day he disappeared. Broke and out of a job, he walked away and never came back.

"Is he dead or alive? I do not know. I have made inquiries, I have followed trails, but I have never found out what became of him."

In August, 1908, she received a letter that changed the entire course of her life. The letter came from Giulio Setti, chorus manager, who offered her a place in the newly organized Metropolitan Opera Company. Eagerly she accepted.

She became a Metropolitan "chorus lady" in October, 1908, and has remained there ever since. She's noted for her picturesque characterizations and acting ability as well as her vocal contributions. In many scenes, she doesn't sing at all.

The Author of a Movie Thriller Who Has Become Governor-General of Canada

CONSERVATIVE, soldier, historian, John Buchan comes as a Governor-General new to Canada but already well-known throughout the United States for his remarkable movie thriller, "The Thirty-nine Steps."

St. Louis and the United States saw the British-made spy picture several weeks earlier than Canada, for its release in the Dominion was held up for the new Governor-General's arrival October 10. And, judging by reports of St. Louis reviewers upon its recent showing here, whatever the future popularity of Lord Tweedsmuir as Governor-General, he is sure of a following among Canadian movie fans.

He was plain Colonel Buchan when King George appointed him, the first commoner ever to be appointed to the office. But King George fixed that up handsomely before he took office by making him a peer and Knight Grand Cross of the Order of St. Michael and St. George. He chose for his title the little Scotch town of Tweedsmuir, where he was reared.

Lord Tweedsmuir was born in Perth in 1875, eldest son of the Rev. John Buchan. From the bookshelves of his mother's father, John Masterton of Broughton Green, came his first taste of literature and the beginnings of his affection for the North Country lore of Sir Walter Scott—which have produced now a dozen tales of his own.

His education was that of a lawyer; his schools, Glasgow and Oxford. His first work was as secretary to the High Commissioner of South Africa, where he saw the closing months of the Boer War. But his career really began two years later when he returned to Scotland and entered into partnership with an Oxford friend in an Edinburgh publishing concern.

It was furthered, rather than interrupted, by the World War. His writings were suspended for those four years; but he became a Colonel on the headquarters staff in France, spent the last two years of the war as Director of Information under Lloyd George and gained the experience which led, along one line, to a subsequent directorship of the Reuters News Agency; along another, to a first-hand acquaintance with his subject matter in such spy melodramas as his "Thirty-nine Steps."

Returning to business and writing after the war, he was forced by steadily increasing demand to increase his output—that progressively ate up all his leisure. Eventually he gave up the publishing and news connections to devote all his time to writing, even to spare minutes on train journeys—a habit which recalls Sinclair Lewis' story that he wrote "The Trail of the Hawk" on a commuters' train, and that some of its liveliest passages were designed to startle one or another chance seat-mate.

His income grew with the popularity of "Prester John," "The Watcher on the Threshold," "Greenmantle"; his history of the World War; histories of the Royal Scots Fusiliers and the South African contingents in France; biographies of Scott, Caesar, the Duke of Montrose, Oliver Cromwell—and novels turned out one after another with growing hold on the public taste.

IN 1927 his income was established. He stood for Parliament, entering the Commons as representative of the Scottish Universities. There he was distinguished as a Conservative who had the warm personal friendship of Ramsay MacDonald; an advocate of educational reform, as devoted to the thesis that an intelligent population is essential for continued democracy as any Leftist is to the theory that an educated proletariat will upset the apple cart; a leader in the movement to raise the "leaving-school age" to 16 years, and a member on the Right who yet saw virtue in certain aims of Labor.

A spare Scot, with thin, sandy hair—beginning to show the gray—sharply-cut features and a voice that betrays the thistle, he yet achieved a reputation as a speaker with power to hold an audience. He is interested in the amateur theater, as actor as well as writer. With him has appeared his daughter, Alice. She is the wife of Captain Fairfax-Lucy of the Cameron Highlanders, a descendant of the Magistrate Fairfax-Lucy who, the tradition goes, fined Shakespeare for poaching.

One son is an official of Kenya Colony, the second is at Oxford and the youngest is still at Eton. Lady Tweedsmuir is known for her "Sword of State," an account of the political career of her ancestor, the Duke of Wellington; Lord Tweedsmuir's sister, Anna, also writes, with the pen name of O. Douglas.

His new home is Rideau Hall at Ottawa, Canada's White House, and, in summer, the Citadel of Quebec, where he first set foot on Canadian soil. He is a fisherman, a deer hunter and a mountain climber—sports of which Canada can give him his fill, though he may have to go farther afield for them than in Scotland.

He is a believer in the League of Nations, the Empire, or rather the British Commonwealth of Nations, and Anglo-American leadership, a fact which may have had something to do with his appointment.

His high office will not interrupt his writings. His last book was "The King's Grace", published on the Silver Jubilee of George V. In Canada he plans to complete the biography of the Roman Emperor Augustus. He is said to plan a Canadian novel, but that will wait until after his term as Governor-General.

PIANIST, COMPOSER, MUSICAL THEORIST—and a Friend of Brahms

LOUIS VICTOR SAAR has been credited on publishers lists with at least 140 printed compositions. He is better known for his teaching. Coming to this country originally to accompany and help drill the chorus of the Metropolitan Opera Company, he went from there to the faculty of the old National Conservatory in New York, thence to the New York College of Music and the Institute of Musical Art. For 11 years he was principal of the theory department and head of the chorus at the Cincinnati College of Music. From 1925 until last year he was dean of the faculty at the Chicago College of Music. Although he has won many prizes for what he has written, he depends for his fame on the students who have worked under him since the turn of the century. He has given "recitalogues" of his own works in at least 30 American cities. (Recitalogues are just recitals, he explains.) Last year he came to St. Louis to live. Once when he was here before he conducted the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, which was then regularly under the directorship of Max Zach.

Dr. Saar is a statuesque figure of a man, well over six feet high, white thatched at the temples and bald on top. He wears an uptilted bristle mustache and dresses in gray. His intonation is strongly flavored with German and his sentences pass from fortissimo to pianissimo with a frequence and rapidity unlike anything except the effects produced by an organist rapturously testing the versatility of one of those modern organ registers that move from Boom to Peep with disconcerting suddenness. Like such an instrument Dr. Saar's personality is uncabined and instinct with effortless reservoirs of energy. Likewise his gestures are large. His big hands speak and he illustrates a notion with a movement of his whole trunk.

"Louis Victor Saar," says a brochure, "has won international celebrity as a pianist, a composer, a musical theorist and a teacher. He was born in Rotterdam, on December 10, 1868, and laid the foundation of his artistic skill as a pupil of Josef Rheinberger at the Royal Academy of Music, Munich, from which he was graduated with highest honors in 1889. He spent a winter with Brahms in Vienna. . ."

THAT was the winter of 1890, Johannes Brahms was at the height of his fame. Music enthusiasts came from all over the world, and kings sent their emissaries to honor him. Dr. Saar was admitted within the fringe of all this glory. He found the great composer unawed and unimpressed in the center of a tiny bourgeois flat in a respectable street, with a dumpy, simple housekeeper who curtly welcomed one and all into the presence of the master—who disposed of them, regardless of rank and magnificence, with cursory indifference. Dr. Saar vividly recalls the master's blunt manners.

"Don't forget," he says, "Brahms was a Hamburger—the most disagreeable people in the world. Hamburg is a fine, a most beautiful city. But it has a most disagreeable population. They are noted for it." He grimaces appropriately with pouted lips, and goes on to tell how the chubby little composer received "trembling," kowtowing magnificos in full evening dress, while he wore ragged dirty overalls—or pajamas.

Brahms hated Rheinberger, Saar's former teacher and possibly the most celebrated teacher in his time. "Forget everything you learned in Munich. Do not write anything for a year. Just listen." Only children were at home with him. They called him "Onkel Brahms" and eagerly dogged his footsteps when he went for his afternoon walk; his pockets were always full of bon-bons for them. "He hated adults," his former pupil says.

The veneration in which Brahms was held by the musical public of Vienna almost encroached on their respect for God and the Emperor. When he entered the hall where the Philharmonic played, the audience rose in a body. Ladies threw their corsages, even their jewels on the stage. "But he played terrible," Saar adds. "He played with all the lack of relaxation of his 250 pounds. He didn't practice. One was always conscious of the heavy North German in his playing."

After Vienna, Saar went to Leipzig and Berlin, got to know Joachim and Bruch, then had to make arrangements about evading the Austrian compulsory military service. For although born in Rotterdam, Dr. Saar inherited Austrian citizenship. When he reported for service at Prague, a merry old General agreed to grant him immunity on condition that he promise not to write too bad operas. Shortly thereafter Saar came to America as accompanist for the Metropolitan Opera Company. It was 1893. He was to experience the ripeness of the Nineties in New York. He believes that this was the most crucial period in America's past and subsequent musical history. It was the year after Dvorak completed his "New World Symphony." He became intimate with the great Bohemian composer, who "looked as if he would eat you up, though really he wouldn't kill a fly." Almost every day they would meet at a musician's table at the Cafe Fleischmann on Broadway.

Dvorak was in great contrast with Brahms. Genial, volatile and easy-going, he was also an affectionate friend. Unlike Brahms, who wrote ponderously, torturing himself with relentless self-analysis, Dvorak wrote from inspiration, fluently and without blotting a note.

Dr. Saar keenly enjoys the recollection of those first years in America. "I love to retrace, you understand," he says. It was one of the memorable occasions of his life when, on a recent return to New York, one of the old Cafe Fleischmann waiters recognized him. The cafe itself has long ceased to exist.

He thinks the moderns may be doing valuable experimenting ("the life of music depends on new dissonances") but he finds none of it precisely to his taste, feels that there is too much self-conscious novelty-seeking in modern composition.

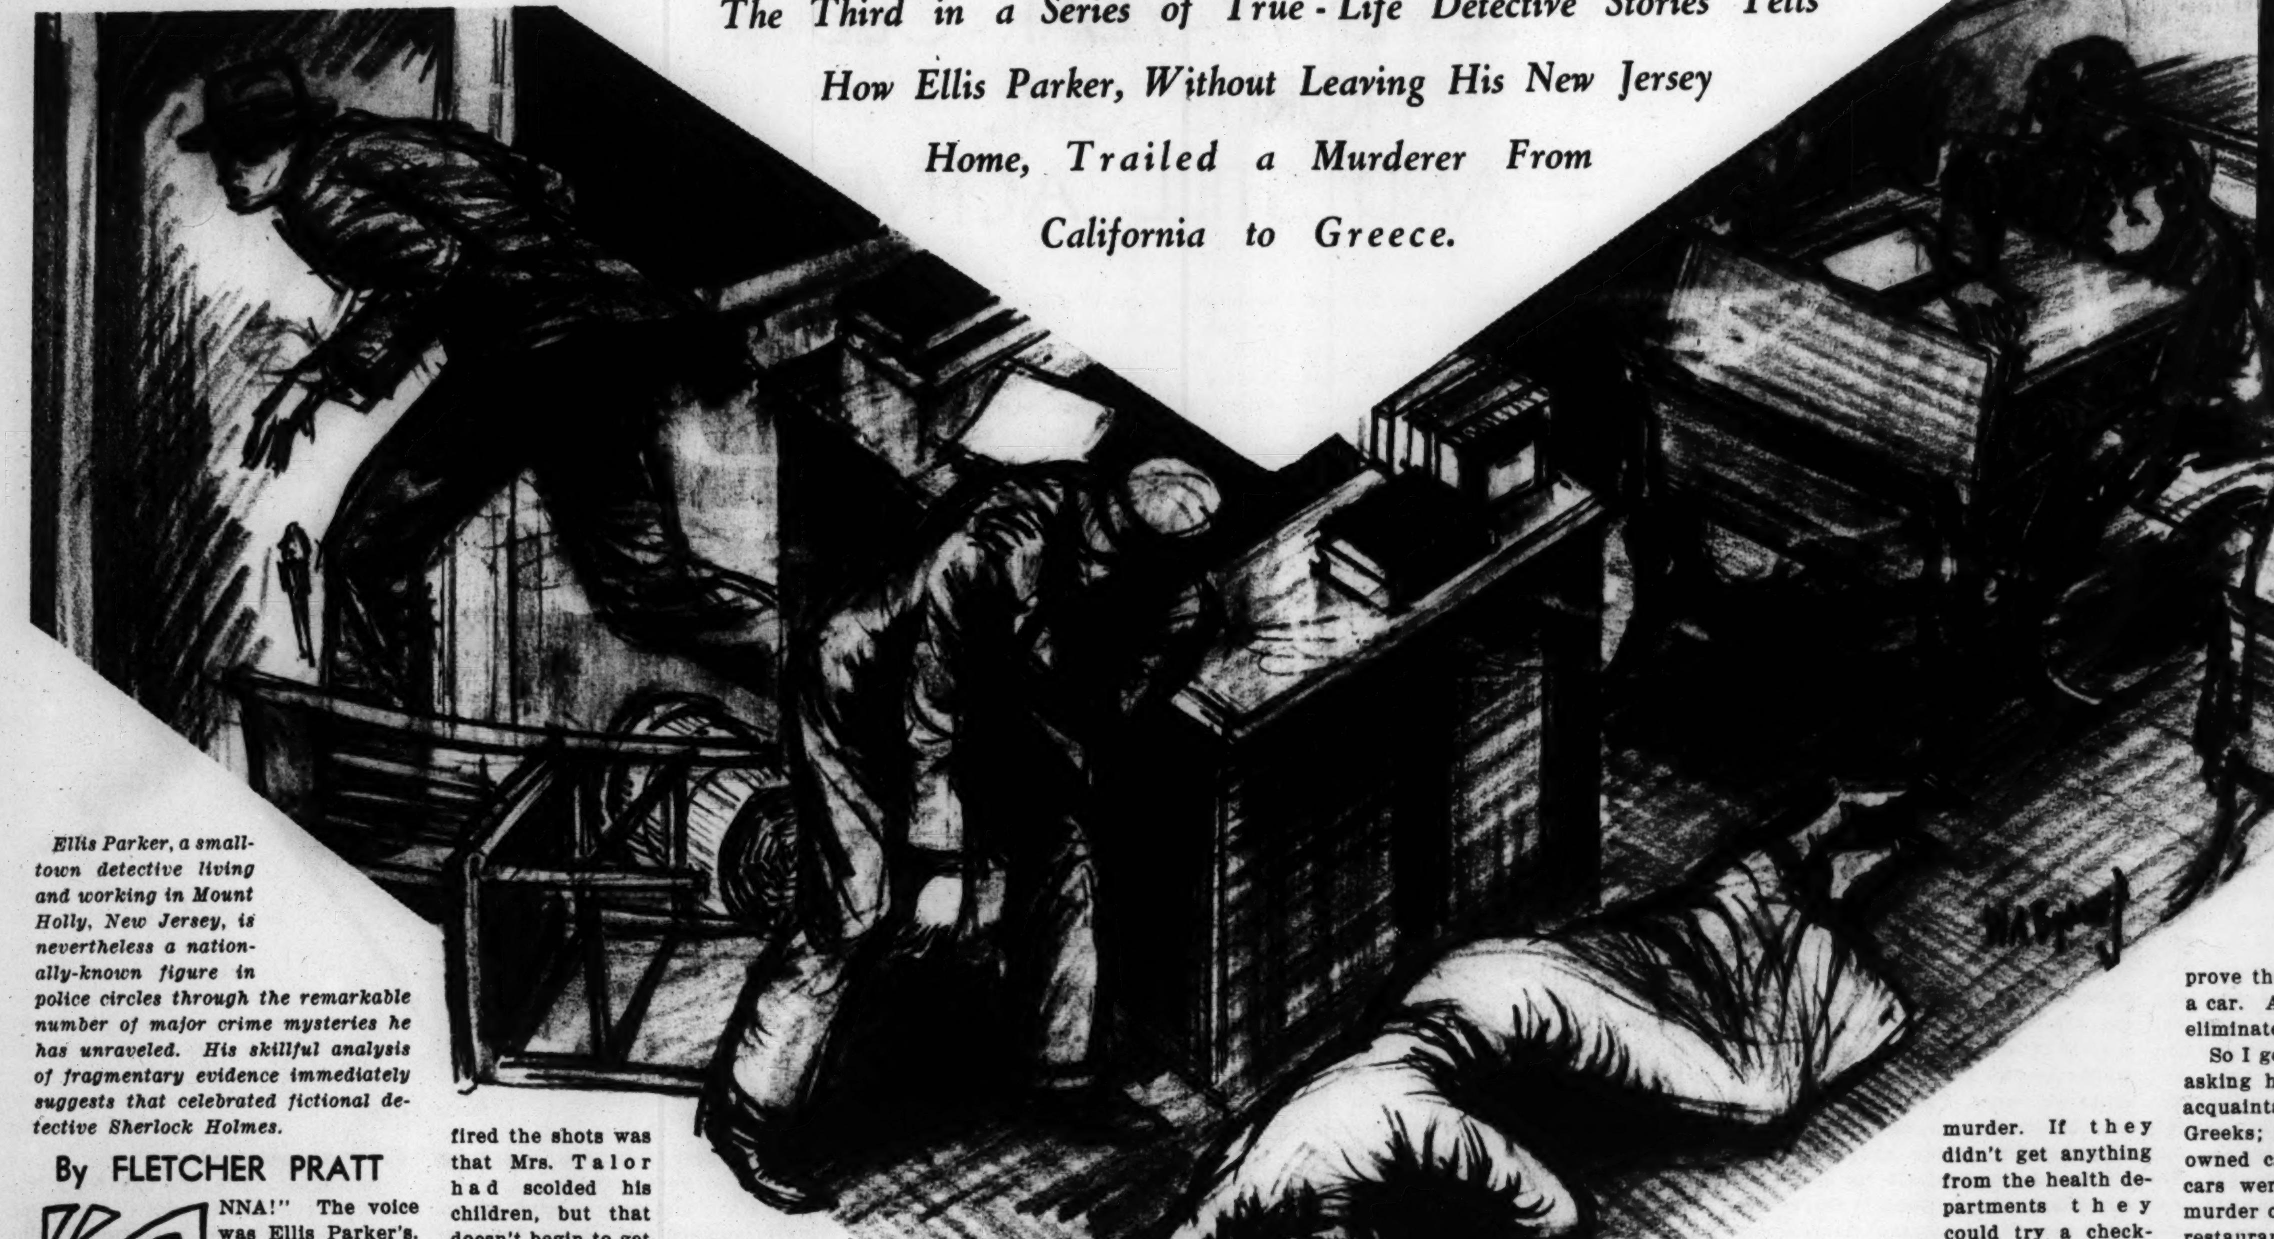
DEATH in the SCHOOLROOM

The Third in a Series of True-Life Detective Stories Tells How Ellis Parker, Without Leaving His New Jersey Home, Trailed a Murderer From California to Greece.



"He threw down his gun and ran."

Ellis Parker.

Ellis Parker, a small-town detective living and working in Mount Holly, New Jersey, is nevertheless a nationally-known figure in police circles through the remarkable number of major crime mysteries he has unraveled. His skillful analysis of fragmentary evidence immediately suggests that celebrated fictional detective Sherlock Holmes.

By FLETCHER PRATT

"ANNA!" The voice was Ellis Parker's. "Take this over and get somebody to read it out so I can understand, will you? Wish they wouldn't send me letters in German and foreign languages like that."

"Don't you read German, chief?"

"No, I don't read no foreign languages at all. I didn't have any chance to go to college like so many of you young people, you see. Too busy right here in Mount Holly, catching criminals ever since I was so big."

"I don't suppose you'd have much use for it anyway, would you?"

"Well, yes and no. There are some cases where it would come in handy. But that's the advantage of living in a State like this. Why, I can get anything I want in the scientific line without going outside New Jersey. Like in that Tom Coumas case, where I had the co-operation of some of the most educated men in the country."

"What case was that, chief?"

. . . Well, that was an interesting case because it was different from what you might expect. Officially, I wasn't connected with it at any time, and it wasn't my case at all, but I sort of helped some of the California authorities on it, and we worked along by mail and finally got the right answer. You see, in that case the time element didn't count for much; in most police work it does, or at least most of the police seem to think it does. As far as I can make out, though, it's more important to think accurately than to think fast. No criminal can run so far the law can't catch him, but he can hide right near by and cover his tracks and you never get him.

This Coumas case, as I said, wasn't my case at all. It happened out in California, and it wasn't like most murder cases, in which you have two problems—first, find out who committed the murder, and, second, find out where the murderer is, the solution of the first problem usually bringing the second with it.

No, in this case there was only one question, and that was what had become of Tom Coumas, the murderer.

At least 15 people had seen him commit the murder, because the victim was a school teacher and he murdered her in her classroom with all the children and the school janitor looking on. Just rushed in and shot her in the breast, plugged the janitor through the shoulder when he tried to interfere and then shot Mrs. Talor—did I say that was her name? again.

As to why he shot her, that's something else again. I have seen lots of cases of people who have lived perfectly normal lives up to a certain point and then suddenly went wild, but I have never been able to understand what reasons they had. And that was what Tom Coumas was—a perfectly normal person, a fish and fruit peddler of Greek ancestry, with four children, two of whom were then in the school room and the other two graduated.

The reason he screamed out when he fired the shots was that Mrs. Talor had scolded his children, but that doesn't begin to get at the real reason.

Anyway, he did shoot Mrs. Talor, threw down his gun and ran. That was the last they saw of him. He simply dropped off the edge of the earth. They watched all roads, railroads and steamship lines; they had 5000 "Wanted" circulars printed and sent them all over the country; they went to the Greek consulate in San Francisco, without getting the slightest trace of their man.

Guard C. Darrow is the District Attorney there. He had been in the East a couple of times and I knew him. I guess he must have got to talking the case over with Sheriff Odell, and anyway, he decided to write to me and ask me what I thought of it. He said he didn't believe they had overlooked any possible steps, but the fact remained that six months or more had gone by and they still had no more trace of Tom Coumas than in the beginning, so they must have missed a trick somewhere. There just weren't any clews.

Now there isn't any such thing as a case without clews, and I wrote to Darrow and told him so. In my experience I have found that murderers, unless they're casual killers of the gangster type, always head for home if you give them time enough. They seem to feel that they know the ropes around the old home town, and can avoid pursuit there easier than anywhere else.

SO I wrote back to Darrow and told him that if he hadn't had any results by following Coumas' trail from the time he committed the murder, he ought to go into his back trail. If he could find out where Coumas came from the chances were that would be the spot Coumas had gone to.

You want to understand that these letters took a long time going back and forth from Mount Holly to San Francisco, and though I had plenty to do at the time—that was the year Bradway Brown was killed—I had plenty of time between letters to sort of think about the case. So not long after I sent off the letter telling Darrow to look along Coumas' back trail I got interested and wrote again, asking him to send on copies of the police reports on the whole case.

Well, they came to me all right, and with them came a letter from Darrow sort of kidding me and saying I was getting old or maybe my brain didn't work so good at that distance. He said he'd thought of that back trail angle himself, and had tried to follow it up. But Coumas had lived in Stockton for the last 10 years; his wife had died there giving birth to the last of his four children, and the other three of them were too young at the time they had come to Stockton to remember where they had been before that. I'll give Darrow credit—he was thorough. He had even gone to those Greek fraternal organizations in this country, who keep such close tab on the Greeks in America, but even they didn't know a thing about Coumas' past.

That made it hard, I had to admit, though it helped to make it understandable how Coumas had disappeared so completely. He was one of these floaters. However, as I went over the reports for the fifteenth time, I remembered that Coumas had left behind one record of himself that he couldn't get away from — and that was those four children. They constituted a permanent record of his activities by the very fact of their existence.

I extracted all the data on them from the reports. The youngest one was 9, the others 11, 13 and 15, respectively. Now I've got children enough of my own to know that jumps like that in the ages mean that Mrs. Coumas had brought children into the world about as fast as was physically possible up to the time she had died, nine years before. No birth control in that family. But if that was the case, it seemed logical to suppose that the 15-year-old child had been born not long after Coumas' marriage. There was a clew in that fact—or at least a clew could be worked out of it.

I called in Miss Yoos and then dictated a letter like this to her:

"Dear Sir: Will you be good enough to examine the marriage records on file in your bureau and inform us whether you have a record of the marriage of Thomas Coumas? The date should be about 1914 or 1915, probably not later than 1916. We realize that this is a lot of trouble, but the information is essential to a murder case."

I had that letter sent out to the bureau of vital statistics in each of the 48 states, and then as an afterthought, to each of the Canadian provinces in addition. It was a long time before the answers came back, and meanwhile Darrow wrote me a couple more times, still kidding, but I didn't bother to answer him till I got the answer from the State of Washington. Then I sent him a telegram. Here it is:

"We have established Coumas married in Vancouver, Washington, nineteen fifteen. Come East and learn."

I sent him a letter with the details, but he didn't wait for it, just wired right back asking what was he to do next. I got a great kick out of that, but the thing you want to notice about it is that I couldn't have done anything if the original investigation made by Sheriff Odell hadn't been correct and thorough. Almost anybody can draw inferences if he has the facts all correct, and as it was Odell and Darrow had given me a correct set of facts, properly presented, to work with.

Vancouver sent on a copy of their marriage records covering Coumas. There was very little in its that was useful; the information about the bride, the fact that Coumas was born in Greece and his parents' names, were of no value. But it contained one fact that did not line up with Odell's careful reports and one fact that was new. The fact that did not tally with the reports was Coumas' profession, which was listed on the license as "cook." The fact I had not had before was the news that the Greek was a naturalized citizen of the United States.

Both facts constituted clews that opened up wholly new lines of investigation. As a naturalized citizen he would have left another record containing information about him, and some of it might be new—a record with the Washington authorities. I got off a letter to D. W. MacCormack in the Bureau of Naturalization, asking for all available information that could be gleaned from the naturalization papers. The fact that Coumas was an experienced cook, formerly a professional, made it understandable how he had eluded the net flung out for him by the Stockton authorities. He would have had very little difficulty working his way from place to place, leaving practically no trail behind, which is otherwise a difficult trick unless you have plenty of money to spend. Good cooking speaks all languages and goods cooks are always wanted everywhere.

Still, the fact of Coumas' having been a cook offered a lead. Some cities and states demand that restaurant cooks submit to medical examination, and if Coumas had run into such a town there would be a record of the examination, though probably not under his name. In other words, the trail would be very faint, but there would be a trail. I suggested to Darrow that he circle around for it. He could send his men to the health departments of Modesto, Merced, Tuolumne, San Jose, Sacramento and Vallejo, which would about cover every outlet from Stockton, asking whether they had examined a cook of Coumas' description at about the date of the murder. If they didn't get anything from the health departments they could try a check-up on all the restaurants in these places—a long job, but when you have a trail as weak as this one you have to take a lot of trouble.

The report from MacCormick in Washington said that Coumas had received his naturalization papers in Portland, Oregon, in 1914, giving his birthplace as Raemo, Greece. Now Portland is right across the river from Vancouver, and Vancouver is a small town, so I took it that Coumas had been in or about Portland for at least five years—he would have to spend that long in the country to get his naturalization. That meant he probably had left some record or other in Portland itself. What kind of a record I could not imagine for the moment, but it is very difficult for any citizen to live in a place for five years without getting his name onto the official records somewhere. I sent the observation on to Darrow and he agreed with me; sent R. L. Weber of his office up to Portland with instructions to go through every kind of official record kept in the city of Portland trying to locate Coumas' name.

On the other trail the best we got was a partial identification from Merced, and that was mighty weak. A restaurant proprietor there said that the picture of Coumas resembled a man who had worked for him a short time—he couldn't be quite sure, and was certain that the man hadn't given the name of Coumas. But it was the only identification that was even partial from any of the circle of towns around Stockton, so the string seemed worth playing out. I suggested to Darrow that he concentrate on the line down beyond Merced in the hope of getting more complete identification further along.

MEANWHILE, the date given by the Merced restaurant proprietor as that when he had hired the man who might be Coumas was suspiciously close to that of the killing. I looked at the map. Merced is a good hundred miles from Stockton, and Coumas could not have walked such a distance. Neither had he gone there by rail, because the authorities had been notified soon after the killing and within less than an hour Odell had the Stockton station guarded. His report showed that no train had left during the interval, not even a freight train. Therefore, if the Merced cook was indeed Coumas, he had gone there from Stockton in a car, either as a hitch-hiker or with a friend.

I was pretty sure the hitch-hike idea could be thrown out. Tom Coumas may have been half-cracked when he shot Mrs. Taylor, but his actions both before and since showed he had good sense and a lively care for his own safety. He was not the man to take the chances of identification that htich-hiking his way along would involve. Therefore, he must have gone south with a friend, either a friend who had come along by chance, or a friend whom he had known for a long time and who lived in town.

Now you see how these things work together. If I could establish the existence of a friend with a car it would help to prove I was right in supposing Coumas had gone south from Stockton; and if the trail south of Stockton could be definitely picked up, it would prove the existence of the friend with a car. All other possibilities had been eliminated.

So I got off another wire to Darrow, asking him to check up on Coumas' acquaintances, especially other Greeks; find out how many of them owned cars and what they and their cars were doing on the date of the murder or the day afterward. On the restaurant end the problem was easier; Merced is in the neck of a long valley with high mountains on both sides; if Coumas had gone through that place he would have to pass through Madera, Fresno, Tulare and Bakersfield in turn.

One of the lines we had out went dead right away. The Stockton police had already covered that line of a friend with a car. The same idea about the difficulty of Coumas getting out of town had occurred to them, and they had given all Coumas' acquaintanceships a rigid going over.

THEY had begun the job within two hours of the murder, and they vouched unhesitatingly for the absolute alibis of every one of Coumas' few known friends. I never saw a better set of investigations; they had covered every inch. In view of that piece of absolute elimination there remained only two possibilities: either the Merced identification was wrong — it was weak anyway — or Coumas had escaped in the car of some friend who just happened along that day from some place outside of Stockton. And the second hypothesis seemed like stretching coincidence a long way. Think of it—the man commits a murder and just that day somebody who knows him happens along.

I was trying to see a way out of the corner into which I had argued myself when the California people solved the difficulty for me. Worcester, one of Odell's men, got another partial identification at Bakersfield. It gave him an idea. From Bakersfield, if Coumas had been there, he had only two ways to go. One took him to Los Angeles. The other goes straight across the Mojave Desert to the Colorado River, through Barstow, Ludlow and Rice and then through the corner of Arizona into old Mexico. Worcester had a hunch that the fugitive would duck Los Angeles and struck out boldly on the other road. At Barstow, for the first time he got definite and positive identification. The proprietor of a small restaurant absolutely identified Coumas from his picture and description as a man called "George" he had hired and who had worked for him over a month. He had arrived in an old Chevrolet car which bore an Oregon license plate, with a companion who had been employed as a dish washer while Coumas was working as a cook.

Oregon again! Tom Coumas had lived for years in Portland, Oregon, had been naturalized there and married there. This meant that the chance friend happened along after all, in spite of the improbability of such a thing on the very day of the murder, or at most a day or two before, and it was in his car that Coumas had escaped. That threw the Oregon investigation up into double prominence.

Down at the other end there were no more results after the Barstow strike. Darrow's man, Weber, up in Portland, was working patiently through a mass of records and the case, which had been running along like a machine, sort of reached a standstill once more. I looked over the reports again and decided to work in deeper along the back trail. Coumas' naturalization papers had given

ondon Zoo Establishes a 'Pet Corner' Where Children May Play With Anything From a Lion Cub to a Python

And How the Dedication Speech of Julian Huxley, the Institution's New Director, Was Interrupted by a Battle Between a Heckling Parrot and a Chimp Who Wanted to Listen.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

LONDON.

AT THE time of Professor Julian Huxley's recent appointment as director of the London Zoo, it probably didn't occur to anyone that he would bring to his new calling the frame t mind called for in his old one. e had been Honorary Lecturer in perimental Zoology at Kings llege and has become famous r his imaginative theories, hich apply not only to his formal ocation, biology, but to all phases philosophy. For the grandson Darwin's colleague, Thomas uxley, and the brother of Al ous (who wrote among many her things the satirical novel, Point Counterpoint") is also a liever in the need for keeping ience always in close contact ith human needs and ideals.

One of his first acts on becom ng warden of the zoological gardens was characteristic of the factors which have made this lanky aristocrat and intellectual something of a popular favorite; he has never outgrown the unobjectionable attributes of childhood and a youthful outlook; he has never forgotten how to play. And no one was really very much surprised when the wise, middle-aged biology professor announced —within six months of his appointment—that he was going to t aside one corner of the zoo r children who like to play with animals.

Without any explanations, with ut citing a single psychologist, Professor Huxley had a new wing built, an unbarred, cageless kindergarten. Then he announced that on a certain day the new section would be opened to children (who might bring their elders if they choose) and that from that day on children could borrow an animal any morning or afternoon.

Pets Corner was stocked with almost as many varieties as the Ark. Lion cubs and pythons, crocodiles and penguins, chimpanzees, camels, Shetland ponies, turtles, white calves and a parrot.

The formal opening of the Pets Corner was unquestionably the most exciting premeditated event the zoo has ever seen. A mob of children and their nurses and their uncles and their aunts gathered outside the low fence to see what was going to happen when all those animals were introduced for the first time. And they weren't disappointed. Naturally there had to be a speech and, also naturally, Professor Huxley had to make it. No one had remembered that Laura might feel called on to add a word or two.

Laura is a parrot and her vocabulary is limited to the expression "Silence, please"—an admirable maxim for a zoo parrot, but scarcely a suitable obligato for an opening address.

Professor Huxley stood up in the fenced-off arena, lanky, lantern-jawed and impassive, his wide gray eyes blinking at the child audience behind thick glasses. Peter, the chimpanzee, sat there trying to pretend absorption in the never-ending miracle of his toes. Percy, the earnest, saintly penguin, stood by in all his dignity, as if the whole show had been put on solely for his benefit. But Laura was irrepressible. No sooner had the eminent biologist begun his address than she was squawking for "Silence, please."

Peter stood this a few minutes, then could contain himself no longer. He lunged savagely for the offensive bird and caught her squarely in the beak with his hairy masculine fist. Laura broke a shriek in two to take a virile peck at Peter's nose. In a moment grunts and squeals and fur and feathers cluttered the air. Keepers had to jump in and suppress them. The chimpanzee was carried off pick-aback to be given a good brushing and Laura was sent off in a huff. Gales of laughter swept the audience.

A moment later Niger, a white calf, began to catch the spirit of the occasion and discard his stage fright. Up went his heels. In a moment he was gamboling all over the place. And, unable to restrain himself another instant, a little boy dashed after him, intoxicated with the gamboling urge. Then Percy, the penguin, began his show. He had picked up a small fish somewhere, and now he tried to balance it on his nose. Then his appetite overcame his sense of showmanship and he swallowed it at a gulp. A couple of little girls in the audience were captivated and dashed into the arena to adopt him. Percy held out his two fin-like wings and took them for a short promenade.

By this time, of course, all thought of speech-making had been forgotten. George, the lion cub, began romping like a kitten and was quickly adopted by an enchanted stripling of five years. Two little girls, who tried to share the privilege of caressing George, were promptly snubbed. A moment later Peter, the chimp, was back, chastened and freshly brushed, so they adopted him instead. When they offered him cookies he became embarrassingly affectionate, threw his arms around their necks, kissed them.

And so the afternoon wore on, and finally it was closing time. Prof. Huxley, driving back to his suburban villa, must have chuckled to himself as he remembered the Peter-Laura incident. Nobody would find it necessary to publish a treatise on that afternoon's experiment. For once Mr. Huxley had been perfectly obvious.

his birthplace as Raemo, Greece. Now at the beginning of the case had written to Darrow that murderers always head for home when they get the chance. There seemed to me a strong possibility that Coumas' flight for Mexico was the first stage of a long hop whose ultimate destination was Raemo, Greece, and it occurred to me that possibly I could short-circuit a lot of toilsome investigation by going direct to Raemo.

I don't mean in person, of course. After all, it wasn't my case, and it would look like a lot of nerve if I told the California people to send a man half-way und the world to Raemo on the strength of a theory. I got out an las and looked up Raemo. It's in the Province of Arcadia, down in the southern part of Greece. I knew the Greek authorities would help out as well as they could, if I could get in touch with them, but I didn't think they'd be any too energetic about looking up a needle in a haystack like that.

It was a case for the brain trust. I went up to Princeton University and asked who they had on the staff who would know about Greece. They directed me to Professor Edward Capps, who knows more about Greece than any man on this side of the Atlantic. I had met Capps before and knew he was all right, so I told him the whole story.

He was just the man for the case; sat right down and wrote out half a dozen Greek letters to the authorities in Greece in their own language. While he was at it, he suggested we get in touch with the Mexican authorities, too. If Coumas had gone through Mexico in a hurry he had probably gone aboard a ship somewhere in that country and there would be a record of him. So I took that tip, too.

The Mexicans had no record of Tom Coumas; they had taken an intelligent line in looking for him, too, by studying the reports of sailors and cooks engaged aboard ships at Mexican ports. After quite a little wait we also got an answer from Greece. The authorities there had been pretty thorough and they reported there was no such person as Tom Coumas living anywhere in the Province of Arcadia.

I took that answer up with Dr. Capps. Between us we figured out that it was just possible that Coumas might be in Greece at that, but if he was he would probably be in hiding under a false name and a set of whiskers. Dr. Capps had numerous friends over there, so he quietly set afoot an unofficial investigation around that town of Raemo, but still we got the same result—nobody knew of Tom Coumas.

Now I suppose you have noticed the peculiarity about this case. It's a peculiarity I've struck pretty often in other cases, and it always means the same thing — that you're off the track somewhere. That is, you have a perfectly clear trail, even if it is a difficult one, up to a certain point, when it vanishes altogether. I considered the possibility of Coumas' having doubled back to California, or even to Oregon, but every time I considered it I turned down the idea. That was the sort of thing he'd do if he was a regular gangster, but all the research that had been done on him showed he was utterly inexperienced in crime. I was still convinced that if he was hiding out anywhere it was in Greece.

THEREFORE, it seemed to me that the fact we were lacking was necessarily one of those somewhere along his back trail. I went to the records again. The earliest mention we had of Coumas was in his naturalization papers in 1914. If we could get some record of him before that, it might supply the missing element that would give us the key to where he was hiding out. So I got Dr. Capps to write to Raemo again for me, this time asking the authorities there for Coumas' birth record and anything they might have about his early life.

When the answer to that query came back it was a shock. There was no record of any Coumas family in Raemo, past or present. In fact, the authorities went further —there was no record of any Tom Coumas in the whole of Arcadia.

Now that could only mean one of two things—either Coumas had lied about his place and date of birth on his naturalization papers (and this seemed altogether unlikely, as he had no reason to do so, his record at that time evidently being good) or he had been using a false name for over 18 years! If the name Tom Coumas was taken out of the picture the whole aspect of the case was changed. It would no longer be surprising that the Mexican and Greek authorities had no record of him. We were asking for Tom Coumas; they might have a record of the man, all right, but under another name. In fact, the idea of a changed name answered every requirement of the problem.

But why had Coumas been using a false name for 18 years? I didn't know. Perhaps some early indiscretion in Greece, perhaps only because he changed his real name for something that would be more easily pronounced when he first came to this country. Any one of a number of reasons would answer.

That opened up a new line of inquiries. I had Dr. Capps write again, this time to the Greek Government in Athens, asking them whether they could obtain any trace of a young man who had left Raemo for America about the time Coumas would be leaving. It looked like a long shot, but still it was something that could be traced if they took time enough.

Before we got any answer, however, the problem was solved for us. You remember Weber was up there in Portland, looking through miles of official records for anything involving Coumas? Well, he landed on something. He found a court record of a case involving Coumas in a Portland court in 1914, about six months before the Greek had taken out his final naturalization papers. And the case was one of Coumas applying to the court to change his name officially from Smyrno Smyrnogranis to Tom Coumas.

That was the big break. The whole case opened right up as soon as we had that fact. Out in Stockton they redrew the indictment to make it read Smyrno Smyrnogranis. Another letter to Mexico brought the news that Smyrno Smyrnogranis had gone on board a tramp steamer at Tampico, bound for Pernambuco, Brazil, as a cook, and when Dr. Capps wrote to Greece again, he got the news that Smyrno Smyrnogranis had been born in Raemo, had gone to the United States in 1907 and had written home frequently since then.

AFTER that it was only a question of time. I just sent off a few more letters, tracing the steamer Coumas had taken, but after I had had it traced a short distance the word came through that the police in Arcadia had finally found Coumas . . .

"Yes," said Miss Yoos, "He got our Congressman from this district to help, through the State Department. About three weeks after that we got this telegram." She fumbled in the files a moment and then brought it out.

"Coumas arrested keeping shop in Arcadia. Heartiest congratulations."

"That was funny, too. The chief was out when it came. Here's the answer I sent:

" 'Detective Parker has gone fishing. We rejoice with you.' "

"Did they bring him back and put him on trial?"

"No," said Parker. "We found after all there wasn't any extradition treaty with Greece and we couldn't get him back to California. But I understand they've got him in jail over there."

Lent Her Children to Another

to him to receive what God and nature offered her.

"The home of the mother in Tahiti is not, and Tahiti is not, a fit and proper place for Eric, and the mother is not capable of exercising proper parental control over him.

"It appears that the girl, Eve, would be better cared for by Mrs. Worswick than the mother. That, however, is not the test where the girl is of tender years and the mother is seeking custody. At the time she relinquished such custody she was unfitted for it. But the mother's family status has changed. . . .

"Eve, unlike Eric, is not of sufficient age to form an intelligent preference as to who should be her guardian. . . . She readily adjusts herself to changes in environment and affections. A separation of these two children will cause but a slight wrench in the feelings of either."

In accordance with these findings, Eric returned to the Worswick home and Eve, tearfully protesting that she didn't want to go back to Tahiti, was turned over to her mother. After two weeks, however, Eve apparently had experienced a change of heart, for she said, "I love my mummie and I want to stay with her."

But the arrangement ordered by the Court didn't suit either Mrs. Wainwright or Mrs. Worswick. Both women wanted both children. And they soon began to prepare for another legal struggle, each demanding to be declared the legal guardian of the two youngsters. Two other contenders now entered the fight. Mrs. Sylvia Chaldecott of Hollywood, sister of Mrs. Wainwright, asked that the children be given to her if their mother was found unfit to rear them. And Eric DeBrath, father of little Eric and Eve, sent word that he hoped his ex-wife would win the suit, but if she didn't, he wanted the children sent to his family in England.

The second trial began September 4, before Superior Judge Leon Gray. The testimony was much the same as that given at the first trial, but there was a new witness this time. The 10-year-old, who enjoyed the comforts provided by Mrs. Worswick, was a witness against his mother. He said he had never loved her very much and didn't want to see her again. And he offered evidence against her character.

"I CAN never remember mummie giving me a bath," he said. "I just went into the ocean. My bed was just a mattress, with nothing on it, and it was very dirty as I went to bed dirty.

"I did just as I pleased. Every night mummie went out to parties with men and they kissed her. She would lie down in the afternoon, as men told her she was more beautiful when asleep. Men came and sat on her bed and kissed her.

"No, I don't want to go back to Tahiti. I want to stay here."

The lawyers argued, one side contending Mrs. Wainwright had selfishly got rid of her children so she would be freer to carry on her social life, the other accusing Mrs. Worswick of taking advantage of the mother's financial and marital troubles to rob her of her children. Judge Gray gave his decision on September 30. He held Mrs. Wainwright to be the legal guardian of both her children.

Despite her son's attitude, Mrs. Wainwright was happy over the prospect of having her children with her in Tahiti again and confident they would be happy..

JOEL McCREA

A different movie star will appear in this space every week. Accompanying each player will be three costumes this particular person wore in various roles played on the screen. Cut out the player and paste on cardboard. Then cut out the costumes. Now dress the star in the proper outfits, being careful to assemble each costume correctly.

The three sets of costumes shown here were worn by Joel McCrea in these roles in the following movies:

Carmichael in "Barbary Coast"; Alex MacGregor in "Private Worlds", and Dr. Donald Middleton in "Our Little Girls"

Next week: Betty Furness.

HANNAH TO THE RESCUE

THE CHARACTERS

RED WILY—A wicked fox.
BECKY BEAR—Red's little prisoner.
BILL BUNNY—A timid rabbit.
HANNAH—Becky's unhappy mother.

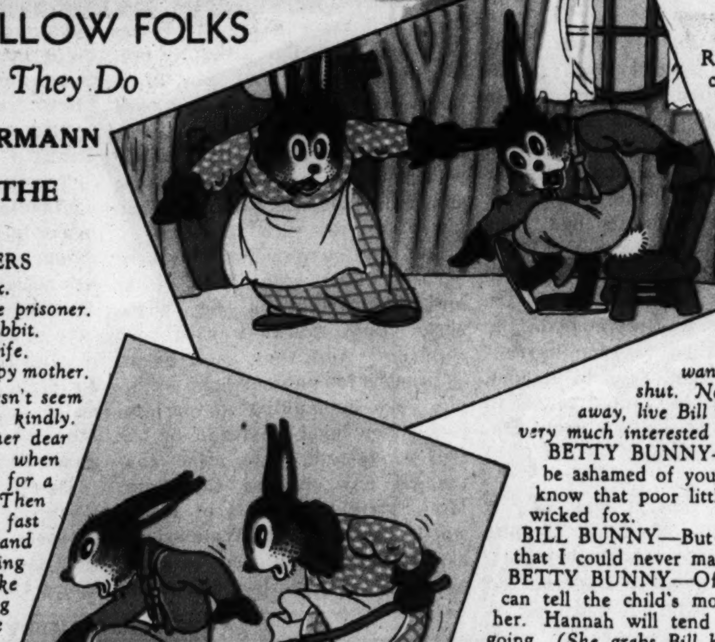
Poor little Becky. Life doesn't seem to be treating her very kindly. First she forgot to take her dear little bunny doll along, when she and her mother went for a visit to her Aunt Sarah. Then she found Bill Bunny fast asleep under a tree and caught him and was making the unwilling rabbit take the place of her missing doll when Red Wily came along and frightened her so badly that she dropped Bill and Bill ran away. And, to make matters worse, Red made Becky his prisoner and took her to his den, where we see her tied to a post as



THE PLAY BEGINS

RED WILY—Now, cheer up, child. I have great plans for both of us. You will stay here until you are as big and strong as your mother. Then, with your strength, and my brains, we'll go out and take anything we want. Just think of the rabbit stew and roast duck we'll have. Doesn't it make your mouth water? (Becky doesn't answer. Indeed, she couldn't if she wanted too, with her mouth tied shut. Now, in a tree house not far away, live Bill and Betty Bunny. They are very much interested in little Becky.)

BETTY BUNNY—Bill Bunny, you ought to be ashamed of yourself, sitting there when you know that poor little bear is a prisoner of that wicked fox.

BILL BUNNY—But what can I do? You know that I could never make that fox let her go.

BETTY BUNNY—Of course you can't. But you can tell the child's mother what has happened to her. Hannah will tend to that fox. Now you get going. (She grabs Bill by the ear and pull him off the chair.)

BILL BUNNY—(Protesting.) Don't you think Hannah will be mad at me for running away when Red caught Becky?

BETTY BUNNY—Nonsense. What else could you do? Now let's hurry. (She picks up a stick and makes Bill hop as fast as he can. Soon they come upon Hannah, who is sitting under a tree, crying and holding Becky's bunny doll in her arms. Bill feels sorry for her and tells her all about Becky being Red Wily's prisoner. Hannah jumps up and, giving the doll to Bill, starts for Red Wily's den.)

HANNAH—You bring that doll. I'm going to need both of my hands for what I'm going to do to that mean old fox.

ST. LOUIS POST - DISPATCH
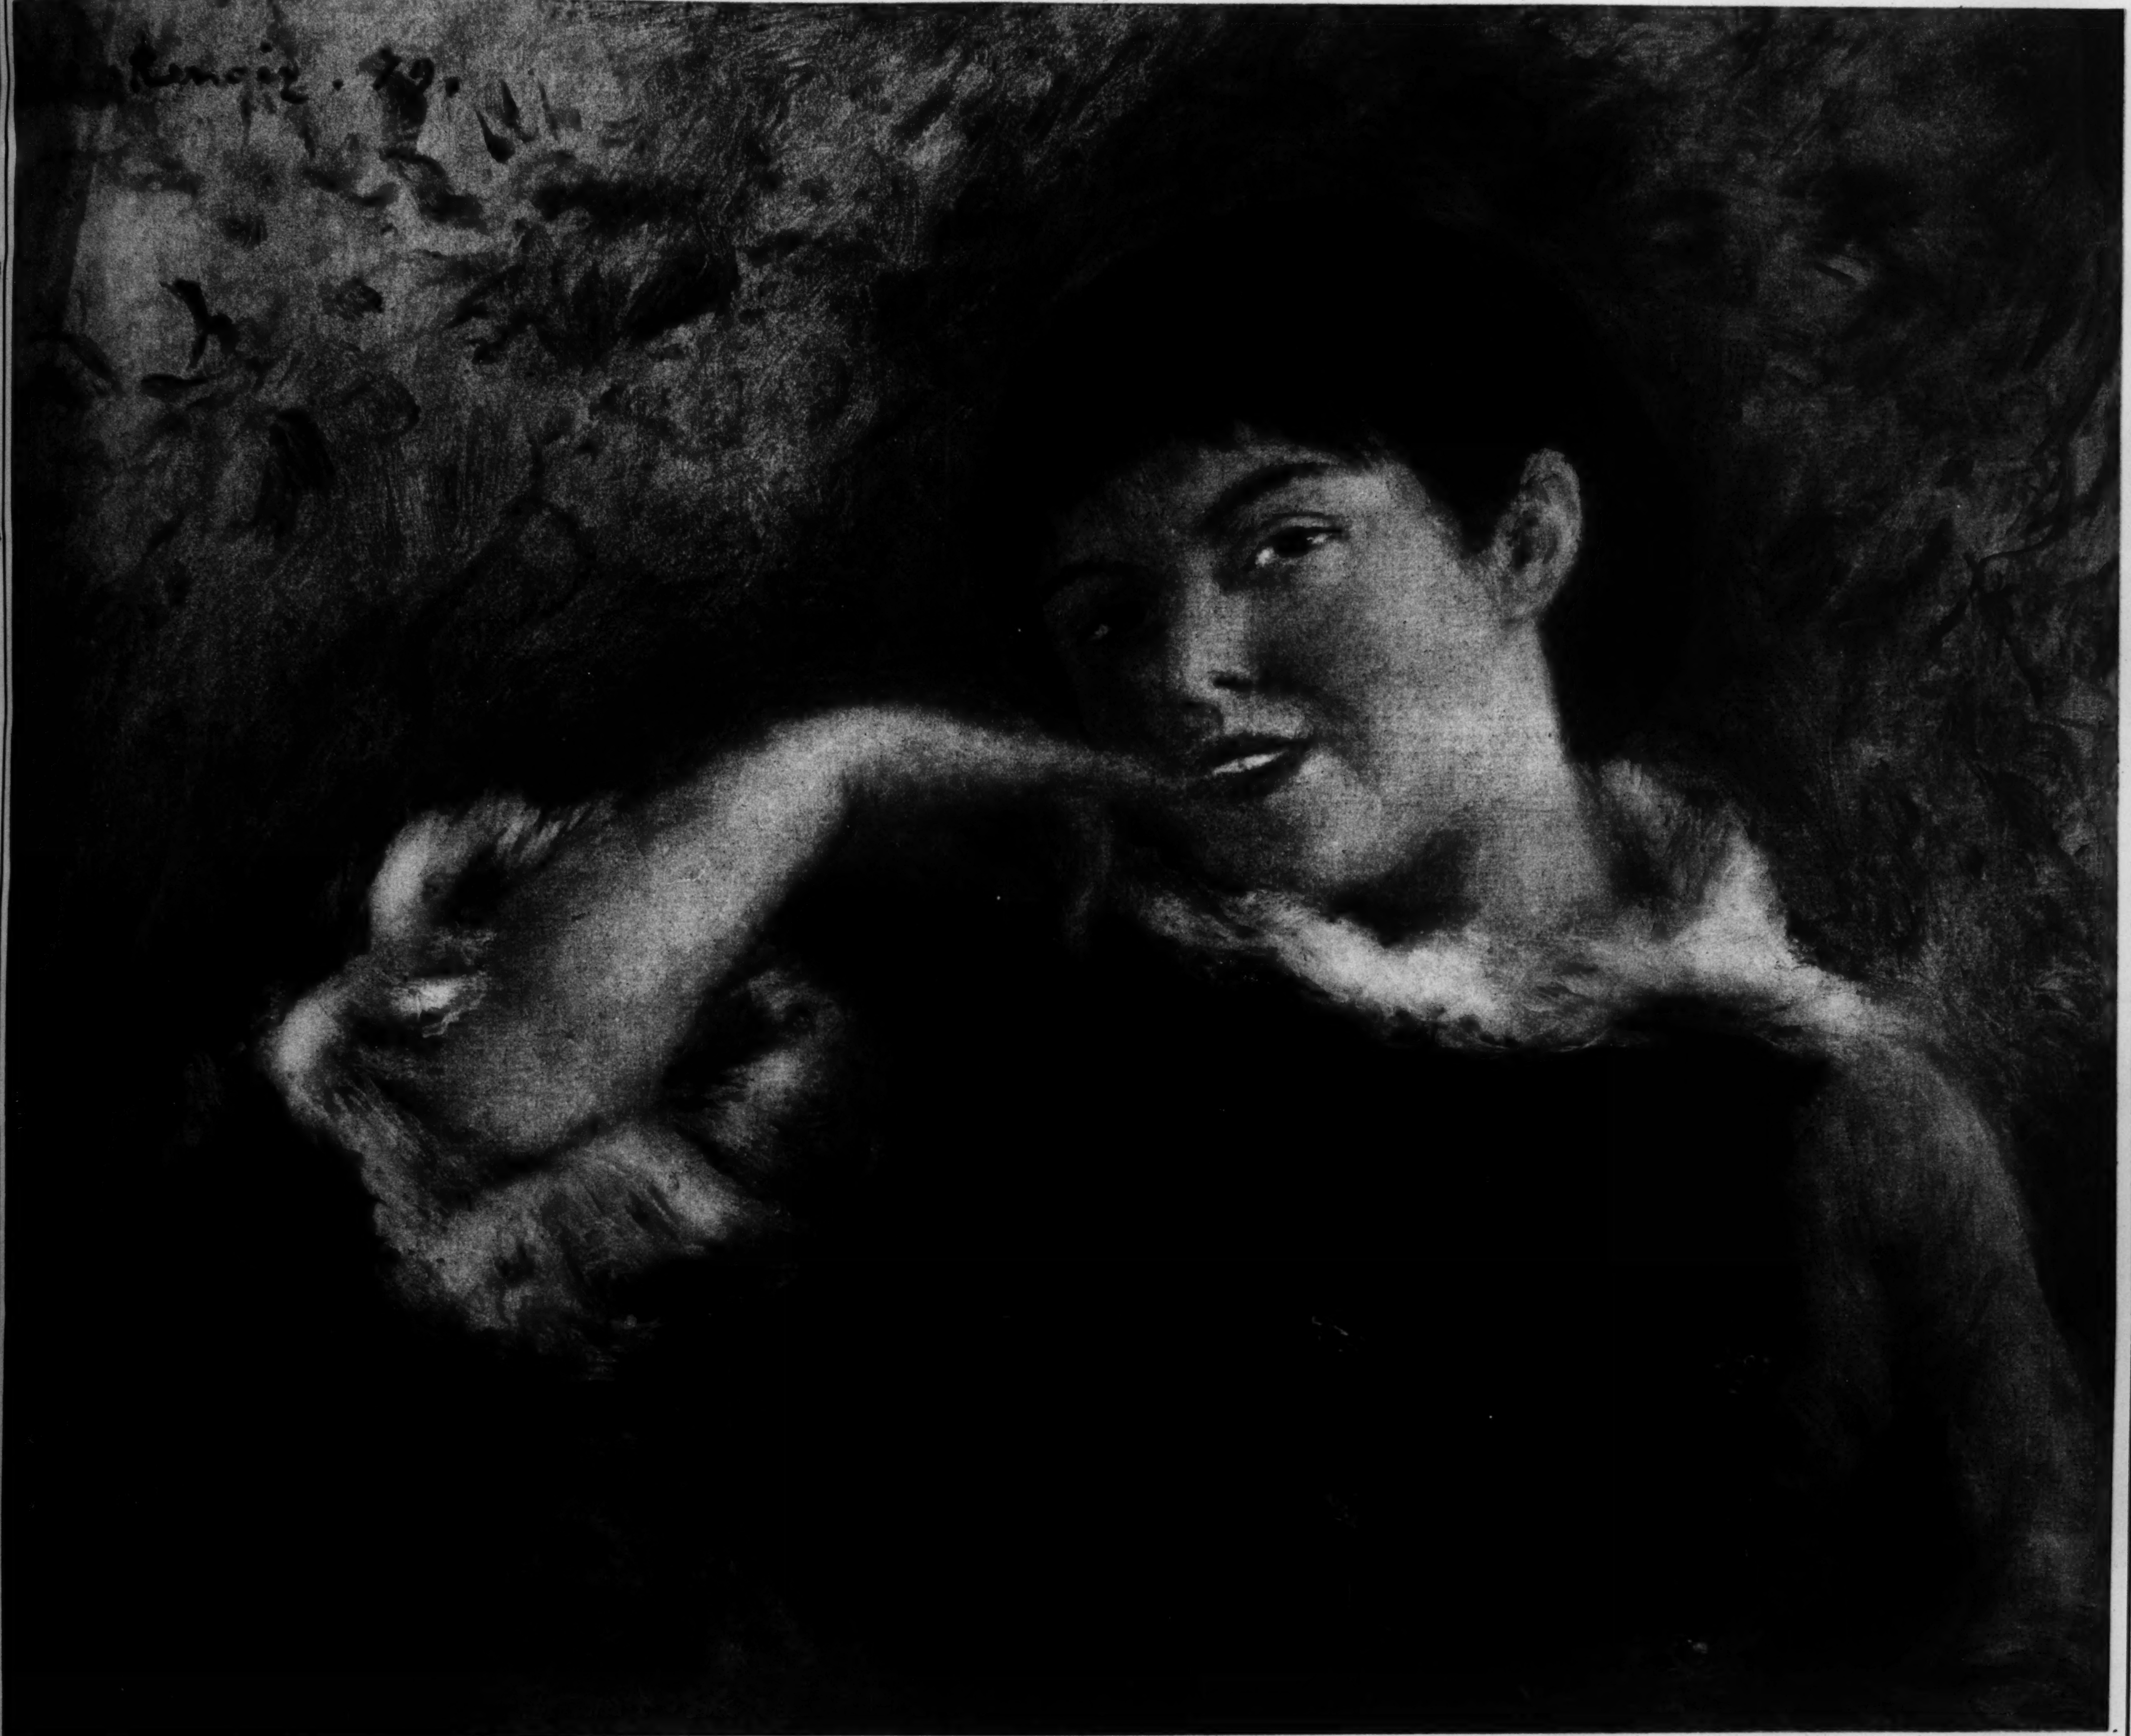
OCTOBER 27, 1935



YESTERDAY AND TODAY IN FRENCH ART—"La Songeuse" the portrait by Pierre Auguste Renoir which was recently acquired by the St. Louis Art Museum and, below, two specimens of "abstractionism" by Fernand Leger, the contemporary painter whose works are now being shown in New York and who has also been known as an expressionist and an "intensitist." The paintings are "Les Disques," left, and "Still Life."

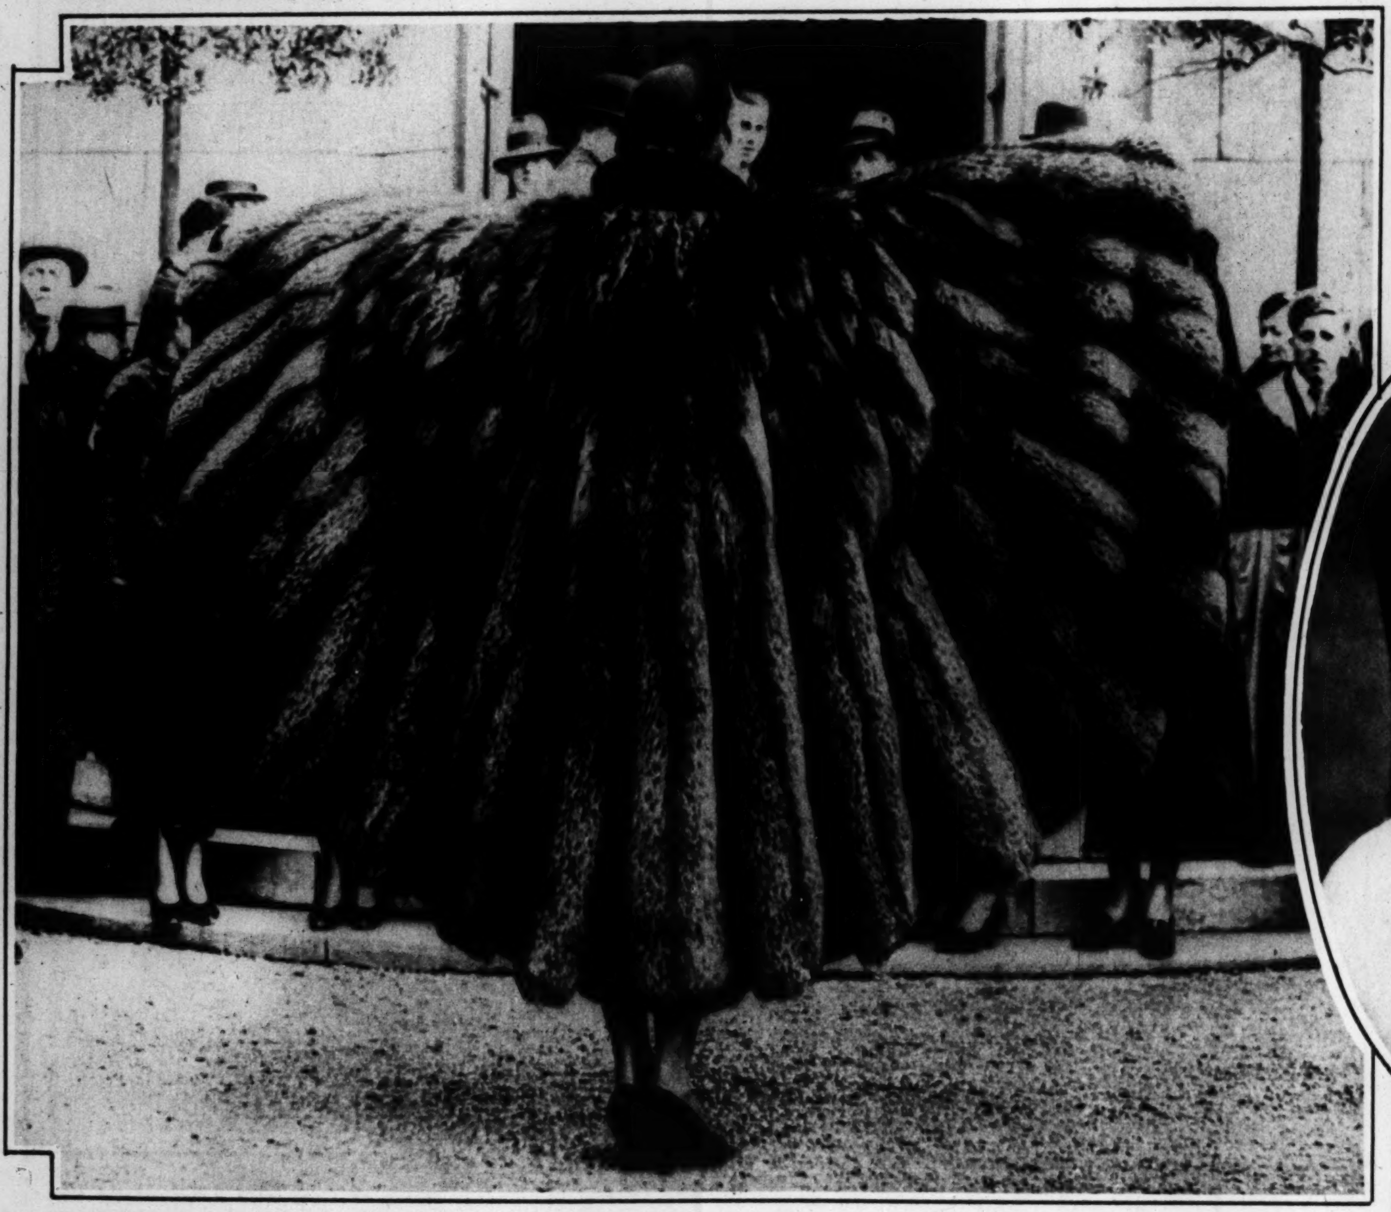
HOLY DIRECTORS OF A LEPER CAMP—The two Capuchin monks who manage the colony near Addis Ababa, Ethiopia. Father Charles (right) hasn't been home for 32 years; Father Pierre, who is 80, was away four years with French troops in the Riff and Syrian campaigns.



A CAPE TO CAP ALL CAPES—Twenty foxes died to enhance the beauty of the woman who buys this cape, which was shown at the winter fur show in Paris.

SAFETY BELLS—They will be installed in the towers of the new San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge to warn helmsmen during the frequent fogs in that harbor. Each, having a separate tone, will tell the pilot which tower he is near.

AIR STEPS—Nine new planes, equipped with five machine guns and bombs each, parade the sky in step formation over Marksdale Field, Louisiana.

BORROWED PLUMAGE
Artificial eyebrows were touted by the hairdressers and cosmeticians who held their convention in New York City.

THE ODDS WERE 40 to 1—But despite the spectacular way Round Table behaved at the barrier, and the fact that he started last, the jockey stayed in the saddle, the horse won the race at Empire City, N. Y., and paid the big return to backers.

THE BRAINS OF A LEG SHOW ARTIST
Contrary to popular opinion, says popular science columnist, Albert Edward Wiggam, chorus girls are not so "dumb." He cites Kay English, former Ziegfeld girl, whose intelligence quotient (168) is much higher than that of the average college graduate (129).

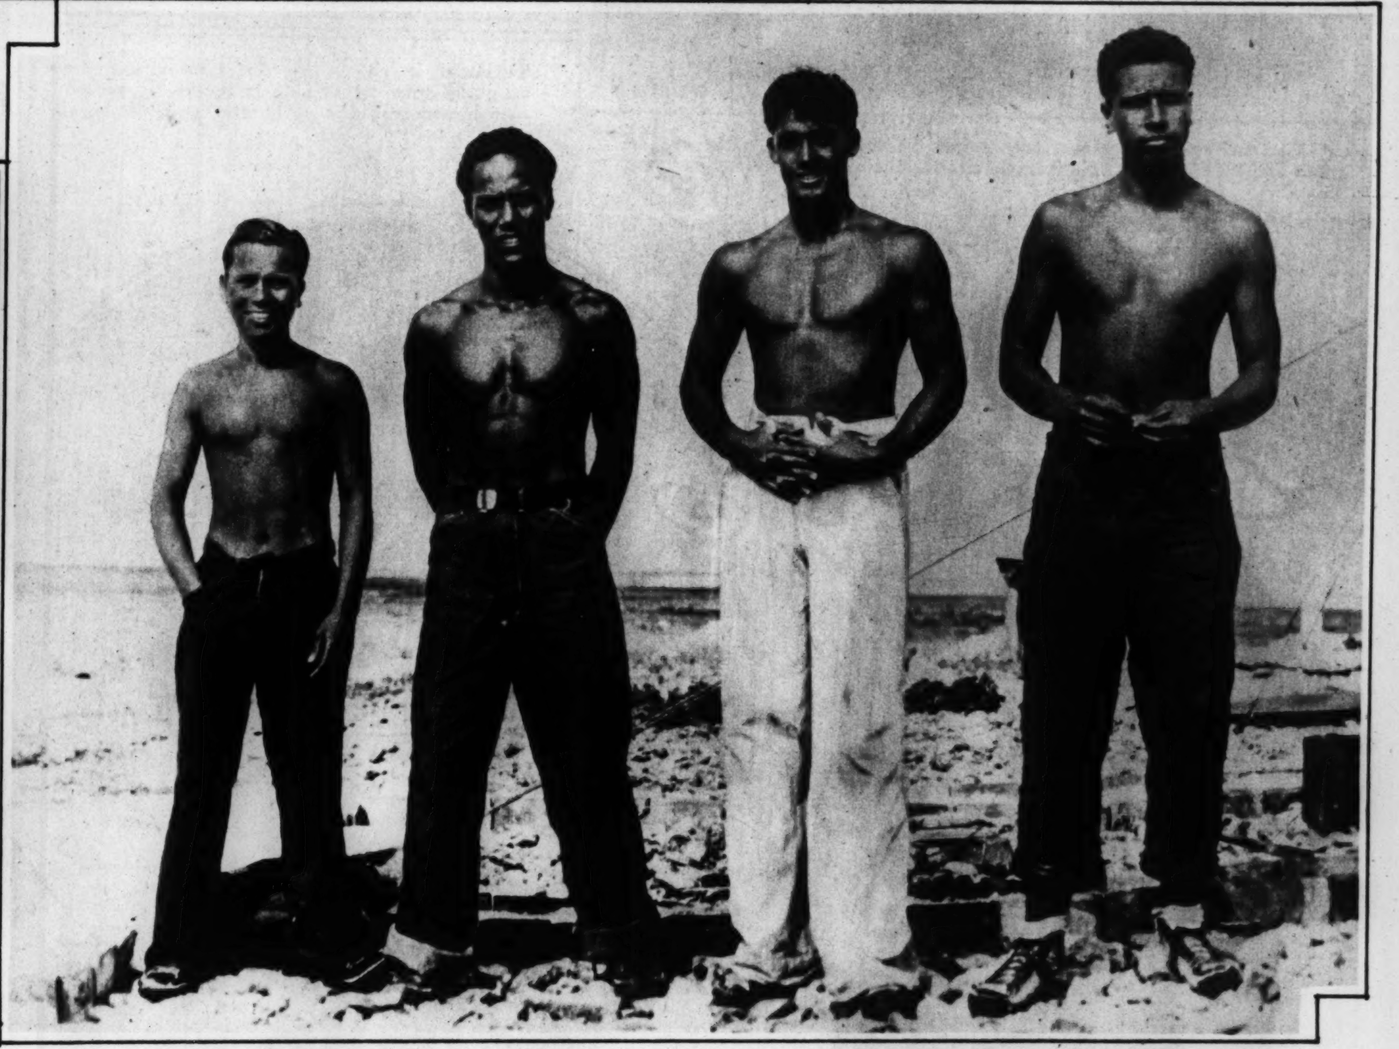
THE PEOPLE'S CHOICE IN YUCATAN

General Chazaro Perez was the likeliest popular candidate to replace the Governor whose entire administration was rejected by thousands of agrarian and industrial workers, who after the rebellion asked President Cardenas of Mexico for a new appointee.



AMERICAN IMPERIALISTS—Three South Pacific islands recently manned by Department of Commerce order with four Hawaiians each may become bases for a new Pacific air line to Australia, probably under the same sponsorship as the Pan American route to the Philippines. Above are the colonists of Jarvis Island; below, a scene on Howland. Baker Island is the third outpost.

NOTES on the AUTUMN MODE

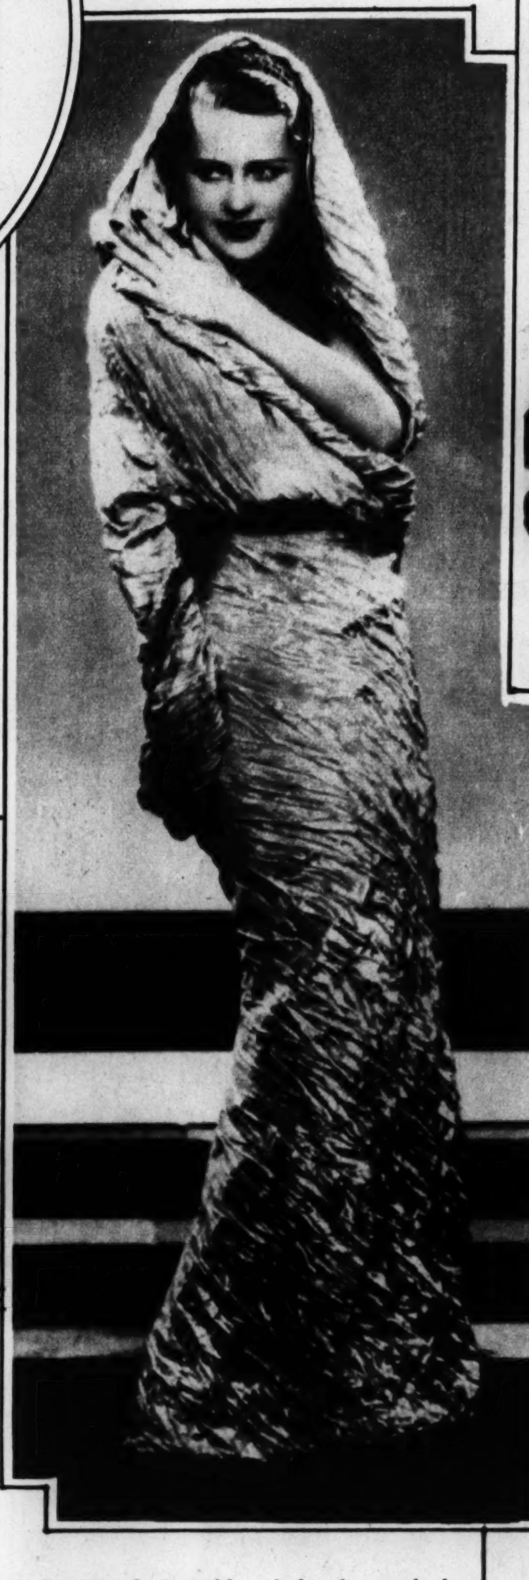
Turncoat in capes: In the photograph the sapphire blue velvet side is shown. Reversed —it becomes black satin and gold flowers.



Lame velvet, gold and deeply crushed. Swing it about—pale blue mat velvet. It is suggested that a cap of blue mesh net be worn on the hair.

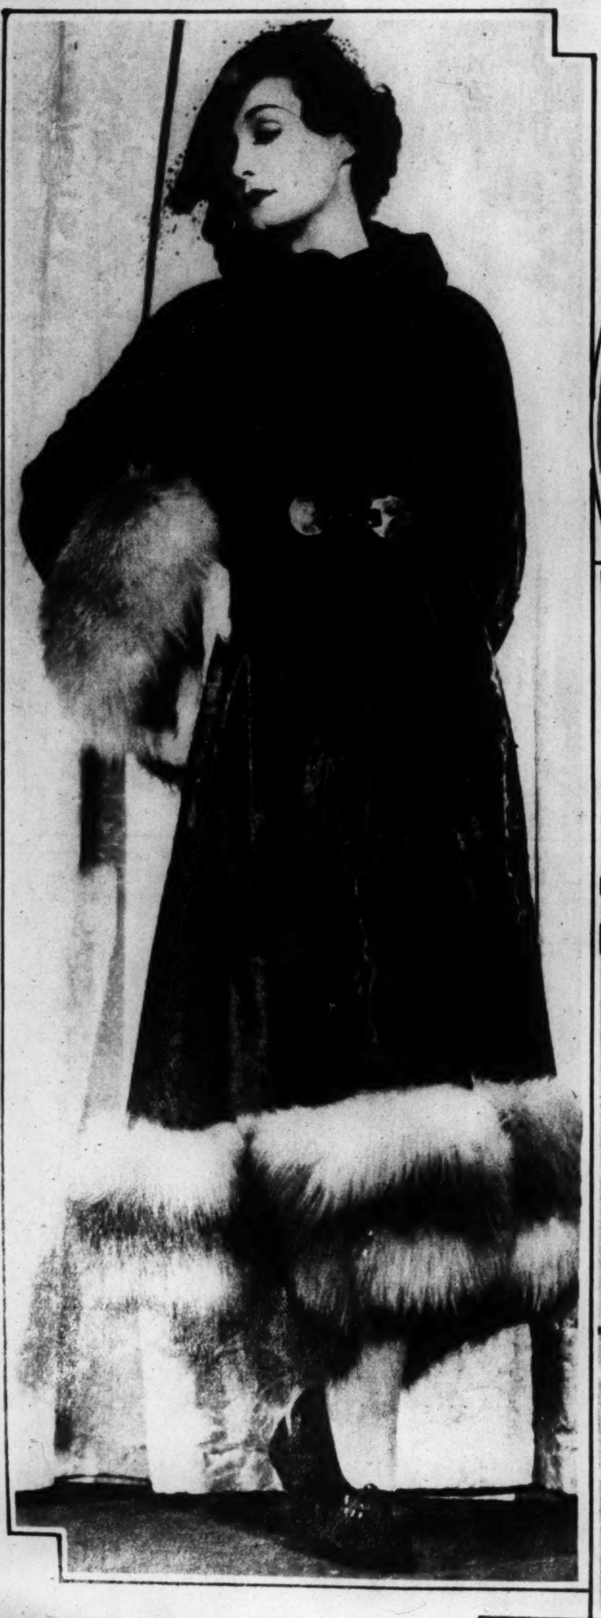
The half-and-half coat: the back and the sleeve scallops in black broadcloth, the remainder in black velvet. A shiny belt of black leather, gloves and beret of velvet, complete the outfit.



An afternoon coat of black broadtail, bordered at wrists and hem with wide bands of red fox. The Persian tunic is the inspiration.

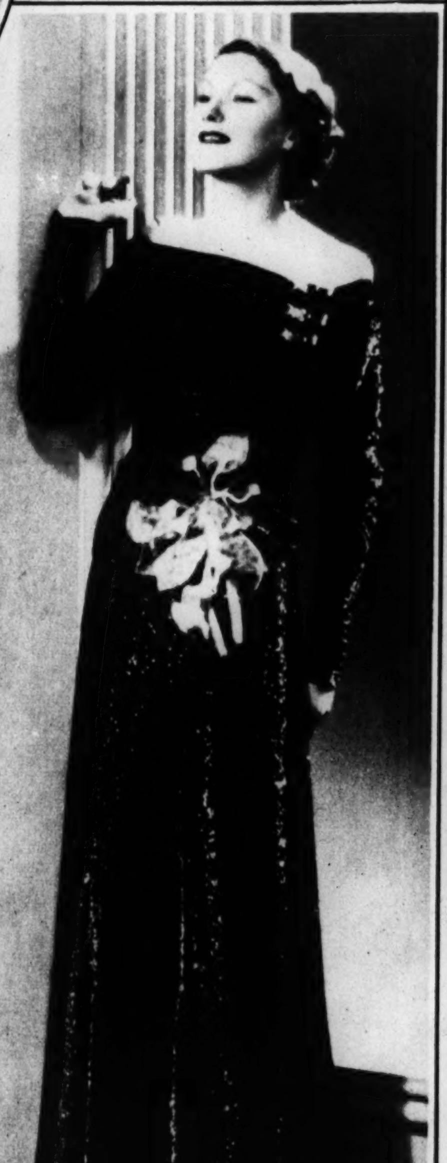
A Renaissance gown in Titian red stiff velvet, with belt of cut gilded leather.



Cellophane velvet in deep pine green; velvet flowers and leaves in green and orange tones; three gold clips descending from the neck line.

"ALL WORK AN' NO PLAY MAKES JACK A DULL BOY," WHO EVER MADE THAT CRACK WAS A POET, BELIEVE ME.
NOTHIN' BUT WORK! WORK! WORK! THEN THE KIDS I HAVE TO PUT UP WITH! IT'S JUST SIMPLY DISGUSTFUL.
I WISH I LIVED IN THE CITY—EVERY TIME YA WANT A SWIM THE FIRE DEPARTMENT DRIVES UP TO THE DOOR. OH, WELL! IT'S TOO PREROGATIVE FOR WORDS.
SOMETIMES I THINK I'LL GO TO SEA TO FORGET. AFTER ALL, WHAT IS THERE HERE FOR ME? NOTHIN'! YOU SAID IT!
YOU STRUGGLE ALONG TRYING TO KEEP YOUR END UP AND KIND WORDS ARE SO FEW AN' FAR BETWEEN THAT MOST PEOPLE GO THROUGH LIFE WITHOUT EVER HEARING THEM.
I SAY HEARING. COME TO THINK OF IT, WHO EVER DID HEAR A KIND WORD? SWEAT YOUR LIFE AWAY TRYING TO DO GOOD DEEDS AND SPILL A LITTLE MILK OF HUMAN KINDNESS AND WHAT THANKS DO YOU GET? DO PEOPLE COME RINGING YOUR DOOR-BELL TO THANK YOU? NO, THEY JUST GET WIND THAT YOU ARE SPILLING MILK OF HUMAN KINDNESS, AND THERE IS A STAMPEDE OF PEOPLE ON YOUR FRONT DOOR-STEP WITH PAILS TRYING TO GET IN ON THE RACKET. THAT'S LIFE.

There are only seconds to play in the University of California at Los Angeles - Oregon University game at Portland, Oct. 16, 1932. Oregon leads 7 to 6. UCLA has the ball, almost on its own goal line. It's muddy, but there's only one slim hope for UCLA. It requires nerve, daring. Frankovitch is going to try it. He fades behind his own goal line to pass.

Be there Livesay! The hope of the Californians is riding on that pass. Bowerman of Oregon leaps desperately to intercept but Livesay snatches the slippery ball. Can he hold it? Can he get away?

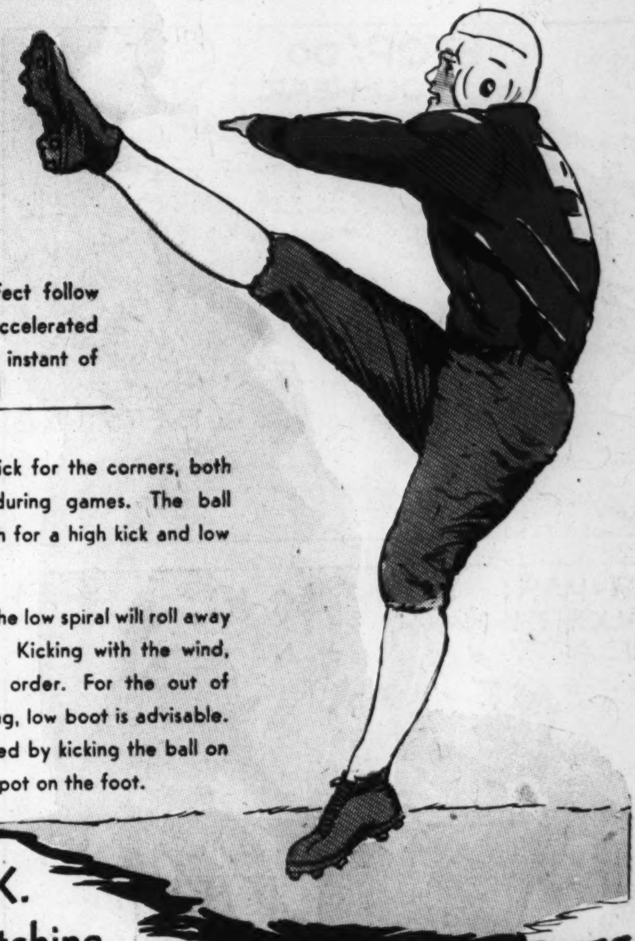
Bowerman tackled — actually had his arms around Livesay. The Californian lunges away. He's free!

As Livesay completes his spectacular 75-yard run for a touchdown, the pistol roars ending the game.

Here he is, Livesay—the lad who ran three-fourths the length of a muddy field on a daring play to win for UCLA, 12 to 7.

Football ...... By NED BRANT

PUNTING



Here you see the perfect follow through. A great deal of accelerated speed is necessary at the instant of contact with the ball.

Punters should kick for the corners, both in practice and during games. The ball should be held high for a high kick and low for a low one.

Into a stiff wind the low spiral will roll away from the receiver. Kicking with the wind, the high kick is in order. For the out of bounds kick, the long, low boot is advisable.

A spiral is prduced by kicking the ball on one spot with one spot on the foot.

OH OH! THE TWO TONS OF COAL I ORDERED ARE HERE.
AND IT LOOKS AS IF THOSE COAL PEOPLE MADE A BUST AND FOR ONCE GAVE ME FULL WEIGHT.
WELL, I SEE OUR COAL COMPANY IS EXPERIMENTING WITH THAT HONESTY-IS-THE-BEST-POLICY IDEA.
PART OF THAT COAL BELONGS TO THE PEOPLE UPSTAIRS. OUR COAL GOT HERE THIS MORNING.
THIS AFTERNOON ANOTHER DRIVER DUMPED A LOAD OF COAL ON OUR PILE. WHEN I TOLD THE WOMAN UPSTAIRS, SHE MERELY SAID SHE'D PHONE HER HUSBAND AND...
THERE HE IS LOOKING AT THE COAL NOW.
LISTEN HORACE, IS THIS ANOTHER OF YOUR FAST ONES? IF SO...
MY DEAR BUNGLE, THIS MISTAKE CAN BE IRONED OUT VERY EASILY BY BOTH OF US SHOVELING OUR SHARES INTO OUR BINS AT THE SAME TIME. KINDLY GET YOUR SHOVEL.
LISTEN JO, QUICK! WHERE'S THAT EXTRA LARGE SHOVEL I GOT WHEN THE FOLKS NEXTDOOR MOVED? IT HOLDS AS MUCH AS TWO ORDINARY SHOVELS.
ALL RIGHT HORACE, WHEN YOU'RE READY, SAY GO. ONE.. TWO..
WAIT! I'M LEFT-HANDED. LET'S CHANGE SIDES SO I CAN THROW RIGHT ALONG WITH YOU, OLD MAN.
FINE! ARE YOU READY? ONE... TWO..
GO!
WOW! WHAT A FAST PACE YOU SET, GEORGE. I'LL HAVE TO DROP OUT FOR A MOMENT TO GET A DRINK OF WATER.

AND I MUST SEE HORACE RIGHT AWAY. IT'S VERY IMPORTANT.
I'M SORRY. HORACE IS SO TIRED FROM THE COAL THAT HE WENT RIGHT TO BED AND DOESN'T WISH TO BE DISTURBED.

SUPREME COURT RULING LIKELY TOMORROW ON MUENCH APPEAL

Two of Six Judges, Frank and Gantt, Vote at Once for Denial of Writ to Cancel Command of St. Louis Court of Appeals.

OPPOSING COUNSEL MAKE SUGGESTIONS

Muenches Challenge Commissioner's Authority—Anna Ware's Lawyer Argues Child Is Physical Evidence.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 28.—e State Supreme Court in all robability will decide by 2 o'clock omorrow afternoon whether Dr. nd Mrs. Ludwig O. Muench must roduce in the St. Louis Court of ppeals the baby boy now in their ome, alleged by Anna Ware to be er child.

An application for a writ of pro- ibition, intended by Muench coun- l to save the Muenches from hav- g to produce the baby in court, as filed with the Supreme Court 8:50 o'clock this morning.

After counsel for the Muenches ad asked for five days within hich to prepare suggestions to the ourt, and counsel for Anna Ware her habeas corpus suit had ask- d immediate action, the Court rdered that suggestions of oppos- g counsel be submitted by 9 'clock tomorrow morning.

The Court's order to that effect isclosed that two Judges, William . Frank and Ernest S. Gantt, had oted to deny the application forth- ith this morning. The others who t in the case were Chief Justice eorge Robb Ellison, John C. Col- t, C. A. Leedy Jr. and Charles . Hays.

Judge Ernest M. Tipton, brother f Mrs. Muench, did not sit in the ourt because of his relationship to e respondent.

All Proceedings Suspended.

Pending a decision by the Su- reme Court, all proceedings were rdered suspended in the Anna Ware habeas corpus suit be- ore Special Commissioner Rush H. Limbaugh in St. Louis Court of ppeals.

The request for the writ was ased chiefly on the allegation that ommissioner Limbaugh, and the t. Louis Court of Appeals which ave him his powers, exceeded the ourt's authority in ordering the uenches to produce the child in ourt.

In general, the contentions in- luded in the application followed e arguments advanced in a mo- ion to quash the order of produc- ion, which was filed Friday morn- g and overruled by the entire St ouis Court of Appeals, sitting ith Commissioner Limbaugh. It as after overruling the motion to uash that the lower court gave ounsel for the Muenches until this orning to file their application n the Supreme Court.

State Representative Edgar J. Keating of Kansas City filed the pplication for the Muenches with he clerk of the Supreme Court. He was accompanied by a Jefferson ty lawyer, who represented Mrs. uench previously before the Su- reme Court in matters arising rom the Kelley kidnaping prose- ution.

aid Before Chief Justice Ellison.

After the filing, the application as taken before Chief Justice Ellison in chambers. Also laid be- ore the Chief Justice were the ritten suggestions of Harry C. Barker, counsel for Anna Ware, in pposition to issuance of the writ f prohibition.

In an informal conference in Judge Ellison's chambers, Keating id that he would like to have ive days' time within which to pre- ent authorities and suggestions in upport of his application. Mean- while, he suggested that all St. Louis proceedings in the Ware case e suspended.

Barker resisted this, saying that ample time already had been ex- tended to counsel for Mrs. Muench and telling the Chief Justice that he issues in the application were simple and capable of being decid- ed in a half-hour of deliberation after the application and sugges- ions had been read and digested.

"Every member of this court is familiar with the law on the case and needs only information as to he facts," Barker said. "A speedy decision is not only possible, but es- ential. Every day that the child s held means that identification is oing to be made that much more ifficult."

Continuing, counsel for Anna are asked the Chief Justice to
